President Will Personally Ask Billion Dollars, Bulk for Army

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt will make a dramatic personal appearance before a joint session of Congress at 1 p. m. today to ask the Nation's defenses be expanded and strengthened.

His decision to deliver personally his emergency defense message, expected to call for nearly a billion dollars extra for the Army and Navy, was at the eleventh hour last night. His words, to be broadcast to all parts of the globe, will emphasize America's determination to safeguard its interests in a warring world.

The message will be sent out over the United States by all three major radio chains, and to Europe and South America by short wave, from where it will be rebroadcast. Later, transcriptions of the speech, translated in French, German, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese, will be sent out from here.

Urged by Leaders

The decision to address Congress was announced at 10:10 p. m. in a White House statement which said:

The President, acting on the advice and recommendation of the Congressional leaders, has decided to deliver his message on the subject of National Defense in person to a joint session of the Congress at 1 p. m. o'clock (Eastern Standard Time), tomorrow afternoon. The address will be broadcast to the Nation and probably to the world by the three broadcasting networks, Columbia Broadcasting System, National Broadcasting System and Mutual.

The President's announcement climaxed a day of rapid national defense developments, highlighted by a statement from a Senate committee that the Nation would be safe if it built a strong navy and remained aloof from Europe.

Ask 63 Ships Now

The Senate Naval Affairs Committee, urging the immediate construction of 63 warships to expand the fleet by 11 per cent, set forth in a long report a recommended military policy for the United States which it said would assure protection against invasion or defeat in war.

In doing it was summarizing

TWO MILLION GERMAN TROOPS are hammering an Allied line of perhaps a million stretching southeastward across Belgium from Holland's Zeeland Province to Luxembourg's southern tip in an improvised version of the classic Von Schlieffen plan.

DUTCH TROOPS IN ZEELAND are still holding the Allies' extreme left. From there the line runs eastward north of Antwerp, then south along the Dyle River through Louvain, devastated for the second time in 26 years.

BRITISH AND BELGIAN TROOPS face the strong German right wing in the sector from near Antwerp almost to Namur. Just above Namur the Germans thrust a deep salient, seeking to flank both the town of Namur and the Anglo-Belgian line.

FROM NAMUR SOUTH TO MEZIERES, FRANCE, then east to the Moselle River, French and German troops are fighting a tremendous battle along the Meuse Valley. The Germans forced the river at three points south of Namur, seeking to envelop that city and forcing the French to abandon defense tactics for open warfare. Just east of Sedan, 50 miles south of Namur, another German salient piercing the new extension of the Maginot Line has been sharply reduced, the French claimed.

FAR BEHIND THE GERMAN ADVANCE LINE, many of the forts in the Belgian Liege defense system still held out, although completely cut off from the Allied armies.

GERMAN CONCENTRATIONS stirred Switzerland's fears to a new peak, while the Greek army and Allied navy took steps indicating fear of imminent Italian involvement in the war and President Roosevelt appealed to Premier Mussolini against spreading the war.

A renewed appeal was sent by President Roosevelt to Premier Mussolini yesterday against spreading the area of European war.

The message was transmitted through William Phillips, the American Ambassador in Rome.

The decision to send the message, even though it was not a completely new move by the President, was reached in consequence of reports of a disturbing nature that were received Tuesday concerning the increasing danger of Italian involvement in the war.

Midnight Conference Held

It led to another midnight conference of ranking officials at the State Department and with the White House Tuesday night. Secretary of State Hull went to the department at 11 o'clock where he was joined by A. A. Berle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State; J. Pierrepont Moffat, chief of the European division, and other officials, who were in evening clothes, having been called from a Toscanini symphony concert.

There followed exchanges with the President who remained at his desk in the White House until 2 o'clock Wednesday morning. By that time the message had been drafted and without delay was

100,000 Dutch Died in Battle, Leaders Say

Admiral Is Named To Head Last-Ditch Fight in Zeeland

By the Associated Press

London, May 15.—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands has appointed Rear Admiral Van der Stad as commander of all Dutch military and naval forces in the province of Zeeland, the Netherlands legation announced tonight.

In Paris, Netherlands Foreign Minister Van Kleffens estimated today that the Dutch army had suffered 100,000 men killed—or one-fourth of its total strength of 400,000.

(In the World War, 25 per cent casualties, wounded as well as dead, were considered very high for large forces and the ratio of dead to wounded was 1 to 4.

(These figures, together with the fact that the Dutch foreign minister is a civilian without military experience, led to belief his estimates were exaggerated.)

Van Kleffens, said Holland's fleet was almost intact and had joined the Allied naval forces.

He said that resistance was continuing in the coastal province of Zeeland and that troops which escaped into Belgium would enter the Allied armies.

Zeeland is the province of low islands south of Rotterdam, and north of Antwerp, Belgium, not yet surrendered to the Germans.

The Queen herself announced Van der Stad's appointment to the Dutch

U. S. Urges Citizens to Leave Switzerland, Southern Europe

By William V. Nessly
Post Staff Writer

The United States last night issued general warning for all Americans in southern Europe, Switzerland, France and Great Britain to leave those war-menaced areas.

The State Department called on them to concentrate in the region of Bordeaux, in southern France, or in Spain and Portugal, and said it then will consider making arrangements for their evacuation by American vessels from those areas.

Bordeaux is in the combat zone, from the waters of which American ships are barred by the Neutrality Act. Immediate speculation arose on why that section was chosen for the concentration, rather than Genoa, from which port Americans have been embarked heretofore.

Though officials offered no explanation, it was assumed that the likelihood of Italy entering the conflict soon had some part in the decision.

The American Navy's European Squadron, consisting of a cruiser and two destroyers, is still available there to help evacuate Americans and officials have indicated that the possibility of such a need has been a chief reason for keeping the squadron in the Mediterranean.

The homeward rush already is under way, it is indicated in dispatches from abroad. Both the liner Washington, sailing Saturday, and the Manhattan, sailing June 1, are booked to capacity, and there are long waiting lists for reservations.

No figures are available here now on the number of Americans still in

Nazis Revive World War Plan In Push to Crush Allied Left Wing

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Berlin, May 15.—Through the press the high command revealed itself today as engaged in a sweeping "swinging door" movement in which well over 2,000,000 men of the highly mechanized German army are being thrown forward in a decisive effort to destroy the Allied left wing in France and Belgium, and perhaps to roll its remains upon Paris.

As the Germans claimed a veritable "break through" on the extended Maginot Line in the Meuse sector near Sedan and asserted their forces were skirting the inner Belgian defense line of the Dyne River at many points, the newspapers of the country disclosed definitely that the Nazis are using a "revised Von Schlieffen plan."

On Waterloo Battlefields

Pointing to their claims that German forces had already flanked the Allies' Antwerp-Louvain-Namur Line and penetrated it at several points, and had forced the surrender already of two of the Namur forts, these quarters prophesied that the great battle in the offing would end in Allied defeat.

This initial major engagement might be fought, it was suggested, on the historic battlefields of the Waterloo campaign of 1815, around towns with famous names, such as Quatre Bras, Ligny and even Waterloo itself.

It was Gen. Field Marshal von Schlieffen who, as chief of the German general staff until 1908, developed the plan which, in its general outline, was followed in the right wing drive at the beginning of the last war. It failed in part, at least, at the Marne, because "the younger Moltke," German commander, failed to obey his predecessor's dying words: "Keep the right wing strong."

Plan Will "Work" This Time

It was claimed today that the old plan will "work" this time, because the right wing will be kept strong and the wider swing now made possible through the ocupation of Holland will be carried out in a manner to envelop Paris.

Meanwhile, press and officials placed the greatest emphasis also on the fact that Dutch air bases, as well as those "soon to be secured" in Belgium, place the German air arm within full striking distance of Great Britain, and hint broadly that the right wing crack at the Allied land positions may be accompanied

Basel, May 15.—German artillery rolled into place behind motorized divisions on the German side of the Rhine from Basel to Schaffhausen today, and by sundown foreign military observers reported the Germans seemed ready to move—if they plan an attack on Switzerland.

The French also were ready with a strong force kept at the Swiss frontier by the presence of the German concentrations, despite the reported Allied need of all possible motorized units to battle the German offensive through Belgium.

The mobilized Swiss army toiled day and night perfecting fortifications of the Winkelried Line, while thousands of women, boys and aged men volunteered for "home guard" duty and received rifles and 40 cartridges each.

WPA 'Misdeeds' Cited in House, $975,000,000 Bill Indorsed

1941 Appropriation Measure Reaches Floor For Action Today

Agencies' Offenses Range From Minor To Major, Probers Say

By John B. Oakes

President Roosevelt's proposal for a 1941 WPA bill of $975,650,000—to be spent in eight months if necessary—was indorsed yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee and will be brought up on the floor today.

If the WPA funds are all expended in the first eight months of the fiscal year, an average of 1,950,000 workers will be provided for, contrasted with 2,042,000 for the current year.

The measure, which embraces a total of $1,112,000,000 for all the Government's relief activities, is $543,000,000 less than the appropriation for the current 12 months, and $14,000,000 under 1941 budget estimates.

Although on the eight-month basis the WRA appropriation is proportionately almost as much as for this year, sharp reductions were made in grants for the Farm Security Administration and the Office of Government Reports.

Farm Security's rural rehabilitation work was cut to $115,000,000—$28,000,000 below this year and $8,-

Asserting that the WPA had been guilty of "misdeeds" running "all the way from minor abuses to major offenses," the House committee appointed last year to investigate the relief agency issued 1,979 pages of hearings and reports yesterday on the eve of consideration of the 1941 relief bill.

"Improvement of private property at public expense, lack of proper supervision, employment of persons not in need, operation of projects of doubtful public utility, padded sponsors' contributions, purchase of excess equipment" were some of the "chief sources of abuse of public funds," the committee declared.

In a summary of the investigation, J. O'Connor Roberts, committee counsel, said that the inquiry shows the head office of the WPA in Washington "appears to be greatly overstaffed," that the Washington office has "lack of knowledge of what is going on in the States," and that traveling expenses of the WPA are "excessive."

The committee investigation revealed that Deputy Commissioner Howard Hunter had incurred travel expenses of $17,730 in five and a

Invaders' Drive Checked in Hard Fighting After Louvain Falls

By Robert G. Nixon
International News Service Staff Writer

With The British Expeditionary Force in Belgium, May 15.—Germany tonight opened a mighty battle for capture of Brussels, after five days of incessant aerial and artillery bombardment in which the famous university city of Louvain was reduced to a deserted shambles.

As the Allies were pushed back to the Dyle River only 18 miles east of the Belgian capital, German shells set whole streets afire in Louvain and causing many civilian casualties.

[The wholesale bombing of Brussels was presaged in a German high command communique charging that in violation of the Belgian government's word, Allied troops are moving through the city, making it in their view a legitimate military objective.

[In case the Belgian government really is in earnest to save the city of Brussels the horrors of war, the communique said, "all military transports and marching through the town must cease immediately and the building of defenses must be suspended . . ."]

[A British communique told of "hard fighting" today in which their troops "successfully held serious German attacks," the Associated Press said.

Liege Forts Hold Out

A Belgian communique said the Liege forts still were holding out, although apparently surrounded since Saturday.

[The Belgians said their troops had encountered only "light enemy forces," and that demolition of bridges and roads still was going on "successfully" and delaying enemy movements.]

For the second time in a quarter century, Louvain, beloved by Americans whose contributions restored the famed library there after the World War, was practically ruined.

All along the whole front held by the British army in Belgium there fell the pounding fury of the German attack.

Fresh from their five-day conquest of Holland, the German army turned with all its mechanized might in the direction of Brussels. The Reich's aim was to separate the Allied forces and take the Belgian capital as it was taken in August, 1914.

British Dig In

Facing the Germans were thick forces of British, who since Friday have moved up from France and dug in along a line east of Brussels from the Dutch border to the Meuse River and the French frontier.

Heaviest fighting is now centered in the Louvain sector. Its university was built more than 500 years ago, and its cathedral is one of the most famous in Belgium. Both the university library and

'Greatest' Raid by British

London, (Thursday) May 16 (AP). The British Royal Air Force last night made its biggest attack of the war on German road and rail communications east of the Rhine, the air ministry announced.

Tons of bombs were dropped to disrupt the German drive on the Low Country front, according to the air ministry.

The text of the air ministry's announcement:

"The Royal Air Force last night carried out east of the Rhine a big offensive against the enemy's road and rail communications which are supporting his forces in their invasion of the Low Countries and Luxembourg.

"The attacks lasted throughout the night and many tons of bombs were released. Road and rail communications were attacked at many points, fires brike out and heavy explosions were caused.

"This was the heaviest attack yet made by the Royal Air Force during the war."

The thrust apparently was a follow-up for a blasting attack by 150 explosive-laden warplanes during the day yesterday

That fleet was said then to have been the largest of any massed by the Allies for a single raid and, according to the Air Ministry, it helped halt the German drive in the Meuse-Sedan sector.

London, May 15.—The biggest fleet of Allied bombers massed for an attack in this war, 150 planes, raked German lines converging on the Meuse at Sedan with such effect, the air ministry announced today, that yesterday's German advance in that sector was halted.

Dropping as low as 100 feet over columns of German soldiers, tanks, guns and trucks, the Allied bombers struck in waves, destroying bridges, blocking roads with wrecked war machinery, scattering marching troops, and breaking up concentrations behind the lines.

Accompanying pursuit planes drove off attacking German aviation.

35 Planes Lost

The effectiveness of the Allied air counterattack was so great that even the reported loss of 35 French and British planes was declared "not excessive."

Correspondents with the British Expeditionary Force in Belgium telegraphed that the Allied air arm was fighting the Germans to a standstill.

Since the German offensive started in Belgium, more than 147 German planes have been brought down by them, the British said in a communique on Wednesday's battles. The air force brought

A. F. L. Condemns Invasions, Warns U. S. Must Avoid War

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor yesterday condemned Nazi Germany's invasion of Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, and at the same time insisted that "the United States should remain out of the war."

The declaration was made public at a press conference held by William Green, president of the A. F. of L., in the Washington Hotel.

Among those who attended was Westbrook Pegler, who, in his daily column in The Washington Post, exposed Willie Bioff, George Scalise and other officers of the A. F. of L. unions who have criminal records.

President Green, after reading the executive council's declaration concerning the war, noted the presence of Pegler.

"I understand," he said, "that our comrade and friend, Pegler, is here. We are glad to meet him."

"That's mutual," said Pegler.

"I am glad you are here," continued Green, "and I am sure the council will be glad to meet you."

"Thank you, Mr. Green," said Pegler.

The A. F. of L. leader suggested that Pegler might like to say something to the members of the council.

"I'd rather not take the witness stand," Pegler said. "I'll say mine in print."

The council's statement condemning Germany said:

"These latest explosions in Europe were not unexpected. We predicted last February that if Soviet Russia's invasion of Finland were suc-

Armies Struggle Tank-to-Tank, Squad-to-Squad In Giant Melee

By G. H. Archambault

Paris, May 15.—With all the force at its command the German army hurled itself today against the Allies on a 60-mile front along the River Meuse from Namur to Sedan.

[Along the entire battle line, from the Moselle River to the North Sea, it was believed the Allied armies—French, British and Belgian, were disposing approximately 1,000,000 men, while Berlin reports indicated the German armies in Belgium approached 2,000,000. Paris newspapers put French troops on the Meuse Front at about 300,000, the Belgians were believed to have more than 400,000 and the British between 250,000 and 300,000. Editor's note.]

The Allies fought back hard. First a formidable mass of airplanes flying low bombed and machine-gunned the advanced infantry lines, soon to be followed by armored divisions.

By nightfall the Germans had crossed the Meuse at three points and penetrated the Allied positions on the left bank. This is in addition to the penetration south of Sedan reported yesterday.

True to their tactics of the Polish campaign the German armored divisions deployed fanwise and pressed on, their planes meanwhile swooping over the whole battle area to attack all formations in sight.

Gigantic Street Fight

The fray developed into an infinity of local actions—Allied infantry coming to grips with the German infantry supports as they poured out of trucks, groups of tanks engaging other groups, planes meeting other planes.

In one place a division might be pitted against a division, in another it was a case of squad against squad. There was little artillery fire.

The exact positions of the respective forces cannot be indicated tonight. Indeed, the battle is in a state of ebb and flow. The war of position has ended, to be replaced by a war of swift movement with sudden successes and equally sudden reverses.

Nevertheless, an authorized military spokesman declared tonight that some of the breaches have been filled and that every disposition has been taken to meet the enemy.

The fact that the situation is serious is admitted, but it is added that it is by no means desperate. It is not concealed, either, that the struggle will be hard and merciless.

The French communique tonight follows:

"At many points between Ant-

Gunfire Shakes Houses 60 Miles Across North Sea

London, May 15 (AP).—Gunfire believed to be from battles raging in Belgium and France tonight shook houses at Deal on the southeast coast of England, 60 miles across the North Sea from the juncture of Belgium and France at the coast.

Vibrations which lasted a full minute rattled doors and windows in Deal.

Each rumbling was heard approaching like a mighty wind, first murmuring in the distance and then rumbling in a violent crescendo. In the last World War the sound of big guns in Flanders, some 80 miles across the North Sea, was heard in England.

ATTACK BY PARACHUTE

(How it might seem if enemy troops dropped down on Washington.)

FLASH: Enemy airplanes flew up the Potomac early this morning from an island base at the mouth of Chesapeake Bay, long used as a shooting club by wealthy foreigners. They dropped several hundred parachute soldiers simultaneously at strategic points in the Capital area.

BULLETIN: Every airport in the Capital, including Bolling Field, the Naval Air Station and Washington Airport, is reported in possession of parachute soldiers. They wear uniforms resembling those of the Capital Park police. A few bombs were dropped, one striking Columbia Hospital.

* * * *

FLASH: About forty parachute soldiers have landed in the White House grounds. A few dropped outside the iron fence. Secret Service men are firing at them from the south portico.

They are also under fire from the windows of the State and Treasury buildings. One plane brushed the Washington Monument with a wing and crashed in the Oval.

* * * *

BULLETIN: A score of parachutists have landed near the Lincoln Memorial. Several fell in the reflecting pool, but converged on the Memorial steps. A guard who told them they couldn't take a machine gun up there was shot in the stomach. One enemy gunner fired a burst which chipped the Lincoln statue.

"—Congressman is early casualty"

FLASH: Parachutists have seized the dirigible hangar at Washington Airport and control the Virginia end of the Highway Bridge.

A Congressman emerging from a passenger plane was shot in the fleshy part of the thigh. Enemy planes painted exactly like American passenger planes have landed with more troops.

BULLETIN: Led by two local civilians wearing military caps, parachutists who landed in Lafayette Square have captured the radio station on Fourteenth street. With a remarkable imitation of the voice of a regular announcer, they broadcast a warning that the parachute attack was merely a practice maneuver by the U. S. Air Corps.

* * * *

FLASH: Parachutists who landed on the Mall near the National Museum failed in an attempt to seize the nearby CBS radio station. They fortified themselves in the Apex Building commanding the Capitol. Station WJSV broadcast an appeal for aid from Fort Myer, Quantico and Annapolis, which have been out of touch.

Phone wires were cut by enemy "fifth column" leaders who met their air troops. Many American planes are in flames. General Marshall estimated that 1,600 parachutes have landed.*

* * * *

FLASH: Five seaplanes loaded with midshipmen from Annapolis landed in the Potomac and are attacking the parachutists on the bordering airports. The enemy announcer at the captured radio station has warned that civilians attacking the parachutists will be shot as snipers, and officers on duty at the Navy and Munitions buildings have phoned their wives to bring their uniforms downtown.

"—seized the Lincoln Memorial"

BULLETIN: Parachutists who landed on the Capitol Plaza captured the Capitol without resistance. A group of Senators have barricaded themselves on the dome. Enemy gunners who attacked the Supreme Court Building were met by Justices McReynolds and Frankfurter, who showed fight. McReynolds struck at a parachutist with his cane and received a slight scalp wound.

FLASH: A War Department communique estimates the number of attacking planes at between 40 and 120. Parachutists have landed at Dupont Circle and their guns command all streets. They have seized two telephone offices and the Press Club bar.

A lady at the Shoreham telephoned police that planes are flying low over Rock Creek Park in violation of a district ordinance. Several American planes have appeared.

BULLETIN: Saboteurs have put the main power house out of commission. A second wave of enemy planes bombed airports and the Munitions Building at 10:50 a. m. Troops are converging on the Capital from nearby army stations. The President will broadcast from his study at noon if a national hookup can be established. . . . Fortunately, it can't happen here.

Kilgore Wins, Sen. Holt Third In Field of Four

Neely Victorious In Democratic Gubernatorial Race

Charleston, W. Va., May 15 (AP).—Rush Dew Holt, West Virginia's 35-year-old Senator, critic of President Roosevelt and the New Deal, has lost his battle to return to Washington.

Holt, who, in 1935, had to wait a month until he was 30 years old to take his Senate seat, ran third in a field of four for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator from West Virginia, returns from yesterday's State-wide primary showed.

Harley M. Kilgore, of Beckley, criminal court judge, was nominated for Holt's post, having a 14,000-vote margin over former Gov. H. G. Kump, with a few scattering precincts unreported. Kilgore teamed up in the campaign with United States Senator Matthew M. Neely, who won the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Both Kilgore and Neely ran as all-the-way supporters of President Roosevelt.

Backed by the Congress of Industrial Organization and its 100,000-strong United Mine Workers, Neely decisively defeated R. Carl Andrews, Democratic State chairman.

Unofficial returns gave the following figures for major offices:

Democratic nomination for Governor, 2,101 of 2,379 precincts, Neely 195,744, Andrews 161,352.

Democratic nomination for United States Senate, 2,096 precincts, Kilgore 104,916, Kump 97,729, Holt 70,602.

Republican nomination for Governor, 2,096 precincts, Mayor D. Boone Dawson, of Charleston, 99,414, Judge Lewis H. Miller, of Ripley, 72,092.

Republican nomination for Senate 1,976 precincts, State Senator Thomas B. Sweeney, of Wheeling, 67,449, former Congressman Carl G. Bachman, of Wheeling, 50,973, former Gov. E. F. Morgan, of Fairmont, 27,132, Circuit Judge D. H. Rodgers, of Martinsburg, 24,081.

Holt, son of a Weston, W. Va., physician, who stepped from the West Virginia State Senate to the United States Senate, made no statement but friends insisted his career was by no means at an end—that sooner or later he would be a candidate once again.

Davey's Margin Widens

Columbus, Ohio, May 15 (AP).—Ohio's major parties made quick attempts tonight to heal primary wounds as two insurgents, Republican Harold H. Burton and Democrat Martin L. Davey, rolled up decisive totals in the principal races.

Burton, Cleveland's 51-year-old mayor, won the Republican United States Senatorial nomination by about 70,000 votes over Representative Dudley A. White, Norwalk editor, and in November will oppose John McSweeney, veteran Democratic Congressman, for the seat from which Vic Donahey, Democrat, is retiring.

Davey, two-term former governor and frequent critic of the Roosevelt Administration, ran about 170,000 votes ahead of former Gov. George A. White in nearly complete returns. Gov. John W. Bricker was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Latest returns from Ohio's 8,264 precincts showed:

Republican senatorial — Burton, 290,789; Dudley White, 224,334; Charles Wharton, 38,862 (8,280 precincts.)

Democratic governor—Davey, 282,199; George White, 114,829; William J. Kennedy, 75,211 (8,059 precincts.)

PRESIDENT WILLIAM GREEN COLUMNIST WESTBROOK PEGLER

Green is shown as he read the declaration of the executive council of the A. F. of L. condemning the Nazi invasion of Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg. Pegler, who, in his daily column in The Post and other newspapers, exposed officers of the A. F. of L. who have criminal records, attended the press conference yesterday called by Green. It wasn't until after reading the declaration that Green noted the presence of the columnist cessful the next victims of the Nazi-Soviet alliance would be Belgium, the Netherlands and the Scandinavian countries.

"We saw then, and it has become obvious now, that the purpose of the dictators of Germany and Russia is to seize every democratic nation and subjugate every free people in Europe.

"We in America are a peace-loving people. The executive council of the American Federation of Labor does not see how the entry of the United States into the European war would serve the cause of peace.

"On the contrary, we feel that if we steadfastly maintain our neutrality we will be in a better position to aid in the reconstruction of Europe when the war is over.

"On behalf of the workers of this country, we make the flat declaration that the United States should remain out of the war."

The council recommended a three-point program, as follows:

"1. This country must quickly strengthen and modernize its defenses, taking advantage of the lessons in new military techniques which the present European war affords.

"2. We must not let emotion unbalance our clear thinking nor contribute to the development of war psychology. Rash and hysterical statements should especially be avoided by those in a position to influence public opinion.

"3. We must redouble our vigilance against treachery and the creation of 'Trojan Horse' organizations by Soviet and Nazi adherents in this country."

Page 1 Ranks First, Comics Next In Popularity

More newspaper readers read the comic strips than any other section of the paper except page one, Wilder Breckenridge, sales manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association's bureau of advertising, last night told the Washington Advertising Club.

In an illustrated lecture at the Raleigh Hotel, he told what people read in newspapers and why. He also analyzed a Nation-wide survey taken by the Advertising Research Foundation, Inc.

Eighty-three per cent of the men interviewed read the comic strips, as did 79 per cent of the women. About 95 per cent of both sexes read the first page.

'Make America Strong' May Be G. O. P. Campaign Cry

A. G. O. P. campaign watchword of "Make America Strong," was urged yesterday by one Republican spokesman as both parties reviewed election strategy and shifted emphasis to international developments.

F. Trubee Davison, chairman of the United Republican Finance Committee and former Assistant Secretary of War, condemned Nazi conquests as "a crime against all humanity."

With Democratic third-term opposition steadily melting, Chairman Prentiss Brown, of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, declared that war developments assure President Roosevelt's nomination and election if he runs.

Davison, in an open letter to "several thousand" members of the United Republican Finance Committee, demanded "that a government be installed in Washington which will make us so strong that no foreign foe will dare to molest us, which will see to it that ways are found to solve our domestic crises so that we will be a Nation united."

Davison asserted that despite America's determination to remain at peace, "there can be no blitzkreig against human liberties that will find us supine, no Fifth Column of futility that will go unchallenged."

He said the invasion cast into sharp relief the United States "unpreparedness to defend ourselves, a liability which the present Administration only now is moving to remedy."

In Indianapolis, Wendell L. Willkie, utility executive and a dark horse Republican prospect, opposed changing campaign stress from the domestic front. Willkie said he would be "joyed to run against Mr. Roosevelt, because he's the ablest advocate of the New Deal. If the Republicans are wise, they'll hold him right to the domestic issue, which is the fact that he's spent $60,000,000,000 and we have 10,000,000 unemployed, just as we had when he started."

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, whose backers have been stressing his foreign affairs knowledge since the Lowland invasion, picked up a New York convention delegate yesterday on that argument.

Melvin C. Eaton, of Norwich, N. Y., former chairman of the New York State Republican committee and a delegate to the Philadelphia convention, announced he would support Vandenberg.

Vandenberg will address the Michigan Republican State convention in Grand Rapids today. Michigan Republicans were predicting he would receive the State's G. O. P. Presidential indorsement.

The draft Roosevelt movement's third-term bandwagon received another shove as the South Carolina Democratic convention instructed its delegation to vote for President Roosevelt. The South Carolina convention voted 238½ to 106½ to support Roosevelt.

Defeat in the West Virginia Virginia primaries of young Senator Rush D. Holt, who had promised to sponsor a Senate anti-third term resolution, also was hailed by "Draft Roosevelt" leaders as a Roosevelt victory.

House Conferees Refuse Funds for Antarctic

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd returned to Washington yesterday to find House and Senate deadlocked over a proposition to spend $250,000 to keep 59 scientists and explorers at Antarctic bases 11,000 miles away.

House conferees on the Interior Department appropriation bill, to which the Senate had added the item, stood by an earlier decision to spend no more money on South Pole explorations.

Representative Edward T. Taylor, House Appropriations Committee chairman and a member of the conference, said he didn't think this was the time to "be spending money for that sort of thing." Taylor observed that the Admiral had said no way had been found for commercial exploitation of the Antarctic.

Two appropriation requests went to the House for the United States Antarctic Service, as the expedition is known. One was for money to continue the explorations. The other was for $171,000 to evacuate the expedition. The House refused to consider either. The Senate voted the $250,000 for continuance.

The expedition is virtually without funds, it was learned. All the original appropriation of $350,000 has either been spent or obligated.

Refueling Pioneer To Get Air Cross

SEIFERT

Secretary of War Woodring Friday will present to Frank W. Seifert formerly a captain in the Army's Air Reserve Corps, the Distinguished Flying Cross for his participation in the Army refueling endurance flight at San Diego June 28, 1923.

The flight was the first successful experiment in refueling a plane in tre air. Later a posthumous award of the Distinguished Flying Cross will be made to Maj. Virgil Hine. Seifert and Hine were in the refueling plane.

Allied Setbacks Expected, Says Australian

'Great Light to Go Out' If Germany Wins, Casey Tells Law Fete

Reverses now being suffered by the armies of France and England were expected by the Allies who are "prepared to pay the price for God knows how long," the newest member of Washington's Diplomatic Corps, Richard G. Casey, the Australian minister, declared last night.

Making his first public appearance since the World War moved to the Western Front, Casey, Australia's first envoy to the United States, told the annual banquet of the American Society International Law:

"We are going through the tortures of the damned but please don't believe we are downhearted."

Hull Present

Sitting near the minister was Secretary of State Hull, president of the society, who attended the gathering at the Carlton Hotel that included diplomats of other nations.

Casey pointed out that democracies, as opposed to dictatorships, are "slow starters in war," believing that "the normal state of affairs is a state of peace." He spoke confidently of the ultimate success of the Allies, then added, ominously, that "if by some evil chance Germany should be victorious, a great light would go out in the world and it is unlikely that it would be relighted in our time."

He denied that the Allies are fighting Hitler, but rather the "aggressive spirit of the German people of which the present manifestation is Hitlerism."

He observed that there is hardly a home in Australia today that "hasn't a chair emptied by the last war." He declared that "whatever happens" Australia is "in this struggle with Great Britain and France to the last man and the last penny that Christian civilization may survive in the world."

He was followed by Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, who declared that, "If we keep the lamp of peace lighted, America will cure more blackouts than she will if she attempts to light the lamp of peace again after destroying half the blackouts."

Thomas held that the United States could not remain consistent with her national policy and enter either into the war in the West or the conflict in the East.

The third banquet speaker, Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette College, declared the conversion of the plane and other machines of progress to be the "result of an education that has been practical." He urged teaching American youth "what to love and what to hate." He advocated the rewriting of history books to rid them of nationalist tenets, an improved system of cultural exchange among nations through wider transfer of students and the addition of "educational attaches" to diplomatic missions.

Associate Justices Reed, Douglas and Stone and Attorney General Jackson were among guests last night at a dinner of the American Law Institute, prelude to the opening of a three-day meeting.

Harry Thomas Funeral Today

Funeral services for Harry Thomas, 82, of New York City, father of Glegge Thomas, Washington representative of a machinery manufacturing concern, will be at 11 a. m. today in Gawler's funeral home.

Mr. Thomas, a native of Liverpool, England, was a frequent visitor to Washington. He died at a Miami (Fla.) hospital Monday after a three-weeks illness. He was the district sales manager for the National Biscuit Co.

Surviving besides his son are two brothers, Glegge, of Liverpool; and Tysilio, of St. Petersburg, Fla. Burial will be in the Abbey Mausoleum, Arlington, Va.

1,000 Jam Hall to See Einstein, Who Explains What He's Saying

Dr. Albert Einstein, scientist who fled his native Germany and subsequently became a lifetime professor at the Institute of Advance Study, Princeton, N. J., as he spoke before the American Scientific Congress here yesterday

By Gerald G. Grosz
Post Staff Writer

A meek, white-haired man, his bewildered expression belying the presence behind it of the world's greatest mathematical brain, dominated the American Scientific Congress yesterday.

The more than 1,000 delegates, Washington scientists, students and —glimpsed here and there in the Interiour Building auditorium—Government clerks who came to hear Dr. Albert Einstein went away gratified, although his message was a pessimistic one.

He said, in substance, that physics, the most fundamental of sciences, is still without a theoretical basis which can be regarded as its logical foundation. That his own theory of relativity and the quantum theory and many others which have been expounded since Newton's day are inadequate and his pessimism is increasing as to the prospects of a solution.

Invited to the Capital to address a special session of the congress, Dr. Einstein began his lecture with the observation:

"One can wonder how, in times such as these, I can speak of such remote things as theoretical physics. But the violence now going on abroad will be forgotten in a few years, while the achievements of human thought will last hundreds of years."

A foundation of the whole of physics he defined as "a unifying theoretical basis for all these single sciences, consisting of a minimum of concepts and fundamental relationships, from which all the concepts and relationships of the single disciplines might be derived by logical process."

"The confident belief that this ultimate goal may be reached is the chief source of the passionate devotion which has always animated the researcher," Dr. Einstein said, making clear that he is neither discouraged nor impatient.

The relativity and quantum theories, while not directly contradicting each other, are hardyy adapted to fusion into one unified theory, he declared.

The famous scientist, who fled his native Germany shortly after Hitler came to power and subsequently became a lifetime professor at the Institute of Advanced Study in Princeton, N. J., said research has revolutionized man's existence and "given birth to the possibility that man may at last be freed from the burden of physical toil."

Dr. Einstein said he numbers himself among those who "cannot believe that we must abandon, actually and forever, the idea of direct representation of physical reality in space and time, or that we must accept the view that events in nature are analagous to a game of chance."

Cognizant of the abstruseness of his lecture, even to many of the learned physicists, Dr. Einstein frequently departed from his prepared text with an introductory, "This means . . .," followed by an extemporaneous explanation of what had just gone before.

His charming sense of humor manifested itself at an impromptu press conference after the lecture.

To questions as he sat on a backstage staircase, and while an electrician looked on curiously from the stage wing, he replied that his chief difficulty lies in attempting to explain the "molecularity of nature," that there are no new tools at his command. Quoting him:

"It is extremely difficult to determine what differential equations contain. Once that is learned, one wonders whether one may believe what one sees."

He smiled when he said that.

Second only to Dr. Einstein's address in popular interest on the sixth day's agenda of the scientific congress was the illustrated lecture of Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard College observatory.

Shown by Dr. Shapley for the first time in the United States were motion pictures of the sun's corona made with the coronagraph, the inventin of a young Frenchman, Bernard Lyot.

Hitherto it has been possible to make pictures, either still or motion, of the tongues of flame projecting from the sun only during a total eclipse.

With the coronagraph, Dr. Shapley explained, pictures may be made whenever the weather is not inclement. The instrument employs a diaphragm, or "artificial moon," which permits the leaping, dancing, billowing sheets of fire to be captured on film.

Government Cafeterias Give Carmody an Ultimatum

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

An ironic ultimatum offering to close ten Government building cafeterias the moment the Federal Works Agency attempts to take them over has been issued by the Welfare and Recreation Association, operator of the cafeterias, it was learned yesterday.

The association's proposal, ironic in agreeing to withdraw "without protest" from operating the cafeterias as soon as it is ordered to become a Government agency, has been sent to Federal Works Administrator John Carmody and other Government officials.

If both sides went ahead with their current plans it would upset the luncheon routine of some 20,000 to 25,000 Government workers, it was estimated. The cafeterias involved in the mixup are those in buildings operated by the Public Buildings Administration, a division of the Federal Works Agency.

They represent, it was estimated, about 75 per cent of the association's $3,000,000 cafeteria service.

What action Carmody will take now is still undecided, Federal works officials said.

Carmody says the association is properly a Government agency.

The association says it isn't, and cannot properly become a Government agency.

Against this line-up, unbroken for nearly four months, the offer to withdraw from operating cafaterias in buildings controlled by the Federal Works Agency came as the first drastic effort to break the deadlock.

The association attacked the legality of these two proposals by the Federal Works Agency:

That the association be formally declared an instrumentality of the Federal Works Agency, subject to the supervision of the Public Buildings Commissioner.

That all property of the association be declared a trust fund, of which the United States shall be the beneficial owner, the Public Buildings Commissioner the trustee, and the association the custodian.

In its own defense the association said that the Corporation Counsel of the District, the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and other Government agencies had accepted its status as a private, charitable corporation. It declared that the Federal Works Agency cannot legally take over control and that the trustees of the association cannot legally agree to such action.

The association, it was understood, suggested these new working arrangements.

An agreement to make sure that if the association dissolved, the Government would receive title to all property and assets. The association said its trustees and active members have never thought of distributing assets to private individuals, but added that if the agency feared this move might come in the future, they would be glad to consider the agreement.

by a terrific air onslaught on England.

Antwerp Menaced

The German military authorities asserted today that Antwerp is menaced from the north and east, and as German forces move into Dutch Zeeland, a third threat will come from the west.

They asserted German forces after crossing the Meuse south of Namur were pressing forward toward Brussels over a wide sector.

The supreme command said a counterattack by French tanks on the west bank of the Meuse—on Belgian territory—was defeated and that German fighter and "destroyer" planes had wiped out a large number of the enemy tanks.

The official news agency reported that, surrounded by German detachments, many of which are operating far to the westward, three more of the forts of the Liege defense system have been silenced.

The passage in the supreme command's bulletin relative to the German advance across the Meuse in the region of Sedan read:

"The prolongation northwestward of the Maginot Line has been broken through the crossing of the Meuse in the Sedan sector, which was carried out in closest collaboration with the air force. The vigorous French counterattack here was repulsed with heavy losses."

Drive May Spend Force

The exact significance of the German offensive in this area is not clear. The general view is that the advance which is obviously backed by strong forces being rushed down through the Ardennes, is intended as preliminary pressure—perhaps to be maintained—in preparation for the main drive of the German right wing through Belgium into northwestern France.

The reference to a "swinging door" movement aptly describes the German right wing operation at the beginning of the last war, but is somewhat less apt today, since unquestionably an effort will be made to utilize the troops released by the capitulation of Holland to deliver a hammer blow in the north.

Under the plan, all these forces may seek to drive down the Belgian coast to form the extreme right wing.

Despite all the advantages which the Germans may seem to enjoy in the great offensive to the westward, the question arises as to how long with heavy losses, the pace can be kept up. As it covers territory an offensive, as shown in the last war, tends to spend its force. In general this may prove to be the case in the air as well as on land.

Claiming the destruction yesterday of a total of 200 Allied planes, the German supreme command asserted that the number destroyed in actual areial combat, 170, was the greatest on any single day since the war began.

Symphony Fund Drive to Be Closed Officially Today

More than 700 volunteer workers in the National Symphony Orchestra campaign hope to climax their efforts to raise $107,600 for the 1940-41 season at a final report luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today in the Carlton Hotel.

The drive for funds, which opened ten days ago, is officially scheduled to close today.

At the last official report on Monday $63,887, or 59 per cent of the quota, had been realized. The campaign opened May 6.

Guests of honor at today's luncheon will include Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the orchestra; Mrs. George Marshall, wife of the chief of staff of the Army; Dr. William McClellan, past president of the board of directors of the orchestra; Joseph Miller, director of labor, National Association of Broadcasters, and Mrs. Miller; Samuel Rosenbaum, vice president, Philadelphia Orchestra Association; and five members of the symphony orchestra, Walter Howe, Jacques van Kingbergen, Howard Mitchell and Mrs. Mitchell, Milton Schwartz and Jacob Wishnow.

the sober judgment of "our most responsible" defense experts, the committee said:

"From the evidence available it appears that if we build and maintain an adequate navy, provide ourselves with adequate air power and a comparatively small, but well-trained and highly efficient Army, we cannot be defeated. If our fleet supplemented by our air forces, is able to exercise control of our essential sea and air communications, our Nation is secure. . . .

"The view that in order to be sure of retaining our freedom and defending our institutions against armed agression, we ought to fight now rather than face the possibility of having to fight victorious totalitarian nations at a later date, is based upon an erroneous evaluation of plain, hard military facts and the lessons of the past."

Demands for an investigation of national defense were raised in the Senate as the report was received. Senator Lodge (Rpublican), of Massachusetts, unsuccessfully sought action late in the day on his resolution for an inquiry.

Barkley Blocks Vote

Majority Leader Barkley blocked an immediate vote on the inquiry by insisting it be first considered by the Senate Military Affairs Committee, Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, suppported Lodge.

"I am opposed to pouring any more billions down the same rathole before we find out what the brass-hats have done with the $7,000,000,000 they've already received," he said. "We hear the Army has only 58 airplanes that are not obsolete. Congress is entitled to know how and where this money was spent."

Despite this tempest and the Senate committee's plea for emphasis on naval defense, a majority of Congress appeared ready to accept President Roosevelt's proposals, which they are informed deal mostly with strengthening the Army.

The supplemental program is said to provide about $250,000,000 for the Navy to speed up construction of warships now under-way, and about $725,000,000 for Army needs. These sources say $262,000,000 will go to complete the War Department's Protective Mobilization Plan by furnishing the arms and mechanized equipment for a 1,000,000-man army.

In addition, these circles say that funds will be asked for increasing the number of antiaircraft regiments from 37 to 68, providing about $44,000,000 for expanding munitions plants and powder plants, expanding the Regular Army from 227,000 to 242,000 men and training 7,000 additional pilots annually; about $80,000,000 for additional large bombers, plus $23,000,000 for providing the Army's warplanes with self-sealing gas tanks and armor, and about $8,000,000 for educational orders to train private companies in making munitions.

Other developments were:

Secretary Woodring informed Congress he favored spending $500,000,000 for building up a reserve of strategic war materials not produced in the United States, and asked that it authorize immediately an emergency military post construction fund of $15,000,000.

President Roosevelt signed bills to expedite Army enlistments in war-time and enlarge the Army Medical Corps.

The Army sent a group of air experts to Ottawa, Canada, to inspect one of Britain's newest fighting planes, the Spitfire.

The Senate began debate on legislation to lower the Army retirement age and promote some 2,000 officers.

Representatives of the shipbuilding industry testified before the House Naval Affairs Committee on means of speeding the construction of warships, urging suspension of the Walsh-Healy and other labor acts and that the Navy complete its plans sooner and avoid later changes.

Rear Admiral A. H. VanKeuren, testifying before the same committee, protested against the committeemen using naval officials as "whipping boys" in connection with delays in shipbuilding, contending that the lag had occurred only on vessels of "novel design."

The Senate Naval Committee, in its report on the $655,000,000 naval expansion bill, declared the United States is an insular power in a military sense and that the armies and air forces of Europe and Asia "cannot seriously threaten our continental security" if we command the seas.

"Our geographical situation considered, together with that of our potential enemies, the report said, "reveals at once that we can depend primarily upon a Navy for our security and that we should adopt a predominately naval policy as the keystone of our national defense.

"We need not form military alliances to maintain a balance of power; we need not maintain large land military establishments as in Europe or Asia to insure safety for our country. We need only a Navy—but a Navy sufficiently strong to meet and defeat the enemy at sea before he reaches our shores—and an Army and Air Force of sufficient strength to make our Navy free to act."

Reliance on air power alone or a strictly defensive plan for safeguarding the United States would fail, the committee declares. Airplanes, it was said, have not yet seriously affected the British control of the seas, and even if Nazi planes do crush Britain, their short range need not affect an American nation with an adequate navy.

Lacking a strong fleet, however, the Nation could be defeated in war by a blockade and air raids from carriers, the report said, even though enemy armies or navies did not approach our shores.

"With the loss of our outlying possessions, our foreign commerce and subject to continual raids upon our coastal areas, our ultimate defeat is inevitable," the committee stated.

Reject Intervention

Urging the United States reject any thought of intervention in European or Asiatic wars in forming a defense policy, the report declared:

"Can anyone see how we could possibly accomplish anything worth the sacrifices of human lives, of resources, and possible loss of our free institutions, that will be demanded of us by our participation?

"It is an axiom of military strategy that military power can always be exercised more efficiently and to much greater effect within a reasonable radius of action than it can by fighting thousands of miles away."

The committee recommended immediate passage of the 11 per cent fleet expansion bill, followed by the appropriation this session of $46,000,000 to start construction at once of the 68 ships authorized by the measure or prior acts. It also proposed strengthening the Panama Canal and its approaches, with "serious consideration" being given to acquiring foreign territory in the Caribbean for additional submarine and air bases.

More of such bases should be established in Alaska, and in the mid-Pacific while Guam should be made a "link in our scheme of national defense by developing its harbors and facilities and maintaining there an operating force of submarines and long-range patrol planes."

Concluding its summary of our defense needs, the committee declared:

"Our Army must be adequate to defend the bases from which our fleet and our aircraft operate. We must, in addition, have an airforce capable of being concentrated on either coast, superior in number to the greatest number of carrier-borne and catapulted aircraft possessed by any naval power or conceivable combination of powers and powerful enough to prevent an enemy from establishing in either ocean a base in this hemisphere while our fleet is engaging the enemy's fleet."

Titanic Battle Rages on Meuse, Tank-to-Tank and Man-to-Man

werp and the northwest of Namur violent enemy tank attacks on Belgian, British and French troops have been repulsed.

"On the Meuse between Mezieres and Namur the enemy succeeded in crossing the river at several points and fighting continues.

"In the region of Sedan, where the enemy had made some progress, counterattacks are being launched supported by tanks and bomber planes.

"More to the east there have been artillery actions. Our air force has continued its reconnaissance. Our fighters intervened chiefly to protect bombers. In these encounters 11 enemy planes were brought down."

Mezieres is 20 miles west of Sedan and 50 miles south of Namur. The Maginot Line does not extend to Mezieres; its span is from the Rhine westward to Montmedy, 23 miles east of Sedan. But it has been extended westward since the war began in the form of what are technically described as "consolidated field works," mostly pill boxes, tank pits and the like.

Roughly speaking, the battle is being fought on the western part of Flanders Plain. As a prelude, the Belgians had withdrawn southward while the main bodies of the French and British troops moved into position and deployed. The Germans sought to disturb these movements by launching several attacks, notably at Gembloux, which lies on the highway from Namur to Brussels, some 10 miles from the former town and 30 from Brussels.

Since the Allies were obviously about to consolidate their position in order to obtain a continuous front, the enemy offensive on the Meuse followed today to prevent this.

The German purpose here seems to be to break through in order to outflank the Allied forces in Belgium from the south, while simultaneously attempting to cut the French line of defense near Sedan. Yesterday the enemy had succeeded not only in forcing a passage across the Meuse, but in forming a pocket some five miles deep southwest of Sedan between that town and the point where the Chier River enters the Meuse, a distance of four or five miles.

Fighting there continues. Generally speaking, the importance of such pockets is not measured by their depth, but by their width, which in this case does not seem to exceed 4 miles. The narrower the point of entry the greater danger for the assailant of having created a trap for himself.

There is yet another battlefield, in the extreme north of Belgium in the vicinity of Antwerp, where some Dutch troops have joined the Belgians. These, in their turn, have been reinforced by French units. For the moment they bar the roads to Antwerp and Brussels, but little news was received from that sector today.

All was quiet today on the Moselle-Rhine front.

500,000 Call Weather Robot In First Month

Washington's curiosity about the weather brought the telephone company a half-million calls in a month, it was reported last night.

From April 8 to May 8 the company's new weather announcing system gave local forecasts to 499,148 callers. Nearly 81,000 calls were made to WEather 1212 in the first three days the system was in operation.

Like the weather, the number of calls varies, company officials said. The peak day occurred on April 12, when Washington had a rain and snowstorm. The unusual weather, combined with the scheduled Cherry Blossom Festival, brought 35,645 requests for information. The lowest number of calls, 6,934, came on a day when the city enjoyed clear skies and balmy breezes. The average calls a day is 16,101, it was stated.

German Warplanes Spray Fleeing Refugees With Machine-Gun Bullets

Autos Bombed, Hideouts Along Roads Strafed

Peasants and Flocks Also Are Targets In Northern France

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, May 15 -Refugee cars for miles north of Paris have been fired on by German planes. Drivers and occupants all told the same story today.

German bombers have repeatedly flown over the roads with their rear machine gunners spraying the lines of cars and sides of the roads to depths of 50 to 100 feet in search of refugees taking shelter. Many were killed and more wounded, according to eyewitnesses.

The driver of one car told of a group of fleeing peasants leading their livestock near the Belgian frontier who had been machine-gunned mercilessly. As the peasants fled the bombers returned and machine gunned the horses and cattle. Some 20 head of sheep were wiped out by a bomb.

This man's car was literally riddled with bulletholes. He was fleeing with his two daughters. Twice in the space of a half-hour the Germans had machinegunned him. "I heard the bullets hit the car and stopped. We dived into a ditch, where we remained for some time, waiting for them to return. They did. This time they saw us, though we were dressed for the occasion in dark cloths. They flew over four times, machinegunning each time, until French chasers appeared and they fled."

The story was repeated with almost monotonous regularity by all drivers. Cars were held up at the frontier, not because of red tape, as erroneously reported elsewhere, but because the roads were needed for the military.

While they were awaiting permission to proceed the Germans would send over reconnaissance planes, which, detecting the parked cars, would immediately disappear. With an average of 15 minutes, bombers would appear and drop their loads on the parked cars. There were few killed in these raids, but many lost their few belongings, rescued before their flight.

down 124 of them while antiaircommunique said.

The air ministry said the Britons had destroyed permanent bridges and two pontoon bridges, and, with antiaircraft guns, brought down 15 German planes.

On the home front anxiety was sharpened by Berlin radio broadcasts that the Reich army was "standing at England's door" with fighters less than an hour by air.

"Germar planes," a German announcer warned, "have bases for direct attack against the whole of England . . . In this age of modern warfare, the insularity of the British Isles has ended."

British officials rushed their air defense program, issuing a new call for volunteers to train as pilots and air crews.

Minute Men Mobilize

The menace of an invasion by parachutists brought new streams of sharpshooters into police stations to join the force of minute men.

The admiralty announced tonight the British destroyer Valentine had been beached after being damaged by a German air attack off the coast of Holland.

Other German claims of British losses at sea were brushed aside earlier as "entirely groundless."

Neutral military experts meanwhile regarded it as virtually certain that a German swing through Switzerland around the French flank would be undertaken the moment the battle of the Meuse reaches the peak of its intensity.

This fear was based, in part at least, on the German radio announcement that conquest of the Netherlands had "freed essential forces to be shifted elsewhere at a moment's notice."

Tonight the British Broadcasting Co. began a series of talks on air-raid precautions to keep the population alert.

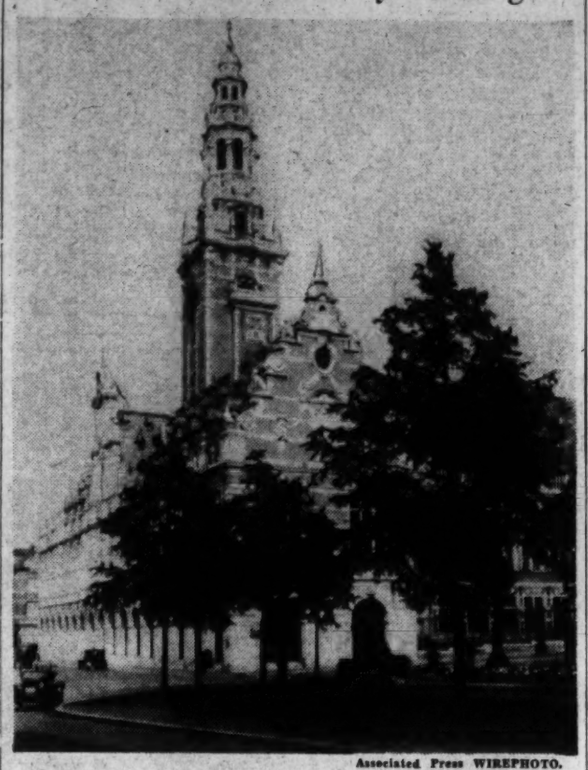
Spread of war to Norway and the Low Countries has removed the need for contraband control bases in the British Isles, and the three stations at Kirkwall in the Orkneys, and the Downs and Weymouth on the south coast of England, are being closed.

These bases no longer are necessary because neutral ships are not going to belligerent ports, an official explained, adding, however, that a skeleton staff is being maintained at Kirkwall to examine ships bound for Sweden. The remaining control bases are in the Mediterranean.

Twenty-seven minor appointments announced at No. 10 Downing street completed the new government of Prime Minister Churchill.

They included W. S. Morrison, former minister of food, who was named postmaster general; Sir Walter Womersley, who became minister of pensions, and Viscount Cranbourne, who was appointed paymaster general.

Louvain Landmark May Be Target



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

This is Louvain's famous university library, rebuilt after the last war by pennies of millions of American school children. Reports say that the city has been reduced to shambles by incessant aerial and artillery bombardment main hall were burned by the Germans when they swept past Louvain in 1914. After the war, when American money was being used to restore the library, above the door was placed the inscription: "Destroyed by German fury: rebuilt by American generosity." In the end, the inscription was placed over the library door.

While Louvain is the focal point of the Reich onslaught, action is general along the entire British front.

Fight Rear Guard Action

Mechanized units of the British were spread fanwise off to the east, fighting a hard rear guard action against the mechanized German forces.

Throughout Tuesday night these British units slowly retired, passing through the "holding line," where the Tommies, with antitank artillery awaited the coming storm before themselves falling back slowly to stronger positions.

As the mechanized forces retired, bridges were blown up to their east and a section of the railroad into Louvain was blasted near the Louvain station.

Fighting is hard, and probably losses are heavy on both sides.

Blockhouses near the Louvain railway station were badly wrecked. On the eastern outsikirts I saw luckless Belgian artillery units blown to bits.

Many Civilians Killed

Two German air bombs landed within 100 yards of the beautifully spired library atop a hill, hitting whole blocks of houses and causing numerous civilian casualties.

Artillery duels, spasmodic yesterday, now are under way in full strength.

The Germans apparently had managed to bring new long-range guns into line. While British "heavies" pounded the Nazi columns, these huge engines of destruction were moved up under cover of a mechanized cavalry screen.

They are believed to be the same tremendous guns that Hitler showed his public two years ago in a Berlin parade, and then carefully screened from view. These were estimated at 40 feet in length.

Heavy aircraft attacks accompanied the heavy shells from these long-range guns, which shattered buildings in Louvain with every blow.

Florida Migrants Live in Squalor, Senate Quiz Told

Thousands of migant farm workers in Florida are living in "the absolute low in America's rural slums," John Beecher, of the Farms Security Administration, asserted yesterday.

Beecher, who is supervisor of two FSA camps for migratory labor in Florida, told the Senate Civil Libertis Committee, that both white and colored families throughout the State's vegetable belt are living in squalor in tents, trailers, tarpaper shacks and even tree houses.

The typical colored migrant worker occupies a 10x10 stall in a barracks-like shed, he reported, with rent running from $1 to $1.50 a week. If there is a water spigot for use of all the families in the shed, rentals are increased 25 cents a week, he said. When there is no spigot, workers must buy drinking water at a penny a pail at the nearest store, he stated.

He put the number of migrant workers, with their families, at a minimum of 50,000.

Colored Cadets Compete Today In Annual Drill

Ten companies of Washington's three colored high schools will appear in their annual competition today at 9 a. m. at Griffith Stadium. The schools are Dunbar, Armstrong and Cardozo. Regimental review and presentation of awards will take place at 4:30 p. m.

Col. Harry C. Atwood, with his three associates, Lieut. James Jones, at Dunbar; Maj. George Ferguson at Armstrong, and Capt. Raymond E. Contee at Cardoza, have been at work all year preparing their men for today's competition, which is the principal event in the military career of the students.

In the event of rain today the drill will be held tomorrow when the same schedule will prevail.

Former Belgian Premier to Fly to War

Paul van Zeeland, former prime minister of Belgium, who came to the United States last year to promote peace, is flying back this week to fight for his country.

"I can't stand it any longer," the 46-year-old statesman, who looks like a modest clerk, told White House reporters after a good-bye call on the President.

Once hailed for being the author of an economic plan to cure Europe's ills, Van Zeeland was visibly nervous yesterday for the fate of his country as he disclosed his decision to fly to Europe by the first clipper plane.

"At a time like this," he said simply, "a man wants to fight for his country."

Van Zeeland, president of the Coordinating Foundation for European Refugees, has a wife and two girls and boys living at Princeton, N. J., who will remain in the United States while their father takes his place in the battle line.

Meanwhile, at the Belgian Embassy on Massachusetts avenue, another prominent Belgian packed his bags, preparatory to a quick trip home to fight for his country.

He was Robert Grosjean, husband of the former Emlen Knight Davies, who is the daughter of Joseph E. Davies, formerly Ambassador to Belgium and now stationed at the State Department.

Grosjean, a first lieutenant in the Belgian mechanized cavalry, is a member of an economic mission here. He disclosed yesterday that Belgium has ordered 40 American military planes, costing about $600,000, but deliveries are slow and may be delayed until 1941.

Some 25 Americans "of the cowboy type" have volunteered to fight for Belgium, Grosjean said, but their applications to the Embassy have not been accepted by the Belgian army. All Belgians of military age in the United States have been ordered to enlist.

While the Belgian Embassy compiled military lists, the Netherlands Legation declared that Dutch nationals in the United States have not been told to report for military service.

Apparently not dismayed by surrender of the major part of Dutch soil to invading Germans yesterday, the legation staff did not expect any unusual situation to develop here. In fact, First Secretary Van Houton was preparing to take a lease on a private house in the District, "though not a very long-term lease."

Forest Fire Raging In Black Rock Area

Hagerstown, Md., May 15 (AP).—Washington County's most spectacular and damaging forest fire in several years was raging tonight.

Apparently getting its start in Frederick County, the flames ate their way through the timbers in the vicinity of Black Rock and were progressing on the Washington County side tonight. It appeared to be raging over a wide front.

Farmers said that unless the flames were checked, a number of barns and farm houses at the foot of the Black Rock ravine were in danger.

the belligerent and neighboring countries, but on January 1 the total was about 46,000. Many have left in the meanwhile; many, it is realized, will not leave, no matter what develops.

The State Department's notice said:

"Commencing sometime before the outbreak of hostilities in Europe last September, the department's officials in Europe, acting under the discretionary authority which they have for warning Americans of dangerous situations and inviting them to leave, have generally and continually so invited Americans to leave war areas in Europe unless they have compelling reason to remain.

"The duty of the Government towards its citizens in a war area is accomplished when it has advised them of the dangers of the situation and invited them to leave, while affording those who choose to go every possible assistance in obtaining transportation and those who choose to remain such protection as may be possible. There can be no insistence upon the departure of our citizens since the government may citizens since the Government may and the decision whether to remain or depart is one the individual himself must make.

"Exercising the discretionary authority referred to above, the department's officers in southern European countries, in view of recent developments and the possible spread of hostilities, have invited citizens within their respective districts to return to the United States. The department's officers in Great Britain and France are also renewing their invitations to Americans to leave and to proceed to the Bordeaux region in southwest France. They may also proceed to Spain or Portugal. The department will then consider the making of arrangements for their evacuation by American vessels from those areas. The department's officials in Switzerland are giving similar advice to Americans who wish to leave."

placed on the cables for Ambassador Phillips.

All this is known, although no official announcement or comment has been made concerning the appeal. Nor has there been time for a report to be received of Premier Mussolini's reaction. Nevertheless, officials noted with satisfaction the sailing yesterday of the Conte di Savoia for New York.

Police Disperse Students

Rome, May 15 (AP).—Several thousand youthful Neapolitans revived anti-Allied demonstrations tonight, marching in the main street of Naples, shouting old cries for French possessions.

They carried huge pictures of Premier Mussolini and signs saying "Mussolini Is Always Right," "Chamberlain's Umbrella Leaks," "Djibouti, Nice, Corsica," and "Viva Italian Corsica."

Earlier, police put a sudden stop to such demonstrations in Rome.

A usually reliable source indicated Britain was easing her contraband control on Italian shipping, which gave rise to the anti-Allied demonstrations.

This report, coupled with others that the British were making progress in trade negotiations with the Italians, caused a climb in security prices in private brokerage dealings at Milan after the close of the stock market in the afternoon.

Police dispersed about 10,000 students and others who gathered in the Piazza Venezia for a third day of parading and slogan-shouting.

Premier Mussolini failed to show himself to the crowd this morning, although yesterday he took three salutes at his balcony.

Lessening of tension prompted diplomatic observers to return to their assumption that Premier Mussolini would wait for a conclusive defeat of the Allies before plunging Italy into war.

Diplomatic quarters believed that one reason Italy might prefer to wait before incurring the heavy financial strain of war was the state of the Italian budget as disclosed in the Senate today by Senator Frederico Ricci.

He predicted that for the fiscal year of 1940-1941 the deficit would amount to 20,000,000,000 lire ($1,000,000,000) on a budget expenditure of 50,000,000,000 lire ($2,500,000,000.)

Ricci said this budget would represent 35 per cent of the national income.

Secret Weapon Paralyzed Belgian Guns, Nazi Writes

By the Associated Press

Berlin, May 15.—The "paralyzed terror" of the Belgian garrison of Fort Eben Emael when all its artillery and even light weapons "suddenly went out of order" at the stroke of Germany's secret weapon was described tonight for German newspaper readers.

They were given little hint, however, of what the weapon is or how it works.

Lieut. Col. Hesse, military writer for the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, reporting from the Western Front, said he had talked with some of the 1,000 prisoners taken from the key Albert Canal fort last Saturday after a small air force detachment had landed in the center of the citadel and used the mysterious "Angriffsmittel" to silence its guns.

"The prisoners with whom I talked showed every sign of paralyzed terror," said Hesse. "They said: 'We were unable to service our guns or machine-guns any longer.'

"A wounded Belgian officer told me: 'Suddenly all our artillery went out of order.'"

Speculation on the new weapon has ranged from a magnetic device to render arms or ammunition useless to a form of "nerve gas" to render defenders helpless).

Other responsible Germans quoted a high air force officer as saying of the mysterious weapon: "Annihilation of resisting power occurs in one blow—and totally."

Bergdoll "Knows Something"

Philadelphia, May 15 (AP).—Mrs. Berta Bergdoll inforced President Roosevelt by letter today that he World War draft dodger husband "knows something important" about the "secret weapon" used by Germany.

Her husband, Grover Bergdoll, is in Governors Island, N. Y., Army Prison, serving a sentence for draft evasion.

"He told me he knows something important about the secret cannon the Germans used in Belgium," she said in her letter. "He wants to tell this to you so you will know he knows what he is talking about, especially a new gun the Germans have."

forces by radio.

"I know that my people in the Netherlands as well as in the overseas territories are looking toward you with hope and admiration for the way in which you are carrying out your duties," she said.

"I know that I can have confidence in you. I am constantly with you in thought."

In an earlier broadcast she declared her nation's spirit would remain intact "because our conscience is clear."

The ruler who lost her country but retained her empire, told the Britons that "we have to admit that no happiness can be expected in this world if those who are solely responsible for the present situation are not definitely checked in their course of unscrupulous destruction and utter disregard of law and the most elementary principles of morality."

"After an heroic struggle," the Queen said, "my nation that has attempted everything to maintain peace is being overpowered by sheer superiority of force."

"Notwithstanding the great distress my people are suffering at the present moment and the oppression under which they will live until the country is free again, I am convinced that they will never give up their faith in the cause of freedom and justice."

(The German high command announced tonight the Netherlands capitulation had been signed at 11 a. m. (5:40 a. m., E. S. T.) by the German commander-in-chief and the commander-in-chief of the Dutch army and navy, Gen. Henri Gerard Winkelman.)

Mrs. H. P. Norton, Admiral's Widow, Dies at Home Here

Mrs. Mary V. Norton, socially prominent widow of Admiral Harold P. Norton, died yesterday at her home, 1704 Nineteenth street northwest, after a long illness.

A descendant of pioneer Washingtonians, she was the daughter of James L. Barbour. Her first husband was the late Capt. Daniel McCartney, U. S. N. She was a member of the Chevy Chase Club and Washington Club, and was active in charity work. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. William M. Irwin and Madam Anna Barbour, of the Society of the Sacred Heart.

Servcies will be held at the home tomorrow at 10 a. m., with mass to follow in St. Matthew's Cathedral at 10:30. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. De Cell Dies; Served in Church, Music Circles

Mrs. John E. De Cell, 81, formerly active in Washington Baptist church and musical circles, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Craig Morton, at Dayton, Ohio, following a brief illness.

A native of Brookhaven, Miss., Mrs. De Cell came to Washington in 1921 and became active at the National Baptist Memorial Church, Sixteenth street and Columbia road.

Surviving are five other daughters, Mrs. S. Bingham Martin, of Washington; Mrs. Lester Washburn, of Fairfax, Va.; Mrs. William E. Chilton, of Cleveland; Mrs. Thomas Hopkins, of Louisville, Miss., and Mrs. John Anderson, of Tupelo, Miss., and four sons, all in Mississippi, J. E. DeCell, of Yazoo City; E. A. De Cell, of Greenville; Kenneth De Cell, of Greenwood, and H. C. De Cell, of Vicksburg.

Services will be held tomorrow at Raymond, Miss.

Report Discloses Bilbo Bill Changes

Amendments to the Bilbo bill to set up a five-man commission to draw up a new code of laws for the District were disclosed yesterday when the Senate District Committee filed a report on the measure approved hurriedly last week.

The amendments strike out a proviso that four of the five commissioners must be members of the District bar and impose 60 per cent of the cost on the District government, the United States to bear 40 per cent.

When the committee acted on the bill, no mention was made of the amendments.

U. S. Imperiled If Hitler Wins, Pittman Says

America Awakening To Fact He May, Senator Declares

By Robert C. Albright

Chairman Key Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee asserted in an interview last night that swift aid to the Allies "is not a question of credits but of the capacity of our industry to supply essential material required."

"At the present time there is no barrier to supplying such materials," said the Administration's Senate foreign relations spokesman. "Our industries are supplying them as rapidly as possible."

Pittman said there is a fast growing sentiment for extending financial aid to both Britain and France. But he questioned the practicability and benefit to the Allies of such a move at this time. He said both countries have sufficient gold in this country to buy materials needed for at least a year, and said the chief problem is industrial capacity to supply.

The Nevada Democrat said he believes that if present rapid action continues the war may end within the year, and called on "statesmen" to see to it that America is armed and prepared to face any possible consequences.

Situation Serious

Senator Pittman in his interview with The Post said it is evident that the situation as regards Britain and France "is far more serious than the people of our country generally expected."

Until recently, he said, every statement that Hitler might possibly, individually or in cooperation with other totalitarian powers, conquer the Allies and dominate Europe and Asia was "deemed absurd and the remarks of a war monger."

"Today this possibility is beginning to be realized by our people generally," said Pittman.

"I feel that from my own information, and from the various polls, that 80 per cent of the people of our country fear victory by Hitler. This fear is based not on personal sympathies, but on fear for the peace of the United States.

Our statesmen now know, and the people have commenced to realize, that our country is utterly unprepared to defend itself against united forces of warring powers, such as Hitler controls.

"Therefore, there is a growing sentiment in our country to aid Great Britain and France financially to any extent that may be required. Many insist that the neutrality act should be amended so that private credit might be extended in the United States to Great Britain and France.

May End in Year

"The rapidity with which the war is moving if no other European countries intervene indicates the war will be over inside of a year. It appears that all of the forces of the warring powers will be engaged on the present battlegrounds.

"The sympathies of the American people are so antagonistic to the total disregard of moral and civil law by Hitler that they might be willing to permit the American people, exclusive of Government, to extend credits to Great Britain and France if such credits were practicable and would aid in stopping the conquest by Hitler.

"If such amendment of the neutrality act was made it would be under the distinct understanding that if loss occurred such lenders could not call on the United State Government for reimbursement."

... And You'll See Him, Too

Only Gargantua could look like this

Concluding a three-day engagement in Baltimore last night, the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus rolled into Washington early this morning

Arriving in sections, the first reaching the Pennsylvania Railroad sidings shortly after midnight, the glittering entertainment world of tinsel and tanbark was scheduled to be set up at daybreak. First performance is at 2:15 p. m. today at the circus grounds, Twenty-first and C streets northeast.

The season's new show comprises 1,600 performers and other employes, 50 elephants, 1,009 menagerie animals, hundreds of horses and acres of canvas. An innovation is the solid blue canvas "big top" with red sidewalls, its interior air conditioned.

Gargantua, the gorilla, again is the animal headliner. Principal act is Alfred Court, of France, and his three mixed groups of performing polar bears, Bengal tigers, Abyssinian lions, black and spotted leopards, Himalayan bears, panthers, cougars, black jaguars and even a brace of Great Dane dogs.

Other star acts include Count Roberto de Vasconcellos, former bull fighter; Elly Ardelty, "Europe's darling of the air," and the Flying Concellos.

Doors will open at 1 p. m. and 7 p. m. today, tomorrow and Saturday for the matinee and evening performances. Tickets are obtainable at the grounds and at the A. A. A. offices.

Drug Group Treasurer Quits After 30 Years

Dr. S. L. Hilton, of Washington, relinquished his post yesterday as treasurer of the United States Pharmacopoeial Convention after 30 years.

A decade ago he ran for a third term—and won—but yesterday he declined to be a fourth termer and another Washingtonian, Dr. W. Paul Briggs, of George Washington University, was elected to succeed him.

The stepping down of Dr. Hilton, who lives at 2152 L street northwest, was the sentimental highlight of the decennial assembly's closing day at the Willard Hotel. Seventy-four years of age, he gave his years as the reason for his retirement from the treasurer's post.

Dr. Hilton was first elected in 1910 and reelected in 1920 and 1930. In addition, he served for 28 years as chairman of the convention's pharmacopoeia revision committee and for 15 years was chairman of the American Pharmaceutical Association's council.

The pharmacopoeial convention which ended yesterday, held for the purpose of modernizing and recodifying the Nation's drug standards, was the thirteenth, and of these Dr. Hilton has attended six. Only one other delegate among the hundreds who came here from all parts of the country can match that record. He is Dr. Julius Koch, of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Hilton was honored with the post of temporary chairman of the nominating committee when it convened yesterday. None of the nominees was opposed. Charles W. Edmonds, of Ann Arbor, Mich., was elected president of the convention.

Lewis E. Warren, of the Food and Drug Administration, was reelected secretary. Frank A. Delgado, also of Washington, was elected assistant secretary. Washingtonians elected to the revision committee were Dr. Justin L. Powers and Dr. George B. Roth.

G. O. P. Group Suggests Election Be Skipped

Alamosa, Colo., May 15 (U.P.).—A group of Colorado Republican leaders today advocated abandonment of a national election in the United States this year and inauguration of an "All America" movement behind President Roosevelt.

"This situation has grown beyond national politics," said Mayor Cole of Alamosa, spokesman for the group. "It is a question of saving America."

Cole, unsuccessful candidate in 1938 for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor of Colorado, issued his no-election suggestion in conjunction with Charles T. Haines, of Denver, deputy State treasurer.

'If I Had My Way' Blends Two Listenable Voices

Crosby and Gloria Jean Costar at Keith's In a Slightly Time-Battered Story; War and Donald Duck Feature the Shorts

"IF I HAD MY WAY." Universal picturization of a story by David Butler, William Counselman and James V. Kern, adapted to the screen by the Messrs. Counselman and Kern, costarring Bing Crosby and Gloria Jean, with Charles Winninger, El Brendel, Allyn Joslyn, Clarie Dodd, Moroni Olsen, Nana Bryant, Donald Woods, Kathryn Adams, Brandon Hurst, Emory Parnell, Barnett Parker and Blanche Ring, Eddie Leonard, Trixie Friganza, Julian Eltinge, Grace LaRue, Paul Gordon and Six Hits and a Miss. Directed by David Butler. Reviewed Wednesday morning at RKO-Keith's.

MOTIVATED BY an early touch of tragedy and ending with a gay burst of old-time vaudeville, the new Universal feature which yesterday opened its first Washington engagement at RKO-Keith's Theater, lays its heaviest stress on its gayer moments.

BELL

The story dreamed up by David Butler, William Counselman and James V. Kern—directed by the first named and scenarized by the last two—is not too original, but it does introduce some catchy new songs and the revival of some old ones in a manner that will rest easily upon the receptivity of audiences that do not expect all of their screen entertainment to be "colossal." The four new songs by Jimmy Monaco and Johnny Burke are sung by Bing Crosby and little Gloria Jean—who, by the way, is no longer as little as she was in "The Under-Pup." We will get to the others later.

Gloria is cast as the daughter of a bridge worker—one of the riveting gang that also includes Bing Crosby and El Brendel—who loses his life on the last night of a huge construction job on the West Coast. Her father's and her closest pals, Crosby and Brendel, take the kid to New York to live with relatives of her dad's. There are two sets of these relatives—one a pair of social bounders; the other, kindly show people, down on their luck. Through the usual financial difficulties, Buzz Blackwell, Axel Swanson, Patricia and Uncle Joe Johnson come into ownership of a defunct Swedish restaurant and float it with money out of which the high-hat Jarvis Johnson swindles himself—with a little aid from Buzz. When the new night spot is opened under the enthusiastic auspices of the theatrical crowd, it is an eye-popping hit.

This is where opportunity is found to introduce fleeting glimpses of Trixie Friganza, Julian Eltinge, Grace LaRue, Paul Gordon and other stars of a bygone day, with Blanche Ring singing "Rings on My Fingers" and Eddie Leonard, the perennial minstrel, wah-wah-wahing his way through "Ida" and his famous sand dance. Charlie Winninger also finds a brief moment in which to introduce the trombone bit that has served him handsomely through a long range of years. All this will be found pleasant business in the eyes and ears of the old-timers out front.

Bing Crosby and Gloria Jean team nicely in their joint song numbers— and I do not mean the restaurant. Of all the young vocal prodigies of the screen, the youthful Miss Jean sings with greatest ease and as if she enjoyed it most. There is still that bewitching sparkle in her eye and that contagious smile, not to mention a coloratura voice that seems to have undergone extensive cultivation since it was heard in "The Under-Pup." Gloria, however, still is no serious threat to Deanna Durbin, queen of the Universal lot, and in her present vehicle has no such outlet for her hoydenish capabilities as was afforded her in her first picture. Crosby is his easygoing self and El Brendel brings his dialect back to comedy lines that are not always as comic as they should be. Winninger, Claire Dodd, Allyn Joslyn, Nana Bryant and the rest of the supporting cast are good enough in roles that frequently are not.

The new bill's supplementaries are largely on the World War side. The "March of Time" wrestles with the problem of "The Philippines—1898 to 1946," with a considerable eye on a covetous Japan. The Pathe News, of course, is dedicated almost entirely to the various aspects of the war now raging abroad, with extensive footage devoted to President Roosevelt's recent address before the scientists in convention here. The one utterly ridiculous note is struck by Donald Duck and Goofy in Walt Disney's color cartoon, "The Billposters," who had a pretty tough time with a rambunctious goat—accent on the ram!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, May 15.

Director Mitch Leisen will soon start work on Claudette Colbert's new picture, "Arise, My Love." (Incidentally, Joel McCrea may not be in that one. Walter Wangar has another story for him.) When I went to chat with Mitch, who has recently returned from New York where he put a circus act on the St. Regis Roof, with Mary Parker and Bill Daniels, I found his office looking like that circus—all cluttered up with actors waiting for interviews. A painter who was redecorating the office got mixed up with the actors, and Mitch found himself interviewing him. No, the painter didn't get the part . . . Mitch is never happy except in the midst of an uproar. Can't stand vacations. On last one, he redesigned and decorated his whole house.

HOPPER

Twentieth Century's going to make "Down Argentine Way," with Don Ameche and Alice Faye. It's a story about the orchid hunters who go into the jungles of South America to get choice species which are then shipped to the United States by airplane. And the reason Alice Faye spent so much time on that Victorville ranch is that she has to ride like a fiend in that picture. And can Alice do it—now!

Travis Banton was so crazy about Carmen Miranda that he designed her clothes at a distance of 3,000 miles over the telephone with Lily Dache, who turbaned Carmen. Carmen wears them in "Down Argentine Way." She did her scenes in New York.

Ray Milland joins Franchot Tone in the chase for Madeleine Carroll's beautiful white hand in E. H. Griffith's forthcoming "Virginia," which starts early in June.

Tone had better watch out, for Ray has new tricks in captivating the ladies, demonstrated in "The Doctor Takes a Wife."

E. H. Griffith loves horses—has quite a stable. Bought a vicious stallion named "Savage." He's not only crippled a rider, but a groom, so you can imagine Ed's fright when his 4-year-old niece was found in the stall with "Savage"—they were cooing like a couple of doves. She said, "I just wanted to put horsie to bed."

Interesting story behind the filming of Kenneth ("Northwest Passage") Roberts' "Captain Caution." Sixteen years ago, when Kenneth came here to do a Saturday Evening Post story, he told Will Rogers and Hal Roach of a historical novel he had planned. Hal said, "Write it, and send it to me. It would make a great movie." Ten years later it was published, but Hal remembered, and his studio is now making the picture.

And Victor Mature, star of "Captain Caution," got his break because he gave up a good job to work for nothing. When Vic was touring with Cornelia Otis Skinner, he got a wire from his alma mater, Pasadena Playhouse, offering him the leading role in "To Quito and Back."

Pasadena doesn't pay salaries, but Vic loved that part, so he left Miss Skinner and returned here for a two weeks' engagement. It was that performance that won him a picture contract.

'Frozen Sleep' Gives 'Em a Scare

ROGER PRYOR AND JO ANN SAYERS as the young doctor and "love interest," respectively, with Boris Karloff in "The Man With Nine Lives," opening tomorrow on the screen at the Metropolitan. Mr. Karloff is cast as a scientist who "comes back" after years of testing his theory of "frozen sleep"

Little

France at peace and France at war is the moving keynote at the Little Theater, where yesterday "Harvest" entered its third week and the "March of Time's" issue. "Inside the Maginot Line" was added to the bill.

Filmed in 1938, "Inside the Maginot Line" returns at a bitter time for the concrete defenses. One could scarcely imagine a film of greater intrest to anyone following the struggle on today's battlefront than a descent with the cameras into the bowls of the earth where at this instant a deadly determination is combating the forces of lawlessness and international banditry. These shots of the twentieth century fortress well illustrate the headlines in this morning's paper.

Adopted from Jean Giono's masterly novel of a simple couple who gain peace and happiness from the soil, the exultant "Harvest" was voted the finest importation of the 1939-40 screen season by the New York film critics. Marcel Pagnol, who gave us the memorable "Topaze," adapted and directed the story with a sterling cast of players headed by Gabriel Gabrio, Orane Demazis and the amusingly horse-faced Fernandal. Settings of remarkable authenticity and an imaginative score by Arthur Honegger are an integral part of this character imbued with the creative powers of the soil.

METROPOLITAN

LAST DAY "ONE MILLION B. C."

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, May 15.

CAPT. Concannon, Lieut. Peter Pondera and Sergt. Brown all have submitted their resignations to the N. Y. C. Police Department. Capts. Lustbader and Mooney also are expected to resign. Jeremiah T. Mahoney, who conducted the police departmental trials, has had enough. He insists that he won't preside over any more of these trials . . . The South American trip to be made by Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., in connection with his aviation tie-up, is slated for July. If his father should seek reelection, F. D., jr., will have to decide upon campaigning or pursuing this new career. In June, he'll go to Hollywood, to help Jimmy in personal matters . . . Jack Dempsey's next big venture will be a cross-country chain of Dempsey Hamburger Stands.

SINCLAIR LEWIS will leave Hollywood this week, to return East in preparation for the resumption of his acting career in the summer theaters. Sir Cedric Hardwicke, who has just listened to Dorothy Thompson broadcast from Paris, shook Lewis' hand, and said: You and Dorothy are the most courageous people I know. Dorothy endangers her life by continuing to stay in the war zone . . . and you're endangering your life by continuing your career as an actor."

LAST SATURDAY the members of the National Press Club in Washington held their annual picnic, which featured a mule race. Eight mules were entered, each bearing the name of a Presidential candidate . . . The "Wheeler" mule threw its rider . . . The mules named "Dewey" and "Taft" walked onward side by side, as if they were a working team, then stopped in the middle of the race and nothing could urge them on . . . The prophetic correspondents discovered a note of symbolism, when the mule named "Hull," plodding slowly but steadily, crossed the finish line first.

Dr. Alex Loudon, the minister representing the Netherlands, attended the Spice Institute's convention last week, where he was complimented upon the beauty of his wife. "She's beautiful," Dr. Loudon was assured. "To us she represents the typical Dutch beauty." Dr. Loudon beamed, and informed: "This typical Dutch beauty of mine was born in Buffalo."

THE EDITORS of the Modern Quarterly, preparing a resume of what's happening in Europe, wrote to Mauritz Hallgren, the Baltimore Sun's expert on foreign affairs. "You are one of the few persons who could unravel this puzzle," wrote the editors, "and present a competent analysis of the bewildering international situation" . . . "I am puzzled as everybody, about the international situation," Hallgren wrote in reply. "If you can get a competent analysis from any source at all, I'd like to see it myself."

THEY'RE STARRING in the greatest love story ever told—"Romeo and Juliet"—but their own story is far more significant and involves emotions of which Shakespeare never dreamed. For Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh, who will be free to marry in July, already have made their plans—of what to do when their current Broadway engagement is over. Olivier, young and talented and one of the most coveted actors in Hollywood, will return to England to fight. And Miss Leigh—now being starred in three pictures and one play—will return with him to their troubled homeland.

VALENTINA SARRA, the Chicago photographer, who has begun to operate in Manhattan, needed a husky athlete to pose for a photo of a Roman gladiator. He tested all the models sent by the agencies, and found them wanting . . . Sarra therefore went to Stillman's gymnasium, where he induced a wrestler named Abe Wilson to pose in the strange costume. The wrestler, reluctant to have his friends recognize this fall from grace, finally consented—but on condition that he be permitted to wear a false beard, rare among the gladiators of Rome, but sufficient to mask his identity.

New Pictures, Summer Fun Feature Week

Circus, River Cruises Added to Usual List Of Amusements

"BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN." Radio's fresh-air-hating comedian Jack Benny, hits the wide-open spaces in his latest film, opening tomorrow morning at the Palace Theater. With him are most of his radio gang, "Rochester," Andy Devine, Phil Harris, Dennis Day and the unmistakable voices of Mary Livingstone and the competitive Fred Allen. Ellen Drew plays Benny's favorite female, upon whom Benny seeks to make an impression by posing as a two-fisted cattle rancher. Carmichael, the bear, and a troupe of dancing cowgirls are included in the melee which Benny brings to the Nevada range.

Earle

"TYPHOON." Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston have the leading roles in this Technicolor romance of the South Seas. Miss Lamour plays a young woman cast up on an island as a girl. Years later a pearl-hunting expedition, led by Preston and Lynne Overman, lands on the island and the stars fall in love. A typhoon quenches a fire on the island. Also on the screen is the "Cavalcade of Academy Awards From 1928 to 1939." "Red" Skelton remains on the stage for a second and final week, offering all-new material in "Funny Side Up," with Edna Stillwell, The Six Hoffmans, Lowe, Hite and Stanley; Gower and Jeanne, the youthful dancers from "The Streets of Paris," and the Roxyettes complete the stage performers. Opens tomorrow morning.

Capitol

"I WAS AN ADVENTURESS." Vera Zorina and Richard Greene appear together in this romantic drama of European jewel swindlers. The beautiful musical-comedy star is afforded the opportunity to dance as well as to exhibit a startling wardrobe. Erich von Stroheim and Peter Lorre are her accomplices in crime. On the Capitol stage the Rhythm Rockets return, after a three-week tour in Virginia, in a seasonal revue, "Spring Revue." Dr. Giovanni, who startled with his magic at a recent White House correspondents' dinner, returns to top the performers, sharing honors with mimic Dean Murphy. Opens tomorrow morning.

Metropolitan

"THE MAN WITH NINE LIVES." Boris Karloff plays a scientist who returns to life after being seemingly dead for ten years. He had prepared an underground ice chamber to prove his theory of "frozen sleep" with the aid of four other human guinea pigs. Roger Pryor, as a young doctor, and Jo Ann Sayers discover the startling experiment. Stanley Brown, John Dilson, Hal Taliaferro and Bryon Foulger are in other leading roles. Opens tomorrow morning.

Columbia

"STRANGE CARGO." After a two-week engagement at the Palace Theater, Joan Crawford and Clark Gable return to F street in this story of five convicts who escape a French penal colony and are joined by a night club singer. Ian Hunter, Peter Lorre, Paul Lukas and J. Edward Bromberg head the support. Opens tomorrow morning.

Trans-Lux

"PLEASUREBOUND IN CANADA." A travelogue, featuring the spectacular scenery of our northern neighbor, and Frank Crumit, in a nature study, "Not So Dumb," are two of the short subjects with which the newsreel center will relieve its tragic clips of the European war. "Home on the Range," a color cartoon, and a "Screen Snapshot" complete the auxiliaries. Opens tomorrow morning.

Civic Theater

"TONIGHT AT 8:30." Noel Coward's group of one-act plays, "Hands Across the Sea," "Fumed Oak" and "Ways and Means" form the final production of the Washington Civic Theater's fourth season. Day Tuttle, director of the Civic, will play the Coward roles in the first and third of the trio. Sara Seegar, Natalie Core, Kenneth Banghart, Paul Keyes, Eleanor Charris, Edith Sognier, Patricia Lucas, Thomas R. Drake and John Pooley Wright are other principals. Opens at the Wardman Park Theater Tuesday evening.

Glen Echo

"THE DODGEM CARS" are one of the Amusement Park's proudest and most popular attractions. These midget cars are newly streamlined for the 1940 season and housed in a long, enclosed runway. More than 50 amusements are promised Glen Echo visitors, including Paul Kain's orchestra, which plays for dancing in the Spanish Garden ballroom each evening except Sunday.

S. S. Potomac

THE MOONLIGHT CRUISES down the Potomac River begin this evening with a cruise sponsored by the American Federation of Government Employes. The S. S. Potomac sails each evening at 8:45 from Seventh street and Maine avenue (formerly Water street). Isham Jones leads his orchestra Saturday evening in two trips, the last of which sails at 12:30 a. m.

Wilson Line

THE NEW STREAMLINER EXCURSION steamer Mount Vernon, of the Wilson Line, makes its maiden voyage this evening in a Potomac River cruise sponsored by the Junior Board of Commerce. McWilliams' orchestra is on board for dancing and entertainment. The vessel sails from its Seventh street wharf at 8:30 p. m. The cruises to Marshall Hall Park will be resumed when the amusement center opens on Thursday, May 30. Cruises to Mount Vernon daily at 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. start today.

Circus

RINGLING BROTHERS AND BARNUM AND BAILEY'S combined circuses begin a three-day engagement this afternoon at Twenty-first and C streets northeast. Under the world's largest tent, the "Greatest Show on Earth," will present a gigantic collection of acts and performers, some of which are on view for the first time in America. Twice daily at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m. Doors open at 1 and 7 p. m.

'Buy a Buddy Poppy, Buddy?'

Viola Linkins, of 2001 Randolph street northeast, and Mrs. Anthony Fusco, of 1119 Tenth street northwest, are two of the 500 young women who will sell poppies on Washington streets today. The three-day Buddy Poppy Sale is sponsored by the District Veterans of Foreign Wars

Mrs. Stevens, D. C. Attorney, Dies at 49

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Stevens, 49, wife of Dr. W. H. S. Stevens, Interstate Commerce Commission economist, died yesterday at their home, Westchester Apartments, 3900 Cathedral avenue northwest, after a two-year illness.

Mary Elizabeth Laird, as she was known here even after her marriage in 1923, was born in Crisfield, Md., and came to Washington as a child. She studied at the University of Wisconsin and then returned to Washington to join the Library of Congress legislative reference service.

She resigned from her Federal post after earning a law degree at the Washington College of Law, and practiced income tax law with the Washington officers of Ernst & Ernst.

Surviving are, besides her husband, who is assistant director of statistics for the I. C. C., her mother, Mrs. Kate J. Laird, of Crisfield; two brothers, Willard J. Laird, of Crisfield, and Kirk, of Philadelphia, and two sisters, Mrs. R. C. Plummer, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Rupert Colbourn, of Miami, Fla.

Services will be held Saturday at 1:30 p. m. in the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Dorothy Thompson Sees Action In Maginot Line's Largest Fort

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, May 15.—Dorothy Thompson, writer for The Washington Post, in a broadcast tonight from Paris, reported on a visit to the Maginot Line during which she was admitted to a gun chamber while French .75 MM. guns were firing.

She was the first civilian to see the guns in action, she said in a partially censored speech heard here over the National Broadcasting Co.

The fort visited by Miss Thompson is the largest in the Maginot Line and guards the frontier between Germany and Alsace, due north of Strasburg. During her visit an enemy movement was repulsed, and although the sector was removed from the main German attack, she reported machine gunning of civilians behind the lines, "which in a large part seemed designed for no other purpose than to terrorize the population."

In the village of Tramelonk, she said, three German planes flew low over an athletic field where boys were playing soccer and one of them opened fire killing one boy and wounding another. Miss Thompson visited the village and talked to the parents of the dead boy. The playing field was an abandoned airdrome and the white goal posts were conspicuous markers of its conversion for recreational purposes, Miss Thompson said.

Reporting on her visit to the Maginot Line, Miss Thompson said:

"The fortress is a great wooded hill that has been entirely excavated from the inside and from any eminence there is nothing to indicate that the rolling hills are the covering of a hidden city where the guardians of France live, like the monks, at war, for months on end, the life of the strictest discipline, the truest comradeship and the most importance to the nation.

"The entrance to the fortress reminded me of some story of hidden treasure. We passed swiftly into a tubular passage in which for the first few hundred feet there was the dank coolness of a mine but very quickly we were in airconditioned and warmed quarters.

"The commander of artillery asked me if I wanted to go up in one of the turrets. Of course, I said yes. After a long, long ride in a lift of 11 floors in an elevator, I was ushered into a narrow chamber about 10 feet square with painted steel walls bound in steel and great ammunition cases dangling on heavy chains.

"I climbed up and stood in a still narrower chamber. In the center was a platform. On each side of it, imbedded in shining steel, lay the enormous guns. A soldier in overalls stood across from me with his hands folded across his chest and with a nod gestured to me to do the same, so my arms would not get in the way of the men feeding torpedo-like shells from an automatic conveyor."

After leaving the fort, Miss Thompson heard the report of the machine gunning at Tramleong and drove there, because, "frankly, I did not believe it and insisted that we go and see."

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

Hardin Wishes Luck to CAA

Tom Hardin, member of the newly abolished Air Safety Board, yesterday wished the reorganized Aeronautics Authority luck, and said, "I hope it does a swell job."

Hardin said he had fought to preserve the Air Safety Board, whose functions now will go over to the Civil Aeronautics Authority when the latter goes into the Commerce Department June 11.

He declared, however, that he believed the work of safety regulation will go on successfully regardless of what agency administers the program.

"I'd like all concerned to know I think the new setup will be eminently successful, possibly more successful than the present one, although I consider the Air Safety Board has made tremendous contributions to aviation," he said.

"My interest is civil aviation," he said, "I'm sincere in hoping the new plan will work admirably. I hope it does a swell job."

He said he hoped the 78 employes in the board, including 16 safety investigators, and a score of engineers, would be given a place in the reorganized aviation board.

A former Safety Board member, Col. Sumpter Smith, now chairman of the Washington National Airport Commission, told the Insurance Club of Washington that the CAA, under the new set-up, is still "independent as a hog on ice."

Col. Smith said the air agency, in the Department of Commerce would still meet three tests of independence:

Authority to ask for and control its own funds, power to appoint its own personnel and power to publish its own reports.

He said that the reorganization had opened the way for "even greater safety records in the air."

Col. Smith reviewed progress at the new Gravelly Point Airport and said that while the opening date had not been set it would be possible to use parts of the field for emergency landings by July 4. The opening will be in the fall, he said.

Isolated America

In issuing an appeal on behalf of "thorough preparedness against the possibility of war," Gen. John J. Pershing was speaking out of the fullness of experience. For no one knows better than the former commander in chief of the A. E. F. how grave a danger to national safety unpreparedness may be.

It would be suicidal for the United States to ignore the grim possibilities arising out of the present European situation and not to do everything possible to prepare for any eventuality. The Allies may well be able to stem the Nazi tide which has already overwhelmed so many nations. But it is also necessary to realize that with Great Britain and France defeated the United States would find itself a democratic island surrounded on the east and west by totalitarian systems whose appetite for conquest is demonstrably immoderate.

Such isolation is not the kind of isolation our isolationists have bargained for. But it may be precisely the kind which will be thrust upon us. For some time to come, of course, our own borders will be safe against attack. The same can hardly be said for the nations hitherto sheltered by the protective mantle of the Monroe Doctrine.

With a population of 130,000,000, with unexampled natural resources and with an industrial plant surpassed by no other nation, the United States can, if it wants to, build up a defensive establishment sufficient to New World needs in any conceivable emergency. But we cannot delay. As Gen. Pershing says: "The time factor should be the dominant consideration."

Our wealth was nearly as great, our available manpower was not much inferior, in 1917. Yet we entered the World War almost wholly dependent on our associates for airplanes, artillery and other equipment with which to make our contribution to the common struggle. "In 1917," says the A. E. F. commander, "I sailed for Europe with nothing material available other than the will to do and a hasty plan as the basis for doing it. Our Allies protected us during more than a year of preparation."

"Today," as Gen. Pershing warns the people of the United States, "the situation is utterly different. This great country must, within itself, be prepared for whatever instant action is required for our security. We must not delay longer in our preparations."

It is the counsel of wisdom, to be ignored only at our peril.

Our Trusteeship

As a result of the German invasion of Norway, Denmark, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, it is estimated that the United States has become the trustee of more than $2,000,000,000 of securities and gold belonging to the people of these countries. Our first concern is to conserve these resources for the invaded nations and to make them available for their use when needed.

Under normal peace-time conditions a certain amount of capital belonging to citizens of the invaded countries would have been invested in the United States. But in recent years the inflow has been swollen by a steady flight of capital induced by the ever-present threat of war in Europe and the financial disturbances incidental to political uncertainty.

The problems presented by the abnormally heavy capital movement from Europe were serious before the outbreak of the war. Earmarked gold holdings, of course, ordinarily create no special problems, since such gold is merely held in storage to be released on demand. But funds invested in our securities and placed in our industries are claims upon our wealth. If such holdings are suddenly liquidated, the effect upon markets and security values is likely to be depressing, as indicated by stock market reactions of the last few days. Short-term balances belonging to foreigners are also a potential cause of trouble in view of the possibility that wholesale withdrawals may follow the passing of the emergency which led to their accumulation.

The German invasions have given rise to a new kind of problem in connection with the disposition of foreign-owned assets. Once there would have been no question as to the inviolability of funds belonging to individuals, regardless of nationality, if placed in a country at peace with the rest of the world.

In the world of today, however, there is no such assurance against confiscation. That is shown by the promptitude with which the United States has acted to forestall German seizures by assuming control over the assets of the nationals of invaded countries.

Essential Defense

President Roosevelt's forthcoming request for additional defense funds will not involve the adoption of any new plan to safeguard the United States against attack. Rather the aim is to implement plans long since worked out by the Army and Navy.

Indications are that the larger part of the funds sought will be for the Army. Notable additions to the Navy have been made in recent years. That arm of our national defense system is better prepared to cope with any possible thrust at the United States and its possessions than are our land forces. An emergency would find the Army poorly equipped for immediate service.

The United States has never maintained a large Army in peace time. Protective oceans have made that unnecessary. But, as Brig. Gen. George V. Strong, assistant chief of staff, pointed out in a recent address, "we must maintain a small adequately trained, properly armed, highly mobile, seasoned force capable of acting instantly in the event of an emergency."

Our initial protective force, consisting of the Regular Army, the National Guard and the Regular Army Reserves, is maintained for this special purpose. Eliminating troops essential for guard duty at various stations, this mobile force would consist of 476,000 men. Considering the vast area which these troops might have to defend, that number is certainly a minimum.

Should greater strength be needed, the Army's protective mobilization plan would come into effect. This would bring into the service approximately 1,000,000 men having previous training of whom 750,000 would be available for actual combat if necessary. A maximum military effort on the part of the United States would bring under arms from four to nine million men.

The weakness of this set-up is that even the initial protective force is not fully equipped for service. It is estimated that $39,000,000 is necessary to make up this deficiency. An additional $240,000,000 is needed to provide rifles, antitank guns, artillery, antiaircraft weapons and similar vital equipment called for by the protective mobilization plan. Since equipment of this kind cannot be provided on brief notice, simple prudence demands that advance preparations be made. Equipment of a major army would still depend almost entirely upon our manufacturing capacity after hostilities had begun.

In short, the President is about to ask for equipment of a minimum defense force needed to safeguard the United States and its nearby possessions against possible sudden attack. Such a request cannot be denied.

After voting these funds Congress may well set up special committees to survey further possible defense needs in view of the critical ordeal through which the world is passing. Special committees to see that funds appropriated are being well spent and to analyze future needs could perform a real service. Their findings would be particularly valuable in crystallizing American opinion and in guiding future defense policy in the light of current developments.

What The Nation Needs

Europe's crisis has brought many Americans a keen appreciation of our own national weakness. It is obvious that the United States is even less prepared to cope with the full implications of totalitarianism than are Great Britain and France. Since Germany began her paralyzing onslaught against the Low Countries, therefore, the press and radio have been overloaded with suggestions of how to put our house in order.

Almost every commentator emphasizes the need for more effective national defense. But that is only a beginning. Miss Dorothy Thompson, writing from Paris, has gone so far as to suggest that all opposition to reelection of President Roosevelt be withdrawn so that he would be assured of a third term without a struggle. Her appeal is based upon a belief that Mr. Roosevelt would be more influential than any other American in supporting the cause of democracy in the world.

The need for American unity to meet the grave problems ahead is real. But the great battles taking place in Belgium and France are no reason for unduly excited reactions on the part of Americans. The possibility of American participation in the war is not necessarily increased by events of the last week. And any panicky gesture on the part of this country at present would be symptomatic of weakness rather than the firm and confident strength which must be developed.

Whatever the outcome of the war, our most formidable problems in the next few years will be economic. Serious dislocations of world markets constitute an additional emergency for which we are unprepared. Present unemployment is already a source of grave concern. The national budget is farther than ever from being balanced and the national debt is racing upward while our industrial plant is operating at only a fraction of its capacity.

It is these factors which should be giving the American people their greatest concern. Of course, we need a strong and wise government to guide the United States through this black era of ruthless aggression and to cope with international problems of the post-war period. But the first task for the United States in confronting the rough waters ahead is the acquisition of internal strength.

Such strength will not come from the manipulation of an election or any comparable gesture. Rather it will depend upon a genuine domestic recovery program. It will not be easy to devise a policy that will bring our full recuperative powers into play, as the last decade has proved. But certainly that objective ought to be kept foremost in our thinking and planning for the difficult period that lies ahead.

Inspired Rumors

There is enough sensation in the actual news, without embroidering it by giving credence to wild rumors, or undue attention to predictions for which the underlying motives are fairly obvious.

At the moment this judgment applies particularly to the threats from Berlin regarding massed air attacks, and possible actual military invasion of Great Britain. It is easy to see why the Nazis are eager to suggest the feasibility of such developments. The warnings tend to keep in England troops and airplanes which otherwise would be moving to the battlefields in Flanders. But it is not so easy to see why these dire predictions should be taken at face value.

Germany is now staking everything on the possibility of breaking the French defense and bringing the war to a conclusion before the greater strength of Allied resources can make itself fully effective.

An invasion of England would not contribute directly to this end, for the decisive battlefield will be in France. To conquer there the Germans must break through, flank the Maginot Line and drive on with even more success than they achieved in 1914. If they can do that, Great Britain would suffer a serious defeat, even though not a single German soldier had set foot on British soil.

Whether or not the Germans can break through is the issue now up for decision. It is a gambler's throw and may come off. But it certainly will not come off unless Hitler can concentrate every plane, every gun and every shell at his disposal on the present front. The Allied resistance is steadfast, the Allied air power increases daily, the Allied strength is such that Germany can ill afford diversions which do not lead to attainment of the main objective.

British soil, of course, is in peril. The German will to destroy is such that there may well be death-dealing raids or even a feint at actual invasion. But to think that the Nazis can now spare the strength to attack in force in several places simultaneously is grossly to exaggerate their power. It has been underestimated in the past. It should not be overestimated now.

Behind the advancing swastika there is just so much punch. And if a knockout cannot be secured by concentrated effort it certainly will not be obtained by a division of energy.

The German leaders want more than anything to spread the idea of German invincibility. They want to do so because they fully realize that Germany is not invincible, and because they know that if they are to win it must be before American planes can reach the French and British in great quantities.

Tune Of The Times

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch

The lively yet graceful waltz is again returning to favor, and promises to become once more our favorite dance, we are told.

It seems a little incongruous, at first, that there should be a return of this symbol of gaiety and happiness in days as dark as these. The waltz stands for a baroque age of crystal candelabra, of flowing gowns and befrogged uniforms.

It means the Vienna of Schoenbrunn and the old Hapsburg emperors. And above all, it means the Strauss family—Johann, the father, who wrote the "Lorelei," and played at Victoria's coronation; Eduard, the son, who succeeded him at St. Petersburg and the Wiener Volksgarten, and Johann, the other son—the one they called the Waltz King, who outdid the family's triumphs in Paris and London, in Boston and New York as well as at home, the one who wrote "Vienna Blood," "Artist's Life," "Wine, Women and Song" and "The Blue Danube."

The times seem to call for a danse macabre—a dance of death. Well, why not the waltz that was one of the hallmarks of the end of the century? The world may again be at the end of an epoch. The French learned the waltz from the Germans as the tumult of the Terror was fading from the Paris streets. The British were learning it at that ball in Brussels on the eve of Waterloo. And even when the lively Strauss waltzes were displacing those of Mozart and Schubert, of Chopin and Brahms, the first signs of decadence were breaking through the glittering veneer of Schoenbrunn. Perhaps the waltz is the tune of the times after all.

For Understanding

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I do not have to add my testimony to the obvious fact that both Mr. Lippmann and Mr. Pegler, writing in The Post, are both masters in their type of work, and together with the other famous contributors to your newspaper, constitute a complete department of "public enlightenment."

Assuming that most of your readers are already familiar with the present events, the attitudes of the various anti-democratic governments especially toward the present day "American kind of civilization" (as Mr. Pegler puts it), does not this correspond somewhat to the science of symptomology at the same time parading itself and passing for therapeutics, and thereby merely increasing the number of disease symptoms and amount of fear in the minds of unthinking, negative millions?

There must be some effort made in the direction of mutual understanding between peoples as nations holding differing concepts of civilization. The German has come to America, holding still to the concept of government by a monarch or leader, the American travels the face of the earth, or sends movie films everywhere, injecting into the minds of others his concepts or "ways of life." The conflict has become so violent that each seems to be destined to destroy the other, even as Mr. Pegler justly assumes, that enemies of the "American civilization" are living for no other reason than to destroy it. This tendency toward self-preservation by destroying one's opponent seems to have been the rule of life in the past, and did not begin with any present day dictator. Why not call in a qualified human mediator, to effect a universal understanding on ideologies? P. CALPEEKIAN.
Washington, May 10.

To Budget The Balance

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As there seems to be no effort on the part of the Administration to balance the budget, how about budgeting the balance? It might prove interesting. E. T. P.
Washington, May 6.

Lincoln's Formula

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Comity cannot be established between the nations unless hatred and bitterness of spirit have been allayed. When Lincoln was trying to bring order out of chaos in Missouri during the Civil War he wrote to Gov. Fletcher, "Let neighborhood meetings be everywhere called and held, of all entertaining a sincere purpose for mutual security in the future, whatever they may have heretofore thought, said or done about the war, or about anything else. Let all such meet, and, waiving all else, pledge each to cease harassing others . . . At such meetings old friendships will cross the memory, and honor and Christian charity will come in to help.

As pointed out by Norman Angell in his recent volume, "For What Do We Fight?" "The insistent belief that the simple destruction of Hitlerism will of itself free us from the evils for which it stands is an insidious and dangerous fallacy . . . In 1914 we believed that the simple defeat of Germany and the destruction of Kaiserism would free the world. Kaiserism was destroyed. We didn't get something better, but something worse, more evil, more menacing."

With few exceptions, business prosperity is seriously disturbed by war. Hence it demands definite and binding pledges that economic adjustments be made as quickly as possible. HARRY A. GARFIELD.
Washington, May 12.

New Worlds To Conquer

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After Hitler has conquered the earth what will he do then?

It might interest him to know that there is a serious organization in this country called the Interplanetary Society which is always looking for a good projectile passenger to the moon and that a lot of us would be most happy to help dispatch the "Furore" thither at any time, if not sooner. C. L. J.
Washington, May 14.

Spending For Armaments

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Swept along by the rush of events in Europe, the United States is likely to enter upon a large scale spending program for National defense. It is to be hoped that we will have more to show for the money to be spent than we have to show for the tens of millions we have spent on our Army in the last 10 or 15 years. The dictator nations are strong because they get 100 cents worth of value for every dollar spent on their war machines. The United States is weak because we get so little net value out of the taxpayer's dollar.

It is discouraging to be told that we are totally unprepared for war, after having spent such large sums for preparation. It raises the question of whether we could ever be prepared under the same directing minds. Why do we spend such huge sums sending officers and their families back and forth between the United States, Hawaii, the Philippines, China, etc., when we have no anti-aircraft guns?

It should be recognized that wars are fought not alone with men but with money. How can we hope to finance a war, if one comes, if we have already strained the National credit to the breaking point by such wasteful measures as we have been guilty of in the last eight years?

Where is the sense of spending so large a part of our money in more battleships when European events so clearly show that the airplane is the controlling factor in modern warfare? Why put so many eggs in one basket by building such huge bombing planes, and why spend so much in fine finish upon the equipment we make?

Why not get down to mass production methods so that wings and fuselages may be molded or stamped out as automobile parts are stamped out, so that we can turn out medium-sized planes in such numbers as to darken the skies?

The matter of first importance is to "put none but Americans on guard." We must clean our governmental house and insist upon undivided loyalty from those who eat the Nation's bread.
MONITOR.
Washington, May 14.

Conference Of Nations

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is imperative that we understand the real motives that lead one nation to lay waste the other nations' civilization and drench the soil with the blood of innocent men, women and children who have no hatred in their hearts for the people of the other nations at the beginning. Especially so if that nation has Christian ideals. We must analyze and understand the causes of this war—it did not just happen, as a star falling from the heavens. Even there is involved cause and effect.

We must know what created the so-called dictators, and if those nations have real wrongs or imaginary ones. If real, they must be corrected or pointed out; if imaginary, they must be shown.

We took sides in 1914 to no avail, and many of us were criticized for not seeing eye to eye with those who believed that our entry into that war would settle European wars.

Before it is too late the great body of our people must know all about it before we lose our reason and unbiased judgment and allow our sympathies to sway and direct our actions, thus being drawn into this world madness and sea of blood.

As time goes on atrocities and wholesale murder (called war) increase; we lose our sense of proportion and values as we are drawn by our emotions to take sides as our passions become inflamed. When that takes place there is no putting a stop to it. War hysteria is cyclonic; it grips the soul and heart and mind of the nation.

There is only one way for America to get first-hand information uncensored—to invite all nations to come together to participate in a world conference and broadcast it to the world. Let men and women of every race, creed, trade and profession be represented. It must not be behind closed doors; we must hear the findings of this convention. The minority as well as the majority report, and thus alone can we form our own opinions and not hear them forced upon us.

Any nations refusing, or its rulers refusing, would seem to admit guilt before being heard. In the meantime we must be armed to the teeth. Then if the nations will not lay down their arms and return to reason and we see it is our duty to enter the war, we will know when and where to strike for the glory of God, justice, humanity, countries and civilization.

Let all nations of the earth assemble! Let the people decide, for theirs is the sorrow and burden!
JOHN BELL HOOD.
Jonestown, Miss., May 13.

The Goblins

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I hand you a suggestion for the warmongering, too-old-to-go columnists. Between paragraphs let them insert James Whitcomb Riley's punch line from Little Orphan Annie: "An' the gobble-uns will get you ef you don't watch out!"

To digress: For a thousand years before a Te Deum was chanted on a San Salvador beach the map of Europe was a lumbering kaleidoscope; and the native Americans fished and hunted, blissfully unaware. A thousand years hence the curse of Babel will still cling to Mother Europa while superalloyed axes are forged and discarded, frontiers twist and writhe, and imperious Caesars strut and fade. American intervention could never be more than a palliative for the terrible blight of European claustrophobia — domiciliary and commercial. It is a problem for God, who has no problems.
CHARLES E. CROSS.
Washington, May 9.

The Post Impressionist

Corsican King

It is not very long ago, as Clio reckons Time, that the French backed Italian ownership of the little island of Corsica in order to keep the British out of it. The Italian Republic of Genoa sold it to France in 1768. Later, France and England fought for it. England held it briefly and gave the "Isle of Unrest" a short period of constitutional government. Before England, France and various Italian owners, there were the Turks, the Spaniards, the Germans, the Greeks, the Moors, the Vandals and many others in possession of the tiny isle.

In all these checkered years, only once has Corsica had her own king. But what a king he was! A swashbuckling, swaggering, comic opera king, who tried the most magnificent bluff in history and actually put it over. Baron Theodor von Neuhoff, a German adventurer and former officer in French, Swedish and Spanish armies, sailed into a Corsican harbor in March, 1736, with a shipload of arms and a more colossal nerve than William Walker's. He stated that three great powers would back Corsica's struggle for freedom from Genoa's oppressive rule if he—the German baron—were made king.

Why they believed him—for believe him they strangely did—it is impossible even to guess. His dress was as fantastic as his story. He wore Turkish trousers (the bey of Tunis actually was sympathetic towards his aims) and a Cavalier hat with sweeping feather, and carried a scimitar for personal weapon. Without firing a shot, with two deuces in his hand and no chips to back them, he succeeded in creating the throne of Corsica and placed himself upon it.

As a king he did not do badly. He founded a noble order, distributed titles freely, and fought the ubiquitous Genoese with conspicuous gallantry. He was as good a fighter as he was a liar. There was no queen to share the throne. He had married, years before, a Spanish lady-in-waiting, but had deserted her shortly after marriage.

This Graustarkian farce lasted only from March until November. The Genoese placed a very large price on the king's head and when the aid which he had promised from the great powers failed to materialize, Theodor von Neuhoff, baron by birth, king by personal achievement, and adventurer extraordinary, was forced to leave his kingdom in a hurry.

He chose England for his sanctuary and, even there, his remarkable talents displayed themselves. Thrown into a London prison for debt, he secured his release—by assigning his "Kingdom of Corsica" to his creditors; Since the Genoese were known to be in complete possession and his claim to the island could never have stood any real investigation, and considering the exceedingly hardboiled and wary mentality of the English moneylender of the period, his last achievement seems almost as noteworthy as his original winning of a throne.

Corsica has had other picturesque rulers. Perhaps the least agreeable of the lot were the directorate of the Bank of San Giorgo, some of the most ruthless "economic royalists" who ever plundered a nation. They were an intolerably greedy, cruel and tyrannical crew. Corsica was to them only a cow to be milked dry and its people were the calf to be starved . . . or killed for veal if the San Giorgo corporation could use the meat. The best of Corsica's many leaders was certainly Pasquale Paoli, its most revered hero to this day. As dictator he ruled with a strong hand but was wise, just, and vehemently patriotic. He suppressed the Vendetti and abolished many of the abominable feudal rights held by Corsica's ancient lords. When Corsica was sold to France, he resisted the deal and sought British intervention but failed, at that time, to win it, and fled to Leghorn. An odd circumstance is that Carlo Bonaparte, father of the greatest Frenchman of them all, was Paoli's secretary and worked with him to keep France out and secure British rule.

The Corsican emblem is a Moor's head, with a bandage lifted from the eyes. The popular theory is that the bandage was removed by Paoli in 1768. That would leave Corsican eyesight still dimmed in 1736 when King Theodor the First (and last) took and ruled the land. Possibly that explains the amazing coup. MARK PLUM.

Elder Statesmen

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We have grown to attach entirely too much importance to the opinions and orations of so-called "elder statesmen."

We were inclined to attribute unusual powers of judgment to Borah and the late Senator Lodge. They turned loose the guns of their oratory on the League of Nations, with the result that we are right back where we were in 1914.

Now another of our elder statesmen takes it upon himself to castigate all who disagree with him Senator Norris is very indignant that the FBI should have arrested persons charged with having recruited soldiers for the Spanish loyalists in this country. These so-called loyalists were among those who burned hundreds of churches, murdered hundreds of priests and committed the most horrible atrocities in Spain. It is stated that large numbers of the Spanish loyalist forces have been brought into Mexico, and that their arms were brought with them. Has the "fifth column" in Norway no meaning to the Senator? Must a man wait until he has a knife thrust into him before he dares move to protect himself?

The people of this country are strong for G-Man Hoover.

Indirect War Effect

By Mark Sullivan

Roosevelt Supported

WE SEE the impact of war begin its effect on our Government, our very form of government.

Since some time ago there was pending in Congress a measure which symbolized the division of powers between President and Congress. It was an executive order by the President reducing the independent status of a comparatively small body, the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and making it a part of the Department of Commerce.

This action of the President could be rescinded by Congress. The House voted to rescind it by a large majority, 232 to 152. That was Thursday of last week, May 8. The following day, Friday the 9th, Germany invaded Holland and Belgium. Following that, there arose in America a spirit of apprehension. Following that, on Tuesday of this week, the President's order came up in the Senate. The Senate, departing from the House, voted against rescinding the President's order, voted to sustain the President, by 46 to 34.

The common judgment is that a week ago Senate would have gone with the House, would have voted to check the President's exercise of power. The belief is that the Senate changed its position because of a disposition, arising out of the threat of war, to "hold up the President's hands." There is gossip about pressure on the Senate by the President's friends who want a third term for him, and who wished to avert the harm to his prestige which an adverse Senate vote would be. But that does not matter. The developments of the war would have been enough. This factor switched enough votes to sustain the President on a matter having nothing to do with the war. Many were votes of Democratic Senators who strongly oppose the New Deal, who normally do not hesitate to oppose the President. These Senators, at any ordinary time, would have voted against the President on this issue. Now, with complete sincerity, they voted to sustain the President, largely because of the atmosphere created by the war.

THE CIVIL AERONAUTICS incident was a comparatively small matter. But the same process is under way in large matters.

There is in Congress a measure called the Walter-Logan Bill. This is a measure aimed to restrain the powers, not of the President directly, but of the executive branch of Government; powers exercised by dozens of Government bodies, by thousands of Government officials, many of small rank. These have acquired immense authority to put compulsion upon the citizen, to require the citizen to do as they say, under threat of penalty. These powers, exercised by minor Government officials, excited widespread resentment. To check the powers, the Walter-Logan Bill was introduced. The spirit of its purpose was to preserve for the citizen his ancient right of protection by a judicial body, against any attempt of a government official to put compulsion upon him.

For the Walter-Logan Bill, sentiment in Congress was and is strong. Three weeks ago the House passed it, 279 to 97, practically 3 to 1. More than half the President's own party voted for it.

From the House the bill went to the Senate. There, too, it had strong support—a year ago the same bill, in a different form, had passed the Senate without a dissenting vote. The present bill was likely to be passed by the Senate, with some changes, perhaps, but retaining the bill's spirit and purpose. Now, however, the bill is likely to be dropped.

THERE ARE OTHER similar situations. There are measures restraining the powers of the President, restoring to Congress powers which it, two years ago, temporarily transferred to the Executive; checking the authority of New Deal innovations, such as the National Labor Relations Board, requiring them to keep within the scope of the authority conferred on them by Congress. These restraining measures Congress, up to a week ago, was in process of enacting.

Most of this is now suspended. It is suspended in part because the effect of the war, descending upon Congress, makes that body reluctant to disturb the status quo. It is suspended for a further, related reason. The Democratic majority in Congress realizes that Mr. Roosevelt can get a third nomination, if he chooses to take it. Apprehending that he may take it, that he may be their party leader during the coming campaign, many Democrats wish to refrain from reducing his prestige, or setting themselves apart from him.

The present improbability of the passage of measures modifying and restraining the New Deal is increased also by the time factor. Congress must now turn from these measures to considering measures for national defense. This will consume time. It will consume much of the time between now and the date roughly fixed for adjournment, about the middle of June. And President Roosevelt makes it known that he does not encourage Congress to remain here beyond that date. There is in Congress an important element which questions the wisdom of all this. They hold that America can prepare against war and at the same time continue to function with its established form of government, including its constitutional division of powers.

Wallace Sees New U.S. Policy If Nazis Win

Says Nation Would Face Its Greatest Readjustment Problem

By the Associated Press

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace declared yesterday that should Germany win the war this country would face its greatest readjustment problem.

Speaking at a luncheon in honor of Chairman Jones (Democrat), Texas, of the House Agriculture Committee, who is to retire from Congress and take a Federal judgeship, Wallace said:

"If Germany should crash through, we know we have a problem of readjustment that would be greater than any we have faced heretofore."

Later in the day Wallace said the Commodity Exchange Administration was considering asking the grain markets to "cooperate" on measures to curtail price fluctuations.

Wheat, corn and other grain prices have dropped sharply since extension of the European conflict to the Netherlands and Belgium.

Wallace said such measures might limit daily price fluctuations to 5 cents a bushel. Present rules limit price changes to 10 cents. Yesterday, wheat dropped the limit.

Discussing the agricultural outlook in connection with the war, the Secretary said he expected farm exports— principally cotton, food products, wheat, fruits and tobacco —to be 30 per cent lower during the next fiscal year.

Diplomats Thank Red Cross for Aid In War Zones

Diplomats representing Belgium, the Netherlands and Norway called yesterday on Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, to express appreciation for American relief given their countries.

Count Robert van der Straten-Ponthoz, the Belgian Ambassador, thanked Chairman Davis for a gift of money and supplies.

Dr. A. Loudon, the Minister from the Netherlands, paid a similar call.

The problems of relief in Norway and of additional help from the American Red Cross were discussed with Chairman Davis by Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Norwegian Minister.

Another plea for assistance came from Prince Carl, president of the Swedish Red Cross, who told of want in Norway.

Meanwhile, public contributions to the $10,000,000 war relief fund continued to pour in.

Rail Travel I. O. U.

You can now make a railroad trip on the time payment plan.

• • • •

See America first!

• • • •

And see the cashier last!

• • • •

Sixty-six railroads have entered into the arrangement by which any railroad trips costing more than $50 may be paid for a little at a time. The railroads all owe money. Why shouldn't the customers?

• • • •

Travel broadens a man. And from now on it will broaden him on the installment plan.

• • • •

You are not even required to make a down payment. This is where the railroads have put themselves one up on the automobile industry.

• • • •

You go to the ticket office, tell the clerk where you wish to go and explain that you wish to travel on the cuff. You make clear that you wish to go by the I. O. U. route through the peaceful valleys of deferred payment land and over rolling hills of the installment zone.

• • • •

He puts you through a brief routing inquiry to determine that you are not just bumming a ride and you fill out a paper giving your name, your occupation and the references of a couple of people willing to testify that you are not making a permanent flight.

• • • •

Not only the fare but the Pullman and hotel expenses can be had on the cuff. Even if you don't want to travel anywhere the temptation is irresistible.

• • • •

Fancy taking a 30-day pleasure trip on a six months' payment plan!

• • • •

It is even possible that in time your front doorbell may be rung by a debonair agent who will tell you he is working his way through college by getting 1,000 customers to do some railroad traveling on a dollar a week basis.

• • • •

And when the American public hears a heavy footfall up the gravel walk it may feel additional apprehension as it wonders whether it is the collector for the flivver, the ice box, the electric washing machine, the trip to Miami, the vacuum cleaner or the trip to St. Louis to see Uncle Chidsey.

The Firehating Mayor

"I hate fires. In spite of what you have heard, I really hate to go to them."—Mayor Fiorello La-Guardia of New York in Look.

Oh, keep my helmet near my desk,
And keep one near my bed—
A fire may break out and it's
The sort of thing I dread.

My boots, oh, see that they are near Wherever I may be;
I hate to go to every blaze—
How it depresses me.

That siren on my private car—
Please see that it's in shape,
For I must speed to fires though
I wish I could escape.

Whenever something's burning let Me know without delay,
For I must rush straight to it though
I'd rather stay away.

If War Comes to U. S.

Excerpts From Senate Naval Report

Following are extracts from the report of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee on the 11 per cent naval expansion bill, setting forth a proposed military policy for the United States based on an invincible navy and remaining aloof from Europe:

From the military point of view the United States must be considered as an insular nation. We are separated from potential enemies on the east and west by broad and deep oceans.

The armies of Europe and Asia do not menace us. To be a menace they must be transported across the sea in ships. Airplanes based on the continents of Europe and Asia do not menace us. To threaten seriously our continental security they must be conveyed across the sea and operated from bases in or near this hemisphere.

The armed forces of no foreign nation or group of nations can seriously threaten our continental security if we make sure that we command the seas which separate us from all potential enemies.

Our geographical situation considered together with that of our potential enemies reveals at once that we can depend primarily upon a navy for our security and that we should adopt a predominantly naval policy as the keystone of our national defense. We need not form military alliances to maintain a balance of power; we need not maintain large land military establishments as in Europe or Asia to insure safety for our country. We need only a navy—but a navy sufficiently strong to meet and defeat the enemy at sea before he reaches our shores—and an army and air force of sufficient strength to make our Navy free to act.

Function of Aviation

Aircraft, without the assistance of surface vessels, have not yet demonstrated that they can deny an enemy control of the sea.

Air forces cannot protect fully our industrial center and cities from aircraft attack from beyond the seas, if an enemy has control of the sea and maintains battleships and aircraft carriers upon the seas. Shore-based aircraft cannot take the place of a mobile fleet.

In the event of war, shore-based aircraft, be it Army or Naval aircraft or both, could not bring the war to a successful conclusion.

Everyone is convinced of the very great importance of aircraft in our scheme of national defense. No force, ashore or afloat, can afford under any circumstances to be without ample aircraft support. Aircraft alone cannot fill the role of primary defense of this country.

Aircraft vs. Battleship

There is no recent evidence to show that battleships or other surface craft are obsolete as a result of increased efficiency of bombing from aircraft. The manner of employment of naval vessels undoubtedly has been affected by the comparatively new form of attack from the air and the armament, armor, and protection of ships has been and must continue to be adapted to resist damage as far as practicable.

Air power according to our responsible naval authorities has not yet seriously affected British control of the sea lanes of the world. Naval forces are always at a disadvantage in operating against land forces. The important naval question now being decided in Europe is whether naval forces can retain command of the sea communications of an island in close proximity to a continent on which is located a superior force of shore-based aircraft.

Due to the limited range of aircraft, our self-sufficiency in food, and our geographical location, the United States is not confronted with a similar situation. Our home ports and shipping centers are not only farther from tenable air bases but they cover a wider area and are available in two oceans.

How Foe Could Attack

From all the evidence available it appears that the United States can be defeated and conquered without military conquest of continental United States. Without a navy capable of controlling the sea areas against an enemy, an effective blockade against our foreign commerce can be established and maintained at points thousands of miles from our coasts and well beyond aircraft range. Our outlying possessions will be captured and used against us as advance bases. There will be nothing to prevent the establishment of bases, by force if necessary, in this hemisphere, from which, as well as from aircraft carriers, repeated bombing raids can be dispatched against our highly industrialized areas.

Under the foregoing conditions, enemy ships, except in the form of raiders, need not approach anywhere near our shores. With the loss of our outlying possessions, our foreign commerce, and subject to continual raids upon our coastal areas, our ultimate defeat is inevitable.

America and the War in Europe

We are doing now practically everything possible to bolster Allied sea and air power, as we are stepping up American production of aircraft and shipping them to the Allies.

If we are to remain at peace we must avoid becoming interested financially in the outcome of the European war, and our industries must not become too greatly compromised by foreign war orders.

Cost of War to Liberties

Some of our naval experts contend the view that in order to be sure of retaining our freedom and defending our institutions against armed aggression, we ought to fight now rather than face the possibility of having to fight victorious totalitarian nations at a later date, is based upon an erroneous evaluation of plain, hard military facts and the lessons of the past.

If we allow ourselves to become engaged in the war in Europe as we did in the last war, one thing is certain—the whole energies of our people, of necessity, will be ordered, regimented, and directed by a single authority.

America and the Far East

Japan is an insular nation. She is dependent upon the seas for the importation of a large part of the raw materials necessary for her industries and for any great war effort. She is therefore vulnerable to attack from the sea. She can be rendered impotent and can be defeated by naval forces without military conquest. She cannot direct a serious attack against us if we maintain our defenses of an adequate basis.

The all-important fact in the Pacific, so far as Americans are concerned, is this: We need not fear aggression or any vital harm from this direction so long as we maintain our fleet in the Pacific at not less than the 5-3 ratio with the Japanese fleet, and maintain adequate naval and air bases from which our fleet can operate effectively.

Defense of America

If we realize that the important causes of war are in human minds and emotions; that force cannot change materially human nature; give up the illusion that American armed force can bring permanent peace to a warring world and confine our military objectives to the defense of this country, we shall find that our problem of national defense becomes relatively simple. An impregnable defense for America will be costly, but infinitely less costly in the long run than engaging in another futile attempt to "save the world for democracy" and certainly less costly than conquest and consequent confiscation of resources and enslavement of all our people.

Our country is almost, but not quite, self-sufficient in raw materials.

An important question which this Nation may be forced to face in the very near future is this: Shall we build up our Navy and other defense forces to the strength necessary to defend adequately all of these far-flung trade routes, or shall we acquire stock piles of essential raw materials and devote our energies and our resources to developing the sources of supply for these essential materials which are available in this hemisphere?

The Panama Canal and its approaches must be fortified and protected to such an extent that they cannot be damaged and will be available for the transfer of our fleet from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and vice versa, as necessary. The existing submarine and naval air bases there should be extended and improved. It might be desirable to reconsider the question of building a canal across Nicaragua.

In the Pacific, we should maintain an impregnable fleet and air base in Hawaii; complete or undertake the construction of the air and submarine bases recommended by the Hepburn Board. We should make Guam a link in our scheme of national defense by developing its harbor and facilities, and maintaining there an operating force of submarines and long-range patrol planes. It will then stand as a sentinel of the sea—a far-flung lookout, to furnish vital information to the defense line of our fleet wherever it may be.

In the Atlantic, we must improve our bases at Hampton Roads, Va.; Penscaola, Fla.; Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and complete the bases recently authorized at Quonsett Point, R. I.; Jacksonville, Fla., and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Serious consideration should be given the question of acquiring, if possible, places in the Caribbean area for additional United States naval bases, or to prevent their use as enemy air or submarine bases, from which to launch an attack against continental United States or the Panama Canal.

Our Army must be adequate to defend the bases from which our fleet and our aircraft operate. We must, in addition, have an air force capable of being concentrated on either coast, superior in number to the greatest number of carrier-borne and catapulted aircraft possessed by any naval power or conceivable combination of powers, and powerful enough to prevent an enemy from establishing in either ocean a base in this hemisphere while our fleet is engaging the enemy's fleet.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

Book On The War

I HAVE BEEN reading about the war, and about "peace," and sitting at my typewriter wondering what on earth to say about them. When I have finished a column, I shall go out and buy the latest edition of the evening newspaper, and skim it on the subway homeward bound. After supper we will turn to the radio, hear a flock of scattered bulletins and listen while Mr. Swing and Mr. Gunther do their best to explain what the day's news means. They will have changed, before 10 o'clock, what they prepared at 6, and still their analyses will be a few minutes outdated by the last bulletins on bombs over Belgium and hell burst loose in Holland.

Still men write books that cannot be printed for days, weeks, months after the last words are blotted. Here on my desk are Thomas Mann's "This War" (Knoopf, $1), declaring that it is only a pitiful illusion to believe that there can be such a thing as neutrality in the midst of this "world revolution," which seems a truth that flames in every headline; Charles A. Beard's "A Foreign Policy for America" (Knoopf, $1.50), bidding America concentrate on its domestic problems and warning the President to abstain from "denouncing and abusing foreign states, good or bad;" Raymond Leslie Buell's "Isolated America" (Knoopf, $3), just as cocksurely blaming isolation for our ills and offering a neat Design for a New World, a complete blueprint for a postwar settlement.

Thomas Mann's essay is another eloquent appeal to the German people. The thought of the German people today tortures him. He tries desperately to conceive a Germany "brought to reason, brought to her true self;" he knows that only the illusion that the Nazi leaders were restoring to Germany her honor and her self-respect permitted them to establish their hegemony—but that hegemony is today absolute. The German people, he says, are prepared to endure privation and bloodshed for years to come, for a "hysterical mountebank" has convinced them that Germany is regaining her lost honor, when, in fact, they are becoming the enemies of all humanity. Even if the Germany that he and they have held dear should be dismembered, he says, the change will be no greater than has already been wrought. For "it is no longer a German Reich that is waging this war; it is a formless and distracted 'living space' held together by police terrorism."

But I see no rumors of revolt against the conqueror of Poland, Norway, Holland and Liege among the stories in the newspaper today.

CHARLES BEARD calls his position "continental Americanism," and quotes Henry Clay as its spokesman when Americans were being asked to help Hungary, almost a century ago. "Far better is it for ourselves, for Hungary, and the cause of liberty," said Clay, "that, adhering to our pacific system and avoiding the distant wars of Europe, we should keep our lamp burning brightly on this western shore, as a light to all nations, than to hazard its utter extinction amid the ruins of fallen and falling republics in Europe."

This, says Prof. Beard, is our historic policy—he has a little difficulty explaining away the War of 1812 and the Mexican War—from which we have only twice departed, in 1898 and in 1917, both times disastrously. He skims through the history of the postwar years, apparently blaming the machinations of the "internationalists" for the recent troubles of the world. Skeptical readers may wonder at his emphatic conclusions . . . Mr. Beard remains, as ever, the most maddening and stimulating of our historian-pamphleteers.

Raymond Leslie Buell, former president of the Foreign Policy Association, covers much the same territory in four times as many words in "Isolated America," and reaches diametrically opposite conclusions. Mr. Buell blames the isolationists for the world's ills; he recalls cheerfully that Senator Nye, only last summer, held that the neutrality laws had made peace likelier. History, logic, the airplane and the contraction of space and time make isolation impossible, he holds he directly suggests that we may be faced with the alternative of intervention abroad or dictatorship at home. The most valuable part of his book is its thoughtful summary of two decades of American policy; his neat pigeonhole file of programs for the next peace conference, read in the light of the day's news, has a ghastly simplicity.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The World Should Take Notice

THE REST of the world will do well to recognize what is happening in the United States. The statesmen and the peoples elsewhere will need to understand clearly that this country is changing its mind profoundly. There is no doubt about it. The objective evidence is beyond dispute. The world must look now not at the words of public men, which until the past week they could discount so easily, but at what the responsible authorities will now undertake to do.

The world will be seeing that as the battle develops and the war spreads in Europe, the American nation is going to organize and mobilize its industrial power for the production in mass of ships, planes and any other necessary instruments of war.

THE UNDERTAKING will go far beyond any additional appropriations for the American Army and Navy; it will develop as rapidly as American organizing genius can promote it into a program of unlimited scope for the expansion of the American capacity to produce armaments. Upon this expanding American industrial machine the nations which are fighting against aggression will be given priority of delivery, and all the practical assistance necessary to facilitate delivery. This will be done because the American people know that their own future is in grave peril, that they cannot hope to be safe unless they are in the highest possible condition of preparedness for all emergencies, and that the only way to gain the time to prepare themselves is to stiffen and support by all means within their power the resistance of the Allies.

It is not only by the manufacture of weapons that the United States will stiffen this resistance. We shall have to set our minds at once upon the development of a plan by which the civilian population of western Europe can be supplied with food. The Nazi conquest of Scandinavia and of Holland has cut off one of the main supplies of food; the millions of Belgian and Dutch refugees streaming into France and England put a new strain upon the food supplies of the Allies. The total mobilization of the men of France will seriously impair the capacity of France to cultivate and harvest this summer's crops. A way must, therefore, be found by which the farm surpluses of this hemisphere are made available. For if the free peoples of Europe are to resist, they must have weapons with which to fight and they must have food on which to live.

THE GREAT NEW FACT in all this is that the American people know now, however reluctant many of them may still be to acknowledge it, that they are not living in the kind of world they thought they were living in. The rape of the neutrals has taught them that a scrupulous neutrality is no protection, that on the contrary it is the road to involvement. For the most scrupulous neutrals in Europe are precisely the ones which have been most ruthlessly attacked. The manner in which the neutrals have been attacked has impressed the American people even more profoundly than the horror of the invasions. In Denmark, in Norway, in the Netherlands, they have seen how in an atmosphere of neutrality, isolationism and pacifism the fifth column of alien conspirators and native traitors is organized, and how, when the time comes, it delivers a whole nation to its enemies.

The American people know now that if the Allies begin to fail there will come into being an alliance of aggressor powers—Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy, Soviet Russia and imperialistic Japan—which the United States alone, especially in its present condition of physical unpreparedness and of mental and moral confusion—is incapable of dealing with. They begin to know quite well that against all this a rigid neutrality law is no protection at all, and on that conviction the awakening people of America now mean to act. They will not ask themselves much longer whether this or that measure is neutral, but whether this or that measure is an effective means of fortifying America and of arresting the catastrophe.

IF ANYONE wishes to know why these predictions can be made so confidently, I should reply that the movement of American opinion already set in motion by events will be accelerated and intensified by the events which are now certain to come. The greater the successes of Hitler, the greater will this movement of opinion become. For there is no other direction in which American opinion can now develop. The greater his success the more obviously urgent it will be to expand to the maximum of our capacity our prepareness for every emergency; the more he draws other nations into the struggle—by violating them as in the case of Switzerland for example, or by entangling them as in the case of Italy, Japan and Russia, the more inescapably evident it will be made to us that we must prepare ourselves to the utmost, and that we can never hope to do this unless we gain the necessary time by sustaining the resistance of the Allies.

There will, therefore, be little open opposition to the resolve of the American people that they can waste no more time before making themselves as formidable as they are able to be. Now that we have the will, we shall find the way. The American people are able to be very formidable indeed, and, cost what it may, they are going to make themselves formidable. They are not going to sit by and do nothing while the world to which they belong is wrecked.

THE OTHER NATIONS had better take into their calculations immediately the fact that the American people have been waked up by the violence of the convulsion. They must realize that the American people will never be able to go back to sleep; it will never be possible again to dope them into unconsciousness of their vital interests. This is a new fact, and it is bound to have immense consequences.

War Delays President's Plans For Tour of U. S. Next Month

War came yesterday to those who work at the White House, from the President down.

The Chief Executive's plans to tour the country, beginning in early June, have been made "very indefinite due to the war situation," his secretary, Stephen T. Early, said yesterday. Work has not begun on an itinerary or other plans for the proposed journey, Early disclosed.

Following finger printing and photographing by the Federal Bureau of Investigation of all newsmen assigned to the White House Tuesday, the martial spirit at the mansion quickened yesterday when two companies of uniformed high school cadets marched in the White House front gate and out again—without explanation.

The other side of war was displayed on the White House grounds yesterday afternoon when President and Mrs. Roosevelt received 1,500 visitors at an annual party for war veterans from hospitals in the Washington area. In the group were 100 men, some in wheelchairs, who had fought overseas.

An anticlimax, bringing visions of a redskin invasion to one White House policeman, was the visit of Jacob Goodshot, a full-blood Sioux Indian from Pine Ridge, S. Dak.

Goodshot wanted to introduce his son, Papoose Running Elk, 2 years old to the President. The Indian boy was dressed in full-feathered Sioux hunting headdress.

1. NAZI troops have occupied The Hague after all but a small band of Dutch troops surrendered to halt the slaughter of women and children as Hitler extended his "protective" grip to other small nations of Europe

2. ZEELAND—Here Dutch troops were still holding out. In London it was announced that remnants of the Dutch army which could reach Belgium were being reorganized. It is estimated that the Dutch lost 100,000 men

3. ENGLAND shuddered at the menace of aerial attacks as the Nazi war machine reached the coast of Holland after its five-day drive. Nazi air bases are now only 185 miles from London. Britain issued a new call for volunteers

4. LIEGE—The forts at Liege were still holding out last night, according to the Belgians. Germans, however, claimed the fall of several forts. The entire zone is now apparently 30 to 40 miles behind the developing battle line. Belgians said Nazis suffered heavy losses here

5. NAMUR, SEDAN—Germans have pierced the French line at Sedan, according to reports and crossed the Meuse at Namur and two other places. French hurled scores of divisions into the area as the battle spread

6. BATTLE-FRONT (dotted line) extends to Longway. French military spokesman said that biggest battle of history was developing here. German tanks yesterday tore gaps in the Allied positions on the Meuse

7. LAKE Constance—Here the Germans were massing troops and practicing crossing the Rhine with pontoon bridges. Swiss were mobilized for possible Nazi drive around Maginot Line. Swiss residents were evacuated from frontier areas

Mary Haworth's Mail

Reared by Mother, Son of Divorced Parents Goes to Live With Father for 'Educational Opportunities;' Discouraged by Harsh Discipline, He Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a boy 17 years old and a student in high school. I am a visitor in Washington and while here I have been much pleased with the way you help people solve their problems. My father and mother have been divorced and both are remarried. I lived with my mother until a year ago, when we both decided that educational opportunities were better in the city where my father lives. Because he wanted to have a hand in my edueation, she permitted me to go to live with him.

My mother was always strict with me, but she did let me go to dances, entertain my friends of both sexes at home and generally do those things which normal young people enjoy. But since I have been living with my father, he denies me such privileges. He doesn't object if I go to church or the movies, however. But he will not let me get a job after school, because he thinks this would interfere with my school work. He wants me to go to college (which I want to do), and he says after my formal schooling is finished, I can enjoy some of the pleasures which he now prohibits.

Before going to live with him, I was told he was very strict. But I didn't realize how strict he would be. I have eight more years in school and I am beginning to get discouraged about living with him under the circumstances. My problem is this: Should I go back to live with my mother? Or should I try to stay with my father and conform to his harsh requirements? Please give me your answer by Friday, as I shall be leaving the city that day. PERPLEXED.

Life With Father Has Little to Recommendd It

DEAR PERPLEXED: I believe you should go back to live with your mother—not because it means "taking the easier way," (since the easy way is not always the admirable way), but because she gives evidence of knowing better than your father how to discharge the parent's responsibility of developing the child into a self-sustaining individual, of sturdy character and socially well adjusted personality.

Your father clings to an old-fashioned notion, apparently, that the youth is a child until, suddenly, he is a man—by virtue of various certifications, including a college sheepskin, the calendar-attested right to vote, etc. Very possibly he seeks to impose upon you the same brand of parental discipline that he knew as child and youth.

It is not unlikely that his harsh autocracy (which may have precipitated your mother's divorce) is the expression of a personality that was prevented (by excessive parental dominance) from maturing to the point where it could reasonably "live and let live" in intimate association, on the robustly self-respecting man's theory that others are as competent and trustworthy as himself. I sense on his part a dispositioin to transmit to you—while altogether unaware of what he would be doing—the same personality handicaps, wrought in the same way, that have flawed his existence.

Both on and between the lines of your letter, one gets a picture of your mother as a woman of remarkable emotional poise, possessing unusual insight and foresight. You submit that she "was always strict" with you—which suggests she is no namby-pamby doting mama. While she hasn't ruled you with a rod of iron, she has drilled you carefully in the fundamentals of sound behavior, and taught you the virtue of obedience to authority.

Perhaps wisely utilizing the reasonable social privileges she has given you for that very purpose, she has invested you with the capacity of thinking and acting independently of her—when decisions greatly affecting your own destiny must be made. She let you share the responsibility of deciding whether to go to your father; and in so doing prepared you to deal manfully with such other ticklish questions as might grow out of the move. It is to her credit and to your credit that you are trying, without her aid, to reach a decision in the current instance.

Your father has a warped concept of the processes of education, or he would not construe education as consisting primarily of book learning. Education has to do with learning how to live usefully, and that means learning how to stand on one's own feet in every situation, at every level of one's development, as well as learning how to "get on" with the citizens (of both sexes) of one's little world of the moment.

Hence, your father actually deprives you of a vital form of education in limiting your "social life" to church and the movies. Moreover, in denying you the right to find a job, he is unduly and unnecessarily perpetuating your infantile dependency. And, unconsciously, he may be doing it more to gratify his ego than to serve your good. He may enjoy being "boss" and Lord Bountiful; may resent the presence, in his domestic environment, of persons who are disposed to be self-reliant and self-sustaining.

So, go back to your mother's home. And, if need be, set yourself the task of earning your formal education. Though it may take longer, you will be a better educated man for earning your schooling yourself than you would be if you became a cringing dependent in your father's household, in order to receive an expensive sheepskin he paid for. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Slacks Appeal for Summer

Eleanor Neighbors, a typical, buoyant outdoor girl, dropped in on the reopening of a popular Washington shop this week and discovered this perfect all-around slack suit, casual enough for sports, clean cut enough for informal dining. The slacks are of white flannel, the loose-cut Dutch jacket of soft yellow flannel. This particular blouse is of white and red crepe, silver buttoned, but many substitutions of blouse or sweater are the order of the day in slack assembling

Mothers Enjoy Delectable Southern Dishes

MOTHERS were certainly feted by sons and daughters this past Sunday. And many mothers were relieved of the responsibility of preparing meals on this special day set aside for them. The Southern Breakfast featured on Sunday mornings at Wardman Park Hotel was one place I noted a number of happy mothers breakfasting. The breakfast offered is so inclusive that it can do triple duty—be a colossal breakfast, a delicious luncheon, or even serve as dinner, if you are not one to yearn for dessert.

The choice of foods was amazing. I finally decided on a combination breakfast-luncheon meal. I started with iced grapes, took oatmeal to get my vitamin B-1, followed with Eggs Benedict, bowed to our good Hoosier custom of hash-browned potatoes for Sunday breakfast, and along with these foods chose some delicious muffins and coffee.

Eggs Benedict

Cut apart and toast an English muffin. If muffins are not available, use toast rounds about three inches in diameter. Spread muffin or toast with butter and place on it a slice of thin broiled ham. Top with poached egg. Cover all with Hollandaise sauce.

Nature being at her best, everyone seemed to be out enjoying the profusion of flowers and blooming trees. My trail led down Mt. Vernon highway, and finally to Collingwood Tea House for dinner. Many others had the same thought, so while waiting for a table we wandered over the lovely old estate which is a riot of color, with the pink and white dogwood, lilac bushes, violets and many other flowers in full bloom.

After eating one of the delicious Southern fried chicken dinners, I topped it with strawberry short cake, of the traditional "short bread" variety. Here is the recipe that Elijah, the capable chef at Collingwood, gave me for making it:

Strawberry Short Cake

Sift flour, measure to 2 cups and add 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons sugar and a sift together. Add 2 tablespoons butter and 4 tablespons other fat and cut in fine. Add one-half to two-thirds cup milk, enough to make a soft dough. Knead lightly and roll dough one-third inch thick. Cut into 3-inch rounds. Place ½ the rounds on cookie sheet, brush with butter and place the second rounds on top; brush with butter and sprinkle with sugar. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve with crushed sweetened strawberries and top with whipped cream.

May Morning

(A Housewife's Soliloquy)

I

What if I were to wander on into this beckoning May morning,
Not bothering to stop at the chain grocery for the sugar and coffee,
The oatmeal and crackers, the washing powder and other drab addenda
So needed for living?
Or if I were not to return today to the urgent dull tasks awaiting,
The sweeping and dusting, the cleaning of closets the polishing of silver,
The sorting of laundry, the answering of phones and the eternal
Rush against galloping hours?

II

What if I were to turn my face to the mild, beneficent spring sun,
And to press on into a world that was enjoying its high fleeting moment
Of radient youth, where no vestige of age or decay could be found,
In so much as the fall of a leaf;
Where even the sky was young and pale, the breeze timorous, adolescent,
The grass yet a callow green, the birds unashamedly romantic,
And the air still virginal, clear, undefiled by the blare of a summer sun
Or the living of people?

III

What if I were to turn abruptly from the treadmill of duties before me,
And go and sit idly in the park, watching the busily hopping robins,
The squirrels and the pigeons going importantly about their little concerns,
And let life flow through me,
Instead of going to meet it or trying to shape and conform it,
But rather passively accepting the offerings a May morning brought me,
Its sparkle of vision, its delicate fragrance, its murmur of music,
Its beatific peace of the moment.

IV

What if on an impulse I were to step adventurously on a strange bus,
Bearing some alluring destination as "Riverdale," or "Green Valley,"
And ride on and on past suburban lawns all ablaze
With the fires of spring flowers?
And then on through the countryside flaunting its dogwood,
Its newly decked locusts and maples, with its rivers hoarding the sunlight
In choppy spring waters, and the newly tilled fields with their silent assurance new of faith in tomorrow?

V

What should befall should I leave for a day all neglected, forgotten,
The demanding voices on the telephone, the peddlers on the doorstep,
The dust in the closets, the dishes in the sink, the unpurchased groceries,
The meeting of the club committee,
To seize a few hours of this swiftly passing magic May morning?
Ah, that I shall never know, for I shall resolutely turn in at my grocery,
To meet the needs of the larder, then hasten to all the small tasks awaiting,
Against the press of tomorrow.

A Woman's New York

Manhattan News Corps Mourns Death Of Webb Miller; Betting Fever Grips Town

New York, May 15.

NEWSPAPERMEN seem to rank, in feminine interest, about with actors and men in uniform. Interesting, perhaps, and a little dismaying—probably the world's worst matrimonial risks, generally speaking, but catching the eye and ear of wide-eyed ladies. And of all the journalistic crew, I suppose the foreign correspondent, truly a man of the world, about tops the list of the Fourth Estaters.

ALICE HUGHES

This thought was reawakened as I read of the accidental death of Webb Miller, just outside London. He was just a great reporter, with none of the Richard Harding Davis-Floyd Gibbons melodramatics of the old school. He was a dear friend of ours. Last summer Hall and I were overjoyed to find him in the suite next to ours in a Hollywood hotel. He told us hilarious tales of the British royal progress across Canada, which he had just covered. We hadn't seen him since he had emerged, worn and jittery, from the ardors of the dismal equatorial campaign in Ethiopia. Soon he was off to London, and the war all knew was coming.

Since 1916 Webb had wandered the world, watching, listening and writing. He had met the world's great, in very brief intervals of peace. He had been bombed and blasted at in various wars. And like so many men hurled into frantic and sometimes dangerous activities by their professions, his soul was somewhere else. He would have liked to have been the sage, Thoreau, dreaming on the shore of Walden Pond. Significant, indeed, was the title of his book, "I Found No Peace." Nor did he. Now he has, in a tragic way. There was none for his gentle heart in this hopeless and peaceless world.

His wife, Marie, and his big son, Kenneth, live only a few blocks from us. These are terrible days for them, of course, but may they somehow and somewhere find peace. And isn't that the prayer of and for all of us?

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Despite wars and rumors of more, interest here is at fever heat over the arrival of legalized mechanical betting at our horse parks. Belmont, the big beauty, is in full cry, and the girls, ecstatically excited by the ease with which they now can lose their pocket money, happily push their two-dollar bills across the counter. Just to show how the Fifth Avenue stores are cashing in on the local fever, here's a line from a huge ad run by one of the biggest. "Slated for Belmont! Pari-Mutuel Prints—of jockey brightness and champion strain!" Hot airedale! What a pleasure to surrender the funds while feeling all jockey-bright!

Exercise Cuts Waist an Inch In 5 Days, Reducer Reports

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU had positive proof that a few daily twists and turns would really do lovely things for your figure, would that help to overcome your apathy toward exercise in any form?

Well, here's the proof from a reader: "I lost a whole inch off my waistline in five days, just like you promised." The writer of the letter was bowled over with equal parts of surprise and delight!

Such miracles can only happen, however, when you take the specific exercises needed for your particular figure faults. You could bend backward until you ache and forward until you get dizzy and never slim your waist!

Keep Shoulders Square

The exact movements that will take inches off the waistline are stretching, twisting and side-bending. But there is more to it than that. With any of these movements, the twist and bend must be concentrated at the waistline. That means you must keep youf shoulders squarely to the front, and hips squarely to the front. Otherwise it's waste motion as far as slimming goes. One good way to anchor the hips is to stand against a table, hip height, and then to have a rod back of the shoulders and caught in the crook of the elbows to hold the shoulders in place. Now, twist at the waist!

A less strenuous but very effective exercise is to stretch up with the arms, hands clasped high overhead, and circle the trunk while maintaining the upstretch.

When it is the midsection, particularly the abdominal muscles, that are in need of toning, the important thing in exercise is to pull up and in with the lower abdominal wall. The emphasis should be on the up, more than the in. So in taking your waistline exercises, be sure to pull up with the lower abdominal muscles. As the tone is increased, it will be easier for you to pull up as you sit, stand and walk—then you will be using your muscles in the right position.

Rolling Is Excellent

The best type of exercise for taking inches off the hips is the forward and backward leg swinging, lifting the leg from the hip away up in back to reach the gluteus muscles which form the buttocks. Rolling is excellent for smoothing the hipline. Roll clear over on the side thighs, and back across the hips. Improving the thighs calls for a side-to-side action, like that of the chorus girls in dancing. Practice swinging alternate legs over a chair seat, then over the chair back.

The best shoulder exercises are those in which the arms are circled backward rather than forward. This helps to straighten rounded shoulders. When the arms are thrust straight out from the shoulders, the triceps on the upper backs of the arms are brought into action to tone the sagging flesh in that area. Arm exercises also help to tone the pectoral muscles which support the bust. While the bust cannot be reduced with exercise—you have to reduce your total weight for that—toning the muscles will raise the measurement to a lovelier line.

Roosevelts and Berles Entertain at 2 Of Season's Biggest Garden Parties

Veterans Guests on White House Lawn As State Aide and Wife Are Hosts To Delegates of Scientific Congress

By Hope Ridings Miller.

Two of the largest garden parties of the season took over the social stage yesterday afternoon and drew Capitalites and distinguished out-of-towners in droves. President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained at the annual veterans' fete on the White House lawn, and Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Adolf A. Berle, jr., were hosts in honor of delegates to the eighth American Scientific Congress.

Hope Ridings Miller

Making one of his rare appearances at an afternoon party, the President drove through the White House lawn shortly after 4 o'clock. Later he took a chair in the cool shade of a spreading tree and chatted with a number of guests for almost an hour. Mrs. Roosevelt, who rode with him through the grounds, later wandered through the crowd. Wearing one of her prettiest frocks—that new Eleanor blue lace model with a starched hem edging the flaring skirt and a broad-brimmed white hat draped with a brief veil, she moved quickly from one group to another and seemed to have a personal word for everbody.

Disabled veterans, many of whom were brought along in wheel chairs; every type of Red Cross worker and every shade and decription of Red Cross uniform; officers in crisp summer whites, and the Marine Band Orchestra also in summer attire; cake and punch served from tables set up under striped marquees—these were features of the party which drew its share of notables.

Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., were there, also Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson. An especially popular guest was Mrs. Cordell Hull, whose figured frock accented with soft shades of blue and green blended with her green hat and matching gloves and purse. Miss Mabel Boardman was seen in the crowd, as were Norman Davis, Ernest Swift and scores of other "big names" connected with the Red Cross.

Meanwhile, out at Woodley, the Berle residence on Cathedral avenue, guests were arriving by the score for one of the largest parties planned for delegates to the Scientific Congress.

The sweeping lawn to the rear of the house was never lovelier than yesterday when the dogwood and redbud were in full bloom. Wistaria on the columns of the porch and here and there neat beds of tulips and pansies added a special dash of color to the scene.

Mrs. Berle's Frock Of White Chiffon

The host and hostess received their long line of guests on the lawn. Mrs. Berle's frock, of white chiffon, was fashioned with a sheer blouse, short sleeves and a flowing skirt. H. Charles Spruks, ceremonial officer of the State Department, was on duty to negotiate introductions, and managed the whole in his usual flawless fashion.

Long tables, groaning beneath a lavish outlay of teatime dainties, were set up on the lawn. To one side there was a group of chairs arranged around an improvised platform, where there was a brief program.

An entirely new set of faces—most of them doubtless belonging to distinguished delegates—added interest to the gathering. Also seen were numerous diplomats, top-flight officials and garden variety residentials.

Albert Einstein Steals the Show

Prof. Albert Einstein stole the show as he leisurely strolled through the throng. I first saw him with a small group at the tennis court where Barnee-Lowe music was played for dancing. Later, up on the lawn, Dr. Einstein chatted with a number of notables, including the Solicitor General and Mrs. Francis Biddle, then with a flock of Latin-American delegates to the congress.

Pleasant as the scene was and remote as the war abroad should have seemed in such a setting, I heard scarcely anything else discussed. Small talk, turning on the weather, summer vacations and fashion, definitely was out of the picture.

Diplomats were there in large numbers. To mention but a few I saw—there were the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun, the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Cardenas, and the Norwegian Minister and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, the last of whom have made few partying appearances in recent weeks.

Others there included the Czecho-Slovak Minister and Mme. Hurban, the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins, the Irish Minister and Mrs. Robert Brennan, Mrs. Henry F. Grady arriving with Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck and Miss Minnie Mae Fleming; Mme. Irimescu, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Green, of New York; Maj. and Senora Felipe Munilla, of the Cuban Embassy—and so on, through the diplomatic blue book and the list of delegates to the Scientific Congress.

Engagement Announced

Bachrach.

MISS MARY PATRICIA LENNON, whose engagement to John Edward Richards is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Gorman Lennon. Mr. Richards is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Richards. The bride-elect was graduated from the Academy of the Sacred Heart and is also a graduate of the Immaculata Junior College. Mr. Richards received his degree from the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service. The wedding will take place in June

Boyd Girls to Be On Radio Tuesday

The talented Boyd triplets, singing and dancing daughters of the Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Boyd, will appear on the radio program, "We, the People," next Tuesday evening in New York. Their parents will accompany them to Manhattan and the family will stay at the Waldorf.

The Ambassador, Senora de Boyd and the triplets will leave tomorrow evening with the delegates to the Eighth Scientific Congress for a boat trip to historic Williamsburg. The Boyds will proceed from there to Norfolk.

Dumbarton to Open Saturday

Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt, president of the board of managers for the Home for Incurables, has compiled some helpful suggestions so that those visiting the gardens of Dumbarton Oaks on Saturday may get the most out of their tour. The famous gardens are being opened for the benefit of the home.

Those who desire to see the full extent and beauty of the acres should first visit Catalogue House, wnere a map showing the different gardens is displayed, she says. Also shown are plans in color of the trees and flowers in season at this time.

One of the loveliest yew-bordered walks in the country may be seen by turning left as one leaves the conservatory. This walk leads down a stone paved descent to a fountain and pool set in a wide circle of green-surrounded yew.

The herb garden is a little stone walled inclosure not far from the conservatory. There sweet scented herbs flourish and an arbor-shaded bench invites one to quiet enjoyment. Further down the same path, past rose gardens and box inclosed plots thick with flowers, are the open air theater and reflecting pool.

Mrs. Finkenstaedt also suggests that visitors follow one of the many paths to the north, past the gorgeous flower beds where twin Irish yews stand sentinel at either end.

The gardens will be open at 2 o'clock, and throughout the afternoon Mrs. William E. Newton, assisted by members of the board and a group of debutantes, will serve tea on the terrace.

Drummonds Feted at Tea

Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard entertained at a small tea yesterday afternoon in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. Roscoe Drummond, who recently came here from Boston. Mr. Drummond is head of the Washington bureau of the Christian Science Monitor.

Among those who attended the party were Sir Owen and Lady Chalkley, of the British Embassy; Mme. Cantacuzene and her cousin, Grant Smith; Mr. and Mrs. George Rublee, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Cuniberti, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Louchheim, and Mrs. Charles Lea, who will leave Washington today to return to her home near Philadelphia for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard will go to Philadelphia this week-end to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Bok. Returning to Washington on Monday, they will leave again the latter part of next week to visit Mrs. Lea and to attend with her the opening of the Devon Horse Show on May 26.

Turneys Honor The Sullivans With a Dinner

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Hugh W. Turney entertained at a dinner last night at the Army-Navy Country Club in honor of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. William E. Sullivan. Commander Sullivan has been assigned to duty on the U. S. S. Chicago and will leave in June for his new post.

Among guests at last night's dinner were Commander and Mrs. J. H. Chadwick, Commander and Mrs. Paul Lee, Commander and Mrs. Louis Dreller, and Commander and Mrs. W. B. Goggins, of Annapolis.

Diplomats Among Notables Taking Horse Show Boxes

The Italian Ambassador, Prince Colonna, and the Australian Minister and Mrs. Richard G. Casey are among the additional boxholders for the Junior League Horse Show to be held at Meadowbrook for three days beginning tomorrow.

Others who have taken a box for the event include Senator Arthur Capper, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Berle, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mrs. William B. Legg, Mrs. Pierre Gaillard, Mrs. Herbert Slocum, Mrs. Henry Erwin, Mrs. Lloyd Wilson, Mrs. Randall Hagner, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, George Harrison, W. F. Burrows, Mrs. Lothrop Luttrell, Floyd Waggaman, Ward McCabe, Mrs. Ord Preston, Randolph Kaufman, Mrs. H. I. Cone and Mrs. Harold Walker.

Miss F. H. Benzing Engaged to Wed

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Florence Helen Benzing, of this city and Cincinnati Ohio, to Porter C. Layne, of Indianapolis.

Miss Benzing, the daughter of William E. Benzing, of Washington, and Mrs. C. L. Sprague, of Cincinnati, Ohio, for a number of years, has been attached to the national staff of the American Red Cross in Washington. She is a graduate of Central High School, and will receive a degree in law next month from the National University of Law.

Mr. Layne is a war service field director for the American Red Cross, stationed at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana. A native of Kentucky, he received a degree in law from the University of Louisville.

The wedding will take place the latter part of this month.

Dr. and Mrs. Jardine's Guests Leave for N. Y.

Dr. and Mrs. Adolph Ziefle, of Carvallis, Oreg., who have been visiting in Washington for several days, will leave today for New York City before returning to the West.

On Sunday they were guests of honor at a tea given by Dr. and Mrs. James T. Jardine. Mrs. Jardine, a sculptress, had some of her work on display.

Cuban Envoy Gives Party At Embassy

Diplomats of Americas, Science Delegates Attend Function

South and Latin Americans, who have held the center of the social spotlight here this week, were in the majority at the gay reception given last night at the Cuban embassy by the Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga.

Present were diplomats from the 21 American Republics as well as delegates to the Eighth Scientific Congress. They found the spacious embassy filled with vases of spring flowers. On the landing half way up the red carpeted marble stairway were arrangements of pastel colored gladioli and other blossoms, and low bowls of these were in the ballroom.

A generous buffet—sandwiches, cold salmon, ice cream, and cake—was set up in the dining-room, and across the hall was all the champagne one could wish.

High spot of the evening was the bestowing of the decoration of the Order of Carlos J. Finlay on several distinguished Cubans and Americans. Presentation was made by Dr. Juan M. Moya, Secretary of Sanitation of Cuba, who arrived at dawn yesterday by plane from Havana. He was accompanied by Dr. Fraga.

Dr. Finlay At Party

Dr. Carlos E. Finlay, son of the great Cuban scientist who discovered that yellow fever was transmitted by the mosquito, was among the guests. Dr. Finlay came to attend the recent Pan American Sanitary Conference and has been staying at the embassy.

The decorations were presented in the ballroom. The recipients were Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service; Ambassador Fraga, Dr. Luis Ortega, of Havana; Dr. William Thornwald Davis and Dr. Thomas Cajigas, of Washington, and the Rev. Gutierrez Lanza. Also John J. Moran and John R. Kissinger, two of the men who offered themselves for experimental purposes when the United States Yellow Fever Commission was engaged in investigations to stamp out the disease. An award was also bestowed posthumously on Miss Clara Maas, who died as the result of experiments with yellow fever control.

Serving as the Ambassador's hostess for the party was Senora de Baron, wife of the Minister Counselor. She wore a gown of glimmering silver satin, made with a halter neck and trimmed in front and back with glittering clips.

Party Lasts Till Late

Among the several hundred who called during the evening were the Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora de Martins, the Colombian envoy, Dr. Gabriel Turbay, the Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Boyd, the latter wearing powder blue lace, the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos—she was attired in black marquisette trimmed with Chantilly lace—and the Dominican envoy and Senora de Pastoriza. The latter's gown of blue chiffon had a graceful pleated skirt.

Another lovely Latin-American lady present was Senora de De Bayle, wife of the Minister of Nicaragua. With her gown of toast-colored lace she wore a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Cajigas was on hand to see her husband decorated, and chose a frock of flowered white organdy with an embroidered motif of pastel rosebuds and green leaves. The gown was made on princess lines, with a full skirt and puffed sleeves.

With her was her houseguest, Mrs. Patria Cordova-Davila, of Puerto Rico. The latter wore powder blue chiffon combined with a lace bodice.

At the conclusion of the gay party, which lasted until a late hour, all the guests decided that they were indeed glad the Ambassador is back again after an absence of several weeks and that the embassy is once again the scene of merry parties.

Two 'At Homes' Keep Service Set In Party Whirl

Two gayly informal "at homes" yesterday afternoon had Marine Corps officers, other members of the service contingent and a scattering of residentials in the partying whirl from 6 to 7 p. m.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Charles Thomas Brooks entertained about 100 guests in their quarters at the Marine Barracks. The hostess wore a floor-length crepe frock, fashioned with a print skirt and a white blouse, and received in the drawing room, where guests gathered and were served.

Meanwhile, Capt. and Mrs. Frank Schwable were entertaining around 60 guests at a cocktail party that was half indoors and half outside, on the porch. Mrs. Schwable was trimly turned out in a blue lace dress, made with a jacket. Among the guests were Capt. Schwable's parents, Col. and Mrs. Frank J. Schwable, who recently arrived from the West Coast for a visit; and Mrs. Schwable's parents, Capt. J. B. Pollard, U. S. N., and Mrs. Pollard, of Quantico.

About the Town with DUDLEY HARMON

ONE OF Mrs. R. H. Dunlap's most faithful correspondents is the 70-year-old mayor of Loue, in France. Mrs. Dunlap has a house there and has always spent her summers at the village, which is about 150 miles from Paris.

Early last fall Mrs. Dunlap sent the mayor some money to be used for village relief, but he answered that he didn't think they needed it at the time so would hoard it. Now he writes that he has begun to spend the funds and sends meticulously itemized accounts of where every penny goes. Mrs. Dunlap has also notified him that he may distribute the vegetables from her garden for anybody in need.

HER CHATEAU at Loue was occupied by the Germans in the War of 1870. The mayor and her friends over there are anxious for her to return to their midst. As vice chairman of the Washington Committee of the Friends of France, Mrs. Dunlap is active in local money raising for the French evacuees.

Her nearest neighbor at Loue is a French peasant who has seen his six sons and his son-in-law off for the war. Mrs Dunlap says there are enough human interest stories in the letters from the mayor to fill a book.

Mrs. Dunlap has written several novels—one was laid in France—and is now hard at work helping to raise funds for the National Symphony Orchestra.

CONSTITUTION HALL was jammed the other evening with a distinguished crowd of diplomats and their wives for the Toscanini concert in honor of the scientific delegates. There was much subdued mopping of brows, as the hall was very hot, and after the program an attendant at the door leading from the platform stood all ready with an enormous white handkerchief for the distinguished conductor.

HERE AND THERE: The Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora de Martins, the latter wearing a bright red print topped by a silver fox cape . . . Mme. Espil and Senora de Scilingo leaning against the balustrade outside during intermission and chatting with the head of the Argentine delegation to the Conference . . . Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins occupying the White House box with several friends, and looking cool and summery in a red and white print with a cluster of fresh white flowers at the waist . . . Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn sitting in the balcony with Angus Malcolm of the British Embassy.

MR. AND MRS. Stanley Woodward sharing a box with Mrs. Edwin Watson . . . Stellita Stapleton and Zeva Fish with beaux . . . and every other person speaking Spanish, so that one felt almost as though one were in South America.

PRACTICALLY ALL invitations these days are to coming-out parties. The Wilson Comptons have cards out for a tea on Saturday, May 25, for their daughter, Catherine, and Mr. and Mrs. William Flather, jr., have issued invitations to a similar party in honor of Georgianna Flather on June 5.

Another get-together for the younger set will be Peggy Wagner's dinner on June 6 at the Chevy Chase Club.

Biddles to Give Dinner Tonight

The Solicitor General and Mrs. Francis Biddle will entertain at a dinner this evening, having among their guests several members of the Pennsylvania bar who are in town to attend the meetings of the Law Institute.

Earlier, Mr. and Mrs. Biddle will entertain at cocktails a number of delegates to the institute, the Attorney General and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, and several other members of the Department of Justice contingent, as well as some Supreme Court Justices and their wives.

Mrs Biddle, who is known to the literary world as Katharine Garrison Chapin, the poet, had planned to be in White Plains, N. Y., last evening for a symphony program featuring her poem, "Lament for the Stolen," set to music for a woman's chorus by Harl McDonald. Although Mrs. Biddle could not be there, the program went off as scheduled with a performance of the Brico Junior symphony orchestra, under the leadership of Antonia Brico, appearing at the White Plains High School.

Miss Brico, incidentally, plans to be in Washington for a few days around May 20, before leaving for a South American tour.

"Lament for the Stolen" which was written in response to a request for a poem to be set to music by Mr. McDonald, was first presented in 1938 by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and a chorus of 200 women's voices under the direction of Eugene Ormandy.

Dr. Hu to Attend Berea Labor Fete

Dr. Hu-Shih, Chinese Ambassador, has gone to Berea, Ky., to attend Berea College's Labor Day festivities. He will then go to the TVA dam for a look at that great engineering construction.

The Ambassador will entertain at a garden party on Wednesday, May 22, at the embassy in honor of members of the local Cornell Club. He is a graduate of that university. Kenneth Baker, secretary of the club, is in charge of the invitations.

Miss Van Wart Becomes Bride In Los Angeles

A wedding yesterday in Bel Air, Los Angeles, of interest to Washington was that of Miss Catherine Llewellyn Van Wart, of that city and New Orleans, to John Woods Norcross, of San Francisco. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's father, Dr. Roy Van Wart.

Mrs. Norcross has frequently visited Mrs. J. Breckinridge Bayne here and has many friends among the younger set. She is the daughter of the late May Llewellyn Jones, of Bramwell, W. Va. and New Orleans, and the granddaughter of the late Judge James Van Wart, of New Brunswick, and of the late Jenkins Jones, of West Virginia. She attended the University of California and is a member of the Los Angeles Junior League.

Mr. Norcross, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Copeland Norcross, of San Francisco, is a graduate of Stanford University.

Birthday Party Given by Byrons At Their Home

Representative and Mrs. William D. Byron were at home to a large number of their friends from Maryland and Washington yesterday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock. The party was planned in celebration of Representative Byron's birthday. There was a cake with candles centering the tea table in the dining room, and in the garden there was a stringed quartet playing and singing "Happy Birthday to You."

Bouquets of white lilacs, tulips and roses decorated the drawing room and dining room. Flowers in profusion were in bloom in the garden where most of the guests collected and lingered.

The Diplomatic Corps, official society, cave dwelling Washington and Maryland residents were well represented in the throng. Mrs. Byron, who received informally, was gowned in floor length peach lace made with long sleeves and a flowing skirt.

Among those assisting her were her house guests, Mrs. Thomas Harding and Miss Virginia Carmichael, of Hagerstown, Md.

Soroptimist Club Hears M. E. Kliegel, Economist

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

It is no time to worry about posterity when boys and girls today are underfed, ill housed and often so poorly clothed they cannot attend school, M. E. Kliegel, economist and radio analyst, told the Soroptimist Club yesterday. He spoke at its weekly luncheon at the Willard Hotel and was introduced by Mrs. Elinor Lee, program chairman.

Mr. Kliegel, who is here for the eighth American Scientific Congress, recently completed a tour of 30 key American cities in a survey of economic conditions.

Women, he said, instead of priding themselves on the attainments of their sex in business and the professions should justify their present place in the world of affairs by making the problem of those less fortunate than they their primary concern.

Although there is still a limited amount of discrimination against women in the older professions, such as medicine and law, where men have firmly entrenched themselves, it does not exist in the newer ones, such as radio, he said.

The problem of the women of America is that of those in their midst who have not had the opportunity America should offer, he said. "In our own country, there are groups who are alien to opportunity and advantages—to those things which make America great," declared Mr. Kliegel. "Although we may not say, regarding the WPA workers and others in need, 'they are not our problem,' we act that way."

Asserting it was easy to arouse sympathy for the Czechs or Chinese and get a generous response to relief drives, he charged that "when we ask the people of America to cooperate in the greatest war in history in the country—the war on poverty, illiteracy and lack of opportunity—they refuse because they are afraid it will affect the people's self-reliance."

The unsatisfied needs of the consumer public are a potential market for producers, he said. "If only from the standpoint of good business," he urged America to "see to it that the sort of things Mrs. Roosevelt spoke of last Saturday are done." He quoted her assertion that the time had come when those of us who have a measure of comfort must share it. Paying tribute to the First Lady, he said he would gladly vote for her for President.

He advanced as a remedy for the present situation, "to balance realistically the cycle of production, distribution and consumption, absorbing all employable men and women. The specific talents and creative abilities of women should be welcomed as a definite contribution to our economic and social as well as political life," he said.

"Segregating men and women in their economic situations is a Fascist concept and, were we to displace women in industry and the professions, it would not solve our economic problems," he declared.

Miss Mary Bourke, president of the club, opened the meeting and Miss Enid Mitchell sang, accompanied by Mrs. Jewell Downs. Miss Nora Huffman, one of the members, placed at each plate lilies of the valley which she had brought from her garden.

Chevy Chase Installs Officers

Underwood & Underwood

Woman's Club Installs Heads

Officers of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, headed by Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby, who is serving for her second term, were installed yesterday at the final meeting of the season, held at the clubhouse. Another feature of the program was a talk on fingerprinting by Lee R. Pennington, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the taking of fingerprints of the club members as they left the auditorium.

The officers in addition to Mrs. Kerby are: Mrs. Henry DeCoursey Adams, first vice president, and Mrs. F. S. Brackett, corresponding secretary, both reelected; Mrs. Philip P. Gott, second vice president; Mrs. Ralph W. Bonnett, recording secretary; Mrs. Roy J. Jorolemon, treasurer; Mrs. Diller B. Groff, assistant treasurer.

Mrs. R. Seabury d'Espard, chairman of American Citizenship, introduced Mr. Pennington, whose wife is a member of the club. He explained the value of fingerprinting in crime detection and that the prints of the fingers of both hands were really necessary for complete certainty in identification.

Mrs. Roger Whiteford, chairman of the Red Cross of Montgomery County, presented to the club, on behalf of the Chevy Chase Branch of the Red Cross, which has been working at the clubhouse weekly, a handsome Red Cross flag. It is the plan of the branch to continue its activities at the clubhouse during the summer.

The music for the afternoon was a group of soprano solos by Mrs. Sue Oliver, accompanied by Mrs. Helen Grimes.

Mrs. Bonnett, a delegate to the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs Convention, April 24-25 reported on the session. There were also annual reports by section and committee chairmen, at the business meeting. The club voted $50 to the National Symphony Orchestra and $25 to the Metropolitan Opera fund.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Bennett chairman of the art section, presented to the club a guest book, done in copper, the handwork by Mrs. Clarence Dawson with pen work by Mrs. Miles Trowbridge.

Potomac Presbytery Will Begin Today

The twenty-eighth annual meeting of Potomac Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church of the United States will be held at Catoctin Church, Waterford, Va., today and tomorrow. Miss Louise A. Davidson, of Bethesda, Md., the president, will preside, and Mrs. D. L. Russell, of Moile, Ala., will lead the Bible study of the three Epistles of John.

The following speakers are on the program: Mrs. Frances Crawford, of Farmville, Va., president of the Synodical; Mrs. A. Hoyt Miller, from the Belgian Congo; Dr. T. K. Currie, of Richmond, Va.

Norris B. Chipmans To Arrive Here Today

The American Consul in Cairo, Egypt, Norris B. Chipman, will arrive in Washington today accompanied by Mrs. Chipman. They will be here for several months on leave and will stop with Mr. Chipman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bowie Chipman.

Before being sent to Cairo, Mr. Chipman was attached to the United States Embassy in Russia. They arrived in New York yesterday.

Mrs. Gunczy to Address District Movie Council at Annual Luncheon Today

MRS. BETTINA GUNCZY, secretary of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, will address the District of Columbia Motion Picture Council today at its annual luncheon at the Y. W. C. A.

The council, of which Mrs. Frank A. Linzel is president, tries to encourage higher standards of motion pictures and to stimulate interest in and appreciation for better films. Its regular meetings during the last year have been at the Y. W. C. A. with special ones at various Government departments, where their motion picture work was studied.

Members organizations affiliated with the council, include the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, League of American Pen Women, Twentieth Century Club, Friends Meeting, Daughters of American Revolution, Federation of Catholic Alumnae, Community Film Council, Arts Club, District Federation of Women's Clubs; Y. W. C. A., American Association of University Women, Council of Church Women, All Souls Woman's Alliance, W. C. T. U., Social Hygiene Society, Boy Scouts, Georgetown Neighborhood Council and First Ward Citizens' Association.

Officers, in addition to Mrs. Linzel, are: Mrs. C. Dwight Curtiss, first vice president; Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt, second vice president; Mrs. Belle Parker, corresponding secretary; Mrs. E. W. Chapin, recording secretary; Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm, treasurer; Mrs. E. J. Ryan, program chairman; Mrs. Elmer Stewart, chairman of reviews, and Miss C. Virginia Diedel, counsel.

PLANS PICNIC—The Monday Evening Club will have its annual picnic meeting Monday night of next week at the Palisaes Playground, Sherrier street and Dana place, Judge Fay L. Bentley, president, announces.

A feature will be the annual baseball game, with Herbert L. Willett, jr., director of the Community Chest, and Robert E. Bondy, director of public welfare as this season's team captains.

The business meeting will include reports of committees and election of officers. The slate, headed by Maj. Charles H. Dodd for president, includes: Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, first vice president; Miss Louise Maguire, second vice president; Miss K. Virginia Timmons, treasurer, and Morris Klass, secretary.

GRAY LADIES TEA—Invitations have been issued by the Naval Hospital Unit of Gray Ladies for a tea Tuesday afternoon from 4 to 6 in the recreation room of the United States Naval Hospital.

MORE OFFICERS—Judge Lynn Chapter of the D. A. R., is among those which has elected its new officers. Mrs. Eldridge Lee Myers is regent for the coming year, succeeding Mrs. J. Wesley Buchanan. Serving with her are Mrs. Dorothy C. Hanson, vice regent; Mrs. Ora R. Lewis, chaplain; Mrs. Miles V. Englebach, recording secretary; Miss Margaret L. Vann, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert J. Swingle, treasurer; Mrs. Dolan S. Donohue, historian; Mrs. H. Carroll Phillips, registrar and Mrs. Buchanan, delegate.

The chapter recently presented to the new chapter house a handsome silver bowl in honor of Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, vice president general, and Mrs. Carlton C. Hoffner, both chapter members.

Marcia Burns Chapter will have a silver tea Saturday at the chapter house from 4 to 6.

C. P. A. Elects Judge Bentley

Judge Fay Bentley, of the Juvenile Court was elected a member of the board of directors of the Children's Protective Association at a luncheon meeting yesterday at the Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Walter Bloedorn, chairman of the nominating committee, pointed out that the association had worked for many years in close contact with the court, and was founded by Judge J. Wiler Latimer to care for children before it became necessary to take them into the Juvenile Court.

"We have functioned in this way since 1916," she said, "and it is most helpful to further this cooperation by having Judge Bentley as a member of our board."

The association went on record as approving the exclusion of social workers under the social security law provisions and the transfer of necessary funds for this purpose from the budget.

The annual budget was submitted and increased funds were asked to provide for enlarged foster home care, in line with recommendations in various reports on social needs in the District and as a part of the plan of the Children's Protective Association to increase this service from 87 children to 500. This number of homes, would be adequate, it was stated.

Foster home service, according to Miss Mildred Ferrett, executive secretary of the Association, has been found to be the most successful means of preventing delinquency, providing a necessary service for unmarried mothers, and a means of giving adequate care to convalescent colored children.

Those members of the board present at the meeting were Mrs. Jesse C. Adkins, Mrs. Walter S. Bloedorn, Mrs. Frederick M. Bradley, Mrs. Hawes Dunn, Mrs. Donnel Foster Hewett, Mrs. William Hurd Hill, Dr. Loren T. Johnson, Mrs. R. Thomas West and Miss Terrett.

Society Poetry Group Meets

The Martha MacLear poetry group of the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women, announced their annual poetry contest awards at a dinner last evening.

Miss Betsy Winter, received first award. She was also a winner in one of the undergraduate contests held by the association several years ago. Miss Ruth Evelyn Henderson, who is a local writer, with several published volumes of petry, received the second award. Miss Esther Colvin placed third and Mrs. Paul Kirby was fourth.

Paul H. Oesher, assistant editor of Smithsonian publications, was guest speaker. He was also chairman of the judging committee and was assisted by Mrs. Louis Chase and Miss Violet McDougal.

Mrs. Horace Torbert, was toastmistress and introduced the speaker and announced the winners. The prize winning poems were read by Miss Florence McCracken, of the Marjorie Webster School of Speech.

In commemoration of the approaching Emily Dickenson anniversary, Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith provided place cards with quotations from her poems.

Governor Price, Board Pay Visit To Mount Vernon

Gov. James H. Price of Virginia and the board of visitors made their annual trip to Mount Vernon yesterday and were greeted by the regent of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association, and the vice regents, here from all parts of the country for their yearly session.

In the official party with the Governor were Norman Call, of Richmond; William A. Smoot of Alexandria; Louis Chauvenet, of Esmont; Charles G. Price, of Harrisonburg, and Mrs. Albert Jeffreys, of Chase City. They were accompanied by Mrs. Price, wife of the Governor; Mrs. Charles G. Price and Mrs. Chauvenet.

After the placing of wreaths on the graves of George and Martha Washington, the Rev. John Austin Runkel, new rector of Pohick Church, read Gen. Washington's prayer for the United States.

$975,000,000 WPA Bill Indorsed

000,000 under the 1941 budget; while the OGR, which is part of the Executive Office of the President, was allowed to $500,000, compared with $380,000 last year and $1,055,000 recommended in the budget.

In allowing the WPA grant to be spread over eight instead of 12 months, the committee took the precaution of fixing maximum monthly employment averages from July to November, inclusive—the period of the election campaign.

Although most of the general features of last year's bill are retained, the committee relaxed the provision requiring 30-day "furloughs" for all workers on the rolls 18 months by excepting heads of families 45 years old or more, if they have dependents.

The committee retained the provision for an average local sponsorship in each State of 25 per cent of the cost of projects; it specifically banned funds for the radio division or United States Film service; and it continued its prohibition of the theater project and any other projects that have no local sponshorship.

Fixes $50,000 Limit

The committee fixed a $50,000 limit (it was $52,000 this year), on non-Federal buildings constructed by WPA, and added to this category all physical structures such as bridges, viaducts and tunnels.

A severe restriction of administrative expenses to roughly 3 per cent of the total was written into the bill, which gives the WPA 10 per cent less for this purpose than it had asked.

Under the present law, employment preference is given to veterans, and the committee yesterday asked this provision be extended to unmarried widows and wives of veterans.

In granting FSA funds, the committee allowed funds for construction of 22 additional migratory labor camps, which, with existing facilities, would provide accommodation for some 18,000 family units.

Funeral services for Thomas K. Seay, jr., 33, of 4935 Quebec street northwest, who died Tuesday at Doctors Hospital from injuries suffered in an automobile accident Sunday, will be at 3 p. m. today in Gawler's funeral home.

Mr. Seay, an investigator for a credit corporation, was a native of Huntsville, Ala., but came to Washington at an early age and was graduated from Eastern High School and George Washington University.

Surviving are his father and mother, Mrs. Lucile Powell, Seay, both of Washington. There is also a brother, Charles Powell Seay, of Spartenburg, S. C. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Lutheran Home for the Aged Celebrates Its Founders' Day

Guests Dine With 500 Visitors From District and Nearby Area; Greatly Blessed Says Resident Past 100

Residents of the National Lutheran Home for the Aged, from 99-year-old and crippled Amos Rebert down to the youngest had the time of their lives yesterday at annual Founders' Day ceremonies.

As happy and frisky as kids at a birthday party, they ate dinner with more than 500 visitors from Maryland, Washington and Virginia; proudly displayed and sold personal handiwork, and showed guests through the modern, well-equipped building at Eighteenth and Douglas streets northeast.

Greatly Blessed

"The Lord has blessed me greatly in giving me this lovely and beautiful home in which to end my days," Rebert smilingly assured visitors from a chair in his room, where he is confined. "I'm always happy," he said.

Sister Mabel Stanley, matron of the home, said yesterday that Rebert must be past the century mark, since his age is calculated from his baptism in 1841. There were no official birth records then, she explained.

Following the dinner, a service was conducted in the chapel by Dr. John Weidley, for 34 years home president, and Dr. Amos Traver, of Frederick, Md., president of the Maryland Synod of the United Lutheran Church.

Home Managers Praised

Delivering the sermon, Dr. Traver stressed the necessity of well managed and comfortable homes for the aged, and congratulated his hosts on their progress.

Taking an active part in yesterday's program were members and supporters of the Inglenook Club, which makes garments and other articles for use at the home and outside.

Lynham Funeral To Be Held Today

Funeral services for Edgar Hardwicke Lynham, 66, retired railroad auditor, who died Tuesday at Doctors Hospital, will be at 1 p. m. today in Gawler's funeral home.

A native of Richmond, Mr. Lynham came to Washington in 1900 to work for the Southern Railway System. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mero Marmaduke Lynham, and three children, Cameron Bayne Lynham, Mrs. Virginia L. Wrenn and John Marmaduke Lynham, all of Washington.

Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery, Alexandria, Va.

House Favors New Judges

The House quickly approved yesterday a report of Senate-House conferees on legislation to authorize the appointment of 11 new Federal judges. The report now goes to the Senate, which may act today.

House Committee Probers Reveal 'Misdeeds' of WPA

half years. Between December 9, 1937, and January 1, 1939, he spent 209½ days in Chicago, his "legal voting residence," although Washington was his official station, the report declared.

Hunter was shown to have made four trips to Louisville, Ky., on Kentucky Derby dates, and 13 to New Orleans or Baton Rouge, La., embracing legal holidays, some coincident with important football games.

In the hearings made public yesterday, Hunter explained to the committee that he had "no personal business in Chicago" and "never had a home there." He asserted there was "no irregularity" in his attendance at the Derby, and the fact that he went to the race while he was in Kentucky on Government business involves "no crime."

The committee investigation disclosed that State WPA Administrator John K. Jennings made 72 trips, "practically all" over week-ends, to Evansville, his residence city, and also journeyed at Government expense to Louisville and Chicago coincidental with the Derby and World Series. Jennings replied, however, that he conducted official business on these trips.

The committee reported "the worst situation" encountered by investigators was in Louisiana.

Among the WPA projects in Louisiana that came in for criticism was a rodent control project which allegedly cost "$2.97 per rat exterminated." The peak employment under this project is "coincidental in point of time with primaries and elections in Louisiana," the report said, but the WPA emphatically denied the charge.

Streets were built in areas where there were no houses or were merely private real estate developments; barracks were constructed at "impossible" cost; a park was developed at a cost of $447,000 but has been allowed to run to weeds so that it is now "practically impassable;" and a golf course was built which "in effect serves only as a private club to a few prominent citizens;" these were some of the charges made against WPA in Louisiana, most of which were denied.

In some other States, such as Washington, identical bidding on WPA contracts was charged. The report alleged that the Washington WPA had bought and failed to use a long list of material, including 6,588 shovels, 157 drinking fountains and 797 axes. The Washington WPA retorted that the fountains now are "all in use."

In Pennsylvania, investigators found that "Federal and State officials" demanded an increase in the rolls "at or near primary election period in 1938," and the rolls were augmented by 10,000 workers. "The files show large numbers of dismissals shortly after election," said the report.

On one Pennsylvania project, WPA workers did "two hours of work per day," and on another, a road was built at a cost of $212,000 per mile, the report charged. A WPA road in Florida had not been used for a year or more, it was said.

Pullman Men Say Drinking Is Increasing

Witnesses representing the Order of Sleeping Car Conductors testified before a Senate committee yesterday to a "shocking increase" in drinking among train passengers, especially women.

They appeared before an Interstate Commerce subcommittee to support a bill by Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, which would require sleeping car companies to employ a conductor to supervise each train which sold berths between 6 o'clock in the evening and 8 in the morning.

(Immediately after the hearing George A. Kelly, vice president of the Pullman Co., made this statement to reporters:

("The testimony presented this morning by representatives of the Pullman conductors organization was grossly unfair and not in accordance with the record facts. The hearing was discontinued this morning before the company had an opportunity to present the facts and it is expected that representatives of the company will have this opportunity when the hearing is resumed tomorrow.")

I. Johnson, a sleeping car conductor who said he had 36 years of experience and now served on trains between Chicago and Los Angeles, was one of the witnesses. He testified drinking had become a "major problem" since prohibition.

"It's easy to handle a drunk in a night club, cocktail bar, or saloon because he's among kindred spirits," Johnson said. "But in a Pullman car, when most passengers want to sleep, it's different. There is so much drunkenness among women nowdays and it's increasing."

Soldier Killed, 2 Hurt as Gun Team Stampedes

Coroner MacDonald last night decided the death of Private Michael Astore, 20-year-old soldier attached to Fort Myer, who was killed in a stampede of an artillery team on Baldensburg road yesterday was a traffic fatality. The death raised the District traffic toll to 20, 11 less than at this time last year.

Two other soldiers were injured by the horses when they stampeded in front of 3022 Bladensburg road northeast. Corporal Stephen S. Schwab, 25, suffered cuts on his head and face and the loss of two teeth. Private Phillip Kutcher, 31, received cuts on his forehead.

The accident occurred when C Battery of the Sixteenth Field Artillery, en route from Fort Hoyle, Md., to Fort Myer stopped to water and cool the horses after a 28-mile movement. It was said that eight of the animals reared when a bucket of water was thrown on one.

Astore was knocked down and the heavy caisson passed over him.

House Chiefs Insist on D. C. Budget Cuts

$1,406,173 Added In Senate Passage; Acceptance of Most Of It Is Indicated

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

House managers will insist on reductions in the $49,697,890 District supply bill voted yesterday by the Senate, it was indicated, but probably would accept a large part of the $1,406,173 appropriations added.

The Senate passed the measure without debate after adding $550 for the education of school children on the evils of drink and dope. The amendment was offered by Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas. Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, put the bill through its legislative hurdle in 17 minutes.

Upon Senator Overton's motion the Senate restored $15,000 for the drafting of plans for a Sixteenth street underpass at Scott Circle and an authorization for the Commissioners to construct the project with funds from the Federal highway aid fund.

Provides 25 More Police

The underpass provision was stricken from the House bill on a point of order. It will not be subject to a point of order when presented in the conference report.

Senator White (Republican), of Maine, asked Overton that when the police appropriation increase was reached whether it provided for additional policemen. The chairman replied that it would enable the department to add 25 men.

Senator White lives in the Kalorama section which Representative Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts, told the District subcommittee was underpoliced until after he reported he was threatened by an intruder.

The police personnel increase is expected to be one of the Senate appropriations that will be resisted by the House as members of the House subcommittee insisted during House hearings that the department is adequately staffed.

Opposition Seen for Schools

House managers will make a fight for restoration of the ban against further free education of nonresident pupils, but Senate conferees will remain adamant in view of the opposition of Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, to the proviso.

Overton's addition of $308,350 for the purchase of three sites and the drafting of plans for consolidated schools doubtless will run into opposition in the House.

The schools which would be replaced are the Cranch, Tyler, Van Ness, Morse, and Twining, Brent, Dent, Lenox and French.

Increases in welfare and health appropriations stand a better chance of acceptance although the authorization for a children's receiving home may be lost.

Senator conferees are Overton, Glass, Thomas, of Oklahoma; Chavez, of New Mexico, and King, of Utah, Democrats; and Nye, of North Dakota, and Capper, Republicans.

Capital News In Brief

Company E Dines

Veterans of old Company E, First District of Columbia Infantry, met for a "Muster In" dinner last night in the Harrington Hotel. Richard L. Lamb, who presided, said "many incidents of the past were gone over," and expressed the hope that this first reunion would become an annual event.

Others attending were Humphrey Beckett, John M. Botts, E. Hartstall, L. K. Mangum, D. L. Morgan, Jesse Owen, Frank E. Skinner and Andrew D. Taylor.

$41 Reported Lost

Sherman Dearing, 25, a janitor at an apartment house at 1201 Thirteenth street northwest, told police last night that a pickpocket removed $41 from a watchpocket of his trousers at Fifteenth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Rehearsal Tonight

Earl Robinson, 26-year-old composer of "Ballad for Americans," will appear tonight at the Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A., 901 Rhode Island avenue northwest, to attend a rehearsal of his work, which will be presented at the "Evening of Americana," to be held in the Jewish Community Center June 8.

Recently awarded a Guggenheim fellowship, Robinson is presently at work writing music for Carl Sandburg's "The People —Yes." A native of Washington State, he will meet with members of the Congressional delegation tomorrow.

Child Hurt in Traffic

Six-year-old Patricia Whiddon, of 701 Longfellow street northwest, suffered minor injuries yesterday, police said, when she ran from behind two parked autos into a car driven by Charles J. Voith, 741 Longfellow street northwest. She was treated by a private physician.

Plays Peek-a-Boo

Police last night sought a peeping Tom who took a peek at a scout car and disappeared. The trespasser first peeped through the windows of the fashionable Holton-Arms School, at 2125 S street northwest. Students called police, but kept their eyes on the prowler. He vanished as the police car drove up in front.

Heat Victim

Walter Bell, colored, 35, a laborer on a construction job at Forty-eighth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, collapsed yesterday while at work. He was taken to Georgetown Hospital by an Eighth Precinct patrol wagon and treated for heat prostration. He was reported in fair condition.

Baker Leads Barrett in D. C. I. T. U. Ballot

Pro-A. F. L. President Takes 6-Vote Edge; Delegates Elected

Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, participating in the vote for officers of the International Typographical Union, last night gave a slight lead to its pro-A. F. of L. president against an anti-A. F. of L. opponent.

Results of the balloting here, for the third largest local in the country, gave 1,059 votes to Claude M. Baker, incumbent, and 1,053 to Francis P. Barrett, who is first vice president.

The District printers cast 1,150 votes for John J. Conley as against 930 for Woodruff Randolph for the office of secretary-treasurer. Randolph is editor of the Typographical Journal and Conley is second vice president.

Elected as delegates to the typographical convention, to be held in New Orleans August 17, in a closely contested fight, were Louis E. Shomette and Marion P. Brewington, of the Government Printing Office; Jack F. O'Connell, of the Times-Herald, and Floyd C. Grimes, of the Nave Typographic Service.

Leaves 'Good Luck' Note, Ends Life

George A. Campbell, 35, killed himself with illuminating gas yesterday in his apartment at 929 New Hampshire avenue northwest.

He was found unconscious by his landlady, Mrs. Mattie Alexander, who detected an odor of gas. She told police Campbell had the end of a hose from a gas jet in his mouth.

Near the body Detective Sergt. William J. Liverman, homicide squad, found an old picture of a child on which was written: "Goodbye, Hetlen and good luck, George." Liverman said Campbell had not worked steadily.

Dr. Salvatore Riccobono has provided the paper which will be read before the final conference for the 1939-40 academic year at the seminar on Roman law, named for him, which will be held in the St. Thomas More Law Library, McMahon Hall, Catholic University, today at 8 p. m. The paper prepared by the famous University of Rome professor will be presented by Dr. James B. Thayer of the Harvard Law School.

'Moderate' U. S. Unbalanced Budget Urged

Harvard Dean-Banker, Stanford Professor Air Views at Parley

Two nationally known economists crossed verbal swords last night over the unbalanced budget and found, after the din of battle died away, that they were not so very far apart after all.

They were John H. Williams, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and dean of the graduate school of public administration at Harvard University, and Theodore John Kreps, professor of economics at Stanford University and a member of the Monopoly Committee.

They spoke at the third session of the Conference on National Economic Policy at George Washington University.

Williams assailed the premises on which advocates of a permanently unbalanced budget base their arguments. The theory, he said, is that savings are continuing on a level keel while opportunities for investment are contracting. Thus, he added, it is said that the Government must "soak up the excess savings and invest them."

"There is no evidence," he charged "that savings are continuing."

But, he concluded, despite these doubts he would advocate heavy Government spending in times of depression and a permanent, "but moderate" unbalanced budget.

Kreps declared that the "fundamental problem" today is that of excess savings. He urged increased taxation and Government investment to eliminate "idle money."

"In fact," he concluded, "we could balance the budget immediately by boosting taxes in the upper income brackets."

Citizens Call For Adequate D. C. Defense

District Has 3 Antiaircraft Only, Chevy Chase Group Hears

The Chevy Chase Citizens Association last night called on Congress and the President to "insure adequate military defense of the District and prevent any subversive, alien or fifth column activities in the Washington area."

The resolution was adopted after Donald N. Carpenter declared there were but three antiaircraft guns in the District. Carpenter arose after Howard Dawson, jr., of the Young People's Presbyterian Church discussed the rat problem in the slum areas.

"I'd like to make a second speech on rats," Carpenter said, "the two-legged, human kind and with madmen loose in Europe, they constitute a definite threat to our security."

A resolution introduced by Dawson was adopted asking for the appointment of a sanitary engineer to work with the Health Department on the rat problem and related matters.

The association indorsed the action of the Washington committee of the National Safety Council in asking that the council's 1941 convention be held in the District. The resolution was sent to the Federation of Citizens Association with the request that other civic groups be asked to follow suit.

The meeting, which was the last of the spring season, voted to establish a service award to be given to that citizen of Chevy Chase who does the most each year for the good of the community.

The association also voted to thank the school boy safety patrol for their efficient work. A special program of entertainment for the youngsters will be staged by the association in the near future.

The door prize, an electric kitchen clock, went to Mrs. Gordon Dulin.

Northeast Boundary

The Northeast Boundary Citizens Association last night voted to ask President Roosevelt to veto the act carrying next year's District appropriations unless Congress includes in the supply bill funds for new junior and senior high schools in their area.

Pointing out overcrowded conditions in Brown Junior High School, where pupils of the Northeast area must now attend classes, H. D. Woodson, president, urged immediate acquisition of land, and the development of plans for a new school.

The association is requesting that $50,000 be included in the supply bill for purchasing land, and that another $10,000 be assigned to the drawing of plans. The group also seeks $40,000 for beginning the construction of a senior high school at Twenty-fifth street and Benning road northeast.

Sixteenth Street Highlands

Senate indorsement of the initial appropriations of $250,000 for the new Wilson Teachers College building at Fourteenth and Upshur streets northwest was reported last night at a meeting of the Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens Association. The association had previously indorsed construction of the college building at that location.

Mrs. Leo W. Kasehagen was appointed the unit's delegate to the Outdoor Cleanliness Association, recently formed for the general beautification of Washington.

Family Service Trustees Reelect W. P. Houghton

Woodson P. Houghton was reelected president of the Family Service Association yesterday at a meeting of the trustees in the association headquarters, 1022 Eleventh street northwest.

Other officers for the ensuing year are C. Carroll Glover and David E. Finley, vice president; Norman E. Towson, treasurer; William H. Savin, secretary and director.

Seven new trustees were elected. They are Dr. Mollie Ray Carroll, Dr. Howard H. Long, C. Carroll Morgan, Benjamin M. McKelway, Miss Sarah F. Schroeder, G. Howland Shaw and Mrs. Prentiss Willson.

The board adopted a memorial resolution to Walter S. Ufford, who died this last week. Ufford had been executive of the organization for 25 years, when it was known as Associated Charities.

The annual report revealed that the association had helped 2,419 families regain independence last year, one-third getting relief aid. A service for the blind was added in the year.

Holmes Gets Coolidge H.S. Principal Job

Board Appoints Eastern High Assistant, 36, To New School

Thomas J. Holmes, 36-year-old assistant principal of Eastern High School, yesterday was named principal of the new $1,450,000 Calvin Coolidge High School, Fifth street and Sheridan avenue northwest, due to open its doors next September.

The appointment was made yesterday by the Board of Education, acting on the recommendation of its personnel committee and of Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools.

Holmes has held his Eastern High post for the last five years. Previously he had 10 years' experience as a high school teacher of science and mathematics. He had also served as a night school principal.

He received a bachelor of science degree at the University of Maryland in 1924, and his master of science degree in chemistry at George Washington in 1930.

Health Services

The board yesterday heard recommendations for improvement of health services to school children in a report from Dr. Joseph A. Murphy of the School Medical Inspection Service of the Health Department.

Dr. Murphy's annual report listed as "urgent" the provision of an additional physiotherapist at a $2,000 salary "for assignment to the new cripple school."

Other recommendations included: Establishing of an ophthalmological clinic, equipped with instruments for testing eyes and vision of school children.

Three additional medical inspectors, part-time, at a minimum salary of $1,800, assigned to high schools. Their work would include examinations of all students on entrance and graduation.

Appointment of a consulting ophthalmologist, part-time, at minimum salary of $1,800.

Restoration to the budget of $5,400 for dental supplies for clinic services and for dental health education program.

Seek Dental Care

Restoration to budget of $7,500 for the equipment, materials and supplies for the new Southwest Health Center. Otherwise, he said, no dental service will be available for indigent preschool children and indigent adults from the maternal and child-welfare clinics.

Inclusion in budget of $1,500 item for dental health education materials.

After an "intensive dental education program" in the past year, the percentage of dental defects among elementary school children was reduced to 69.1 per cent, "lowest on record in comparable cities of the United States," according to the Murphy report which covered the calendar year 1939.

Officials to See Superbomb Test On Goats Today

Inventor Lester Barlow's "superbomb" will be tested at Aberdeen, Md., this morning before Congressmen, Army and Naval officials—and a number of goats.

The goats will be tethered at varying distances from a 1,000-pound sack of Barlow's liquid oxygen-carbon compound. The official observers will be seated in a stand at least 2,500 feet from the bomb, and Barlow said he expects to be behind a concrete wall when he detonates the explosive.

Goats are being used in the experiment because their reaction to explosive forces is believed comparable to that of human beings. An injunction suit brought by the Maryland Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is being disregarded in the test, the Associated Press reported last night.

D. C. Job Center Lacks Applicants For 70 Openings

Hint of a business boomlet here came from the District Employment Center yesterday. There are at least 70 jobs over and above the applicants on its lists who are available to fill them.

These are mainly in the building trades, in hotel and restaurant work, Edwin W. Jones, director of the center, said.

The jobs in building industry here—most of them for bricklayers, carpenters, and paperhangers—are in the residential construction, Jones said.

War Danger to U. S. Lies In Pacific, Dr. Walsh Says

'Keep Your Eyes on Soviet Russia,' Georgetown Dean Suggests; No Such Thing as Neutrality Left, Yale Club Told

American involvement in the second World War is more likely to come from the Pacific than from the Atlantic, the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, dean of the Foreign Service School at Georgetown University, declared last night at the sixty-sixth annual banquet of the Yale Club of Washington held at the Metropolitan Club, Seventeenth and H streets northwest.

Father Walsh reviewed the changes that have occurred in the American approach to foreign aggressions and said:

"We have practically accepted the policing of the Pacific Ocean. We are coming nearer and nearer to the crossroads of decision. All we can do is pray for a clear vision, stout heart and steady hand at the wheel for those in charge of our Government."

Sounding an emphatic note of warning, Father Walsh continued:

"Keep your eyes on Soviet Russia as well as on Italy. Remember that the policy of the Soviet government, from the beginning, has been based on hatred and it has not varied one iota.

"I believe that the ultimate objective of the Communist state is unchanged. It may be dormant for the moment but dormant as the cat that watches the mouse.

"There is no such thing left as neutrality. I agree with the suggestion which comes from South America that a nation be classified as belligerent or nonbelligerent rather than as belligerent or neutral.

"What is needed in this country is the development of patriotism—patriotism developed into statecraft. In Europe, from 1919 to the present day, hatred has been the basis of statecraft."

Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Washington Post and former president of the Yale Club of Washington, also explored the possibilities and probabilities of the international situation in his address to the 200 members of the club.

"We have felt secure in the breadth of the Atlantic Ocean," he said, "but if the Germans were victorious, their plans would not end with the eastern shore of this country. We must maintain faith in our ideals but we must do more. We must adjust our thinking to present day requirements."

Ogden D. Miller, Yale's director of alumni relations, reported to the club's members on the status of the student body. Representative John M. Vorys (Republican), of Ohio, was toastmaster. Present at the banquet were Robert L. O'Brien, president of the Harvard Club of Washington, and Huston Thompson, president of the Princeton Club in the District.

$33 Stolen

A thief entered the bedroom of Clarence Frost, 1020 Fairmont street northwest, he reported yesterday, and took a tool box from a drawer containing $30 in bills and $3 in pennies. The looter also took a gold ring valued at $10.

D.C. Veterans Plan Tribute To War Dead

65,000 Graves To Be Rededicated In Memorial Day Observances

Members of 37 Washington veteran and patriotic organizations gathered in Central High School Auditorium last night to pledge the rededication of the more than 65,000 graves of United States war dead in Washington and vicinity.

Delegates ranging from white-haired Indian campaign veterans to disabled World War fighters answered a roll call at a meeting sponsored by the Grand Army of the Republic Memorial Day Corp. It was called to initiate plans for Memorial Day observances throughout the next two weeks at District burial grounds and in Arlington National Cemetery.

Harlan G. Wood, chairman of the general arrangements committee for Memorial Day observances, asked for contibutions of flowers to be placed on graves at Arlington where ceremonies will be held at 1 p. m. on Memorial Day.

Among memorial services will be that at Washington Hebrew Congregation at 8:15 p. m., May 24. Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld invited members of all organizations represented at the meeting to be present for a massing of the colors at the synagogue where Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, will speak.

Before the Memorial Day services at Arlington, where Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt will speak, members of the various organizations will parade down Constitution avenue, starting at 9:45 a. m. at Ninth street northwest, it was announced.

12,000 Due in D. C. For Tall Cedars Convention Today

More than 12,000 delegates are expected to converge on the Capital today for the opening of the thirty-eighth convention of the Supreme Forest of the Tall Cedars of Lebanon.

Officials of the organization, a Masonic affiliate, are scheduled to call at the White House for an interview with President Roosevelt, a member, at 10 a. m. today.

This will initiate a heavy business and social program which later in the day will include the induction of a class of 100 into regular membership, and 25 Washingtonians, prominent in official life, into honorary membership at the Willard Hotel.

Scalzo Retains Title, Knocks Out Covelli in 6th

The Washington Post Sports

18 WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1940 X*

Reds Beat Dodgers, 5-2, to Regain Lead

Fight Halted As Challenger Is Horizontal

Only 1,519 Watch NBA Version of World Featherweight Championship Bout

By Al Hailey

New York's Petey Scalzo proved his right to the world's featherweight championship last night at Griffith Stadium by knocking out Frankie Covelli in 1 minute 5 seconds of the sixth round of their scheduled 15-round battle for the 126-pound title.

A meager 1,519 paying customers were in the stands to see the business, and the amount contributed was a disappointing $2,415.

As it was, Scalzo and Covelli put up one of the best fights seen here in years, and the New York Italian showed real championship form. Even with the attendance so far below the expected turnout, it was the largest crowd to see an outdoor fight here since Joey Archibald came to town a year ago and gained a bad decision over Baltimore's Harry Jeffra in a 15-round battle for the crown Scalzo was defending last night.

Champ Held Big Lead

Scalzo who had appeared to be tiring under Covelli's almost ceaseless body punching, had a big lead when the knockout—it was called a technical knockout officially—came.

Four times in the fifth round and once in the sixth Scalzo's murderous punching sent Covelli to the canvas.

Frankie, the 26-year-old Chicago lad who was spotting Petey a four-year advantage in age, came off the floor in the sixth virtually helpless. Scalzo, trying for a clean knockout, stepped back and aimed deliberately, missing twice with right uppercuts before coming in to catch Frankie with the punches that ended the business.

It was a flurry of blows to the midsection, a hard left hook to the jaw and then that whistling right uppercut on the chin again that finished Covelli. He fell forward on his face and didn't move. One look at Covelli's heaving form, and Referee Ray Bowen refused to count him out.

For some reason, Bowen chose to "rob" Scalzo of the pleasure of an actual knockout by walking over to Petey, raising his hand and declaring him the winner by a technical verdict. There was no question that Frankie was "out" although he did complain that he wanted to continue when his seconds rushed in and told him that he was through.

Up to the fourth round, however, Covelli proved himself an able challenger. He worked on Scalzo's body and worried the champion repeatedly with high overhand punches to the head that stung. Petey actually was slowing down when the knockout came.

Scott Wins Decision

Covelli won but one round on The Post score sheet—the third. Frankie worked with both hands to the body, following up with right uppercuts to Scalzo's heart that took much of the fight out of the champ.

Promoter Joe Turner, who staged the business, professed to be disappointed, but not discouraged, at the turnout.

"The fight game in this town is in a bad way, but it's because the people haven't had time to get over that Archibald bout last summer. I think Washington wants to see fights and I'm going to continue to provide them. It's going to take time and money to build the fight game back up, but I believe it can be done," Turner said.

Buddy Scott, 172, of Washington, almost had more than he could handle in his eight-round semifinal with Felix Del Paoli, 173, of Philadelphia. Buddy took a unanimous decision, but he was a sad sight at the finish. Both boys were bleeding profusely from the nose at the end.

Buddy's superior body attack wore

Carl Hubbell Turns Back Pirates, 5 to 2

Giant Veteran Gives Up 8 Hits for Second Victory of Season

By the Associated Press

New York, May 15.—The New York Giants gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 5-to-2 thumping today with 36-year-old Carl Hubbell going the route on eight hits for his second victory of the season.

The only runs he gave up were homers by Lee Handley in the first and by Bob Elliott in the fourth.

Joe Moore started the Giants toward their goal with a two-run circuit blow in the third and they went on to get a run in the fifth and two more in the seventh.

In the fifth Frank Demaree beat out a bunt and stole second, raced to third when Arky Vaughan fumbled a grounder and scored on a single by Babe Young.

Mace Brown, who was charged with the defeat, was removed for a pinchhitter in the sixth and the other runs were off Dick Lanahan on a walk, a bunt, a double by Harry Danning and an infield out.

Each of Pittsburgh's four infielders made an error.

Round-by-Round Of Scalzo's K. O. Over Covelli Here

ROUND ONE—Scalzo shot the first punch, a light left, into Covelli's midsection. Both boys danced around the ring feeling one another out, and then Scalzo took the initiative and peppered Covelli with both hands. Covelli came out with a straight left into Scalzo's face, and both boys fell into a clinch. Scalzo stabbed Covelli twice and then was driven back as Frankie cut loose with a looping right high on the head. The champion tore into Covelli, driving him back with a stabbing left. They maneuvered to midring, where Covelli began a hammer-and-tongs attack to Petey's midsection. Scalzo's round.

ROUND TWO—Scalzo shot that long left to Covelli's midsection then to the forehead. Covelli was on the receiving end of three light lefts and then the champion chased him across the ring shooting both hands, but not doing much damage. Neither appeared to be going at full steam. Covelli caught Scalzo with a hard right over the heart, and Scalzo came into clinch to work on Covelli's body. Scalzo sent a looping left to Covelli's head and Frankie retaliated with two hard lefts to Scalzo's head that hurt. Frankie took two hard lefts. Covelli's face was beginning to be red from Scalzo's light caressing. Scalzo's round.

ROUND THREE—Again Scalzo shot the first blow, automatically, a left to the midsection. Petey caught Covelli with a straight left to the mouth and drove over a right to drive Frankie back into a corner. Covelli chased the champ around the ring, missing with both hands. He caught up with Scalzo, shooting a left hook just above the belt line. Both boys exchanged lefts in midring and then Scalzo caught Covelli with a left hook. Covelli sent a hard right uppercut into Scalzo's midsection and then opened up with a body attack. Covelli wound up a terrific right, but missed. Then he caught the champion with both hands, driving him back with an attack that turned the going his way. Covelli's round.

ROUND FOUR—They came out of their corners and into a clinch that was all to Covelli's liking. He shot lefts and rights into Scalzo's body and then wound up that right uppercut again to make the

Chevy Chase Medal Won by Dunkelberger

Greensboro Golfer Ties Course Record; Peacock, Nolan Next

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Completing his course record qualifying round of 67 before most of the field started, Greensboro's little package of golfing dynamite, Bobby Dunkelberger, won medal honors in the thirtieth annual Chevy Chase Invitation yesterday by a five-stroke margin.

The Southern Amateur champion, who had seen the course for the first time the previous day, was in two traps on the first nine and missed the ninth green from the tee but three fine recoveries enabled him to par every hole for an outgoing 35.

Ties Amateur Record

After finding a trap to the right of the green on the eleventh with his second shot for his only bogey, he knocked in birdie putts of 8 and 20 feet on the twelfth and thirteenth holes, and climaxed his remarkable round with a 7-foot birdie put on the seventeenth for a 32 and 67. The score tied the amateur record held jointly by Maury Nee and Dick Lunn.

The pretournament favorite from Indian Spring, Roger Peacock, palyed the outgoing nine in careless fashion but finished with a birdie on the eighteenth for a 38-34, 72, a score tied by Congressional's M. Parker Nolan, the tournament medalist two years ago, who parred 15 holes and had three scattered bogeys for the most consistent round of the day.

95 in Starting Field

They were the only three players to better 75 out of the starting field of 95. Former Belle Haven Club Champion Turner T. Smith, now of Washington, was 75 while defending champion. Claude Rippy easily made the match play grade with a pair of 38's for a 76. The 1937-38-39 runner-up, Frank Allan, of Pittston, Pa., rallied on the back nine for a 36 and 77, a score tied by Arthur Todd, the former Nassau amateur champion, now a member of Indian Spring.

The wind that blew with such a force it split a giant tree on the third hole, sent the scores soaring, and eight 79's played off for four

Tigers' Game Called; Nats Face Indians

By Shirley Povich.

Post Staff Writer

Cleveland, May 15.—Washington's one-game winning streak remained intact today, with an assist for a Detroit cloudburst, which kept the Nats and Tigers indoor. Bucky Harris moved his team to Cleveland tonight for the start of a three-game series with the Indians tomorrow.

The second-place Indians are one of the teams that have contributed to the Nats' miseries this season. The Nats have yet to beat 'em. Cleveland swept a two-game series in Washington and tomorrow Manager Oscar Vitt will send one of the Nats' left-handed conquerors, Al Milnar, back to the mound.

The rangy Milnar is technically the Indians' leading pitcher with three victories and no defeats, but his record won't stand minute investigation. It seems that he hasn't lasted the nine-inning route in any of his starts.

Harris tomorrow will send young Sidney Hudson against the Indians. The rookie right-hander who has won his last two starts, is now a fully accorded starting pitcher for the Nats. In each of his triumphs he was off to a shaky start but he finished sensationally to protect leads the Nats finally gave him.

To the great joy of Harris, the Nats are finally hitting the ball. Despite the two defeats they suffered in three games at Philadelphia, they were cow-tailing all kinds of pitching, and in beating the Tigers yesterday they accumulated 11 solid hits.

Gerald Walker has been the bellweather of the attack with two hom-

First Inning Run Splurge Is Decisive

Wyatt Routed in Big Frame; Mungo Relieves; Werber Smacks Home Run

Brooklyn, May 15.—Cincinnati's raging Reds retalliated for yesterday's defeat by the Dodgers with a five-run first inning today to beat Brooklyn 5 to 2 and return to first place in the National League.

Eleven men went to the plate for Cincinnati in the riotous first inning in which Whitlow Wyatt was unable to get anyone out.

Bill Werber opened the bombardment by hitting Wyatt's second pitch into the leftfield stands for a home run. Then a walk to Lonnie Frey, a single by Ival Goodman and a pass to Frank McCormick filled the bases. Bill Hershberger promptly tripled to clean them and finish Wyatt's work for the day.

Van Lingle Mungo came to the mound and John Rizzo hit his first pitch for a single scoring Hershberger. This ended the Reds' scoring for the day, although Mungo walked two more men to fill the bases again.

Gene Thompson held the Dodgers to five hits in gaining his fifth victory against one loss. But he missed a shoutout when Brooklyn bunched three hits for both its runs in the third inning.

Herman Franks led off with a double, moved to third on the second of two infield outs, and scored on a single by Charley Gilbert. Then Pete Coscarart walked and Dixie Walker singled for another run.

A crowd of 18,403, approximately 3,000 less than yesterday, saw the game.

Farman, Spirida Send in Redskins' Signed Contracts

Guard Dick Farman and End End Johnny Spirida yesterday sent their 1940 contracts signed to the Washington Redskins, bringing to 26 the number of pro footballers now on the dotted line for the Skins.

Farman, who has been taking some post graduate work at his alma mater, Washington State College, reported he had gained about 20 pounds since last football season, and that he probably will tip the scales at 225 this year. In his college days Dick was an outstanding tackle, but Coach Ray Flaherty converted him into a guard in his "freshman" year as a pro and gave Washington one of its most valuable performers thereby.

Spirida, like Farman, is returning for his second season. Originally a fullback, he was changed to the flank position last year and turned in several brilliant games.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Detroit, May 15.—May the fifteenth will get you if you don't watch out. That's the horror date for rookies in the big leagues. The goblins may not really exist, and St. George disposed of the last dragon, but the idea of May is no myth. That's the stroke of midnight for the Cinderella lads out of the minors. Then is it told whether they continue or cease to be big leaguers.

POVICH

Today the sumptuous major league fare stopped for young Freddie Hutchinson, the $75,000 rookie from the Coast. This was May 15, when big league managers were compelled to prune their squads to the 25-player limit. Two players on the Tigers had to go back to the day coaches and, the seedy minor league hotels where you hear the plumbing gurgling all night. May 15 caught up with young Hutchinson. Tonight he was shuffling off to Buffalo.

And out on the Pacific Coast, wise old scouts of the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox are smirking, no doubt. Because, 18 months ago, they refused to enter the wild bidding for Hutchinson, who had won something like 26 games in the Coast League and was the subject of staggering offers by several big league clubs. The Pirates bid $60,000 for him and rich Wiier O. Briggs, sr., owner of the Tigers, topped that offer with his 75 grand which fetched Hutch to Detroit.

All the while Yankee and Red Sox scouts were telling their bosses in the East that "He hasn't got a fast ball. We don't like him." But Tom Yawkey and Ed Barrow were acting stubborn about it. They wanted Hutchinson. If the Pirates and Tigers could go that high, the fellow must have something. "A pretty good curve and nice control," admitted the scouts, "but no fast ball. No fast ball. You can't pay that much money for a rookie without a fast ball."

The Tigers found that out. They brought Hutchinson up last year and because of his price tag were patient with him beyond the time when they would tolerate another rookie. But by mid-season he was in Toledo and not doing so well there. Already this season he has had his ears pinned back by big league hitters who know that he doesn't have a fast ball and thus tied into his curve.

The Tigers are entitled to give Hutchinson one more trial, to call him back one more time. On that third trial they must retain him or part with him outright, according to baseball law. But that lack of a fast ball operates against Hutchinson. There have been pitchers who have stayed in the big leagues without one, but they fall into two categories (1) the knuckle-ballers like Leonard or (2) the wise old fellows like Ted Lyons who gets by on guile plus his curve. You know what happened to Dizzy Dean and Wes Ferrell when their fast ones deserted 'em.

Coincident with the release of Hutchinson, the Tigers sent Bud Thomas to their Beaumont, Texas League farm. We mention that merely to illustrate the condition of servitude which a ball player accepts when he signs a contract in organized baseball. The old-feudal system was benevolent compared to the shuffling a ball player gets.

Thomas, who had been a big leaguer for most of a half dozen years, won seven straight games as a relief pitcher for the Tigers late last season after being claimed from the Nats. He didn't lose any. Apparently he was something of a big league relief ace. But with only a month of the following season elapsed he finds himself back in the minors. Not back in double A ball, either, but all the way back to the Texas League.

There isn't anything Thomas can do about it. He can point to his seven straight wins and talk himself purple, but he must either accept the Detroit club's edict or stay out of the only profession which represents his only means of a comfortable livelihood.

LITTLE BENNIE BENGOUGH, the Nats' clowning coach, has no illusions about the batting averages he compiled when he was the regular catcher for the Yankees for a half dozen years, during which they won three pennants. He is proud of the fact that he was able to get by on his catching ability alone. The fact that he was the worst hitter on those pennant-winning Yanks of 1926-27-28 ordinarily does not trouble him.

But today when he was singled out by a heckler on the Detroit club Bennie flared up.

"How'd you hit when you were with the Yankees, Bennie?" the heckler shouted.

Said Bennie:

"Right handed, you bum!"

With* CONSIDINE

New York, May 15.—One of the really great golf tournaments starts tomorrow at Fresh Meadow. It is the Goodall round robin, with $5,000 on the line and the game's 15 leading professionals shooting for the prize. It is the All-Star game of golf, a kind of super tournament with all the chaff eliminated, all the first and second round palookas barred. No pro can get an unfair break, because the way the thing works out every player in the field plays against every other player at least once.

CONSIDINE

The way they do that is start them out in five three-somes, on Thursday, then alternate and keep shuffling the combinations through Friday, Saturday and Sunday—at the end of which time each pro has had (or wants to take) a shot at all of the others.

To give you some hint of how the pasture will swarm with talent, these are the players and their pairings for the opening day:

Jimmy Demaret, Jimmy Thomson, Craig Wood.
Ben Hogan, Jimmy Hines, Bryon Nelson.
Martin Pose, Gene Sarazen, Henry Picard.
Paul Runyan, Lawson Little, Sammy Snead.
Horton Smith, Dick Metz, Clayton Heafner.

The winner is the guy who wins the most holes during the tough 126-hole tournament. For instance, if Demaret beats Wood 3-up in their own opening day match, but Thomson, in the same threesome, beats Demaret 2-up, Demaret's score at the end of the first day's play is plus 1. Usually the thing is so close—and the men are so evenly matched—that it all comes down to the last day. Two years ago at the first tournament Sam Snead made a terrific comeback to take the thing, and last year Craig Wood's final day streak of sub-par golf barely missed catching the winner, Harry Cooper.

Elmer Ward, a big friendly former caddy who became one of the country's foremost young executives, underwrites the tournaments and has the good taste to disappear into the crowd. The only time he'll try to get up in the front row tomorrow will be at 1 o'clock when the pros assemble on the No. 1 tee to give what is called the "$1,000 golf lesson." As a kid, Ward never had enough dough to take a lesson. So this "$1,000 golf lesson," in which the celebrated blokes explain just how they make their best shots, in something like the kid who never was permitted to sit on any of the good chairs at home—and went on in life to become a famous wrecker.

Fearsome things are happening to Manhattan College's 8-oared shell, which has succeeded Columbia as the jam of the ocean. Alan Walz, the Manhattan coach, has fallen out of his coaching boat a couple of times, while lecturing his oarsmen on the art of balance. Several of the crewman barely saved their paper-thin shell the other night from being scuttled. Some bum was tackled on the wharf while trying to jump in and drown himself. He would have landed in the Manhattan shell.

Who contributed the outstanding sports achievement during 1939? Christy Walsh wants to know, so he can give him what he calls the golden laurel at the Fair this summer. Christy asked the members of his sports committee and here's how they have voted, so far:

	First Choice	Second Choice	Third Choice
Joe DiMaggio	26	16	9
Joe Burk	18	7	5
Alice Marble	12	21	19
Joe Louis	12	13	14
Bucky Walters	12	9	3
Joe McCarthy	12	3	4

I don't see how anybody could miss voting for Walters . . . the second-rate third baseman who taught himself to pitch so well that he won 27 games (and hit and fielded excellently) to give Cincinnati its first pennant in 20 years.

Last-Inning Rally Wins for Eastern Over Bethesda, 12-11

Hoffman's Hit Gives Tide 7th Victory

Winning Run Scored With Two Out; Earhardt, Deavers Hold Suburbanites

A last-inning single by Jack Hoffman scored Teddy Walsh with the winning run and gave Eastern's baseball team a 12-11 victory over Bethesda-Chevy Chase yesterday on the loser's diamond.

The timely blow, coming with two men out, gave the White Tide its seventh victory in eight starts this season, the Parkers' only setback coming at the hands of Central, in the interhigh series.

The last-inning rally of three runs climaxed Eastern's uphill battle in which it scored six runs in the final three innings. Warren Earhardt and Kenny Deavers, meanwhile, were victimizing the suburbanites with no-hit pitching in the late innings while their teammates' bats were singing.

Bethesda, however, flailed at the combined offerings of Lefty Chance and Kenny Curles for a 11-5 advantage at the end of the third inning but was unable to hold its lead in the fact of Eastern's mighty comeback.

Phils Beat Cards, 6 to 3

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, May 15.—Doc Prothro's unpredictable Phillies gained a tighter hold on the top of the National League's second division today, trouncing the St. Louis Cardinals 6 to 3 in a one-inning spree of singles.

Climbing over the Cards to fifth place yesterday, the Phils made it two in a row today by routing Pitcher Gene Lillard in the second frame with a six-hit barrage that produced all of the winners' runs.

Chuck Klein, Merrill May and Hennie Mueller opened the inning with a tatoo of singles, Mueller's scoring Klein. Pitcher Kirby Higbe walked, filling the bases. Joe Marty went out, but May scored. Then Bob Bragan's single sent Mueller home and Art Mahan drove in Higbe and Bragan.

Central Beats W.-L., 15 to 11, Amid 19 Errors

Eight Runs in 1st Start Wild Game On Arlington Field

Central High School continued its unbeaten streak against local high school nines by defeating Washington-Lee, 15 to 11, in one of the wildest games of the season yesterday on the losers' diamond.

The winners made ten errors and the hosts nine, while Central outhit the Generals, 13 to 10. The game was won in the first inning when two hits and two errors scored a run and filled the bases and then Washington-Lee Pitcher Rube McNabb forced three runs across before he was relieved by Clements. Central scored eight runs before the third out.

Clements was knocked out in the second and Boz Olson took over and pitched good relief ball. Central's starting pitcher, Aventena was knocked out in the eighth and Klegman stopped a Washington-Lee rally at five runs.

Shepherd, Kirchner and Evans hit for the circuit.

Sportball Introduced to Fans At Park View May Day Frolic

Play Is Combine of Soccer, Football And Basketball; Middie Invents Game

Something new in mass mayhem was introduced to sports-crazy youngsters of Washington yesterday at Parkview Playground—something known as sportball, a pleasant little pastime which combines the fine points of soccer, football, and basketball.

It is the fond hope of Franklin Carr, major area director for the District recreation department, to install sportball as a regular fall sport at Washington playgrounds and to stage annual city championships.

The new game was "invented" last year by Norman Bennett, former Roosevelt High School boy now attending the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. So happy was he over his sports brain-child that Bennett rushed right out and had the idea copyrighted.

To say the game is rough would be an unfair statement—but because of its speed is provides just about as many opportunities for knocking your neighbor flat as does football, soccer and basketball rolled into one.

The exhibition game yesterday was the highlight of the annual May Day frolic at Parkview in which outdoor enthusiasts from 6 to 60 took part.

As Carr explained it, sportball caught the fancy of cruising Midshipmen last winter—especially members of the boxing team. While the Middies were on maneuvers, a league was conducted between teams from different ships, and the boxing representatives played on deck to keep in fighting trim.

Sportball is peculiarly adapted to training for a fighting career. Footwork, feinting for possession of the ball and parrying the thrusts of the opponents is involved in the business.

Just as in football, there are 11 men to a team, the positions being end, forward, center, halfback, guard, and safety man and goalie.

The field, same size as a football field, is marked off into four 25-yard zones, instead of the gridiron's ten 10-yard pattern. The ball must be advanced through one zone in one down—which means that you have just four downs to cover the 100 yards for a touchdown.

Overlin Aided By Armstrong For Garcia Go

Champion Serves As Sparmate in New Jersey Camp

By the United Press

Summit, N. J., May 15.—For the first time in modern ring history, a world-champion served as sparring partner today. Henry Armstrong, welterweight king, boxed two rounds with Ken Overlin, middleweight challenger, at the latter's camp here.

Armstrong is trying to help Overlin wrest the middleweight crown from Ceferino Garcia at Madison Square Garden next Thursday night. He is doing this because of the bitter feud existing between the Armstrong and Garcia entourages.

Armstrong and his manager, Eddie Mead, are exceedingly angry at Garcia and his pilot, George Parnassus, after a violent and unsatisfactory squabble over the purse in the Armstrong-Garcia non-title fight at Los Angeles on March 1. That 10-round bout ended in a draw. Armstrong and Mead claim they received 5 per cent less than Garcia and Parnassus had guaranteed in a private agreement.

Hence Armstrong's eager work with Challenger Overlin today. Hammering Henry and his own trainer, Harry Armstrong, coached Overlin thoroughly in Garcia's ring tactics. During the boxing, the bull-shouldered little Negro treated Overlin to several bolo uppercuts, Garcia's favorite knockout blow, and then showed him how to avoid or muffle them.

French Hurls 2-Hitter as Chicubs Win

Bees Defeated, 2-0, In Fine Mound Duel; Losers Drop Fifth

By the Associated Press

Boston, May 15.—Larry French's two-hit pitching gave the Chicago Cubs a 2-to-0 edge in a tight-lipped hurling duel with Rookie Nick Strincevich, of the Boston Bees today before a slim crowd of 1,919.

Both hurlers were in fine fettle and up to the seventh inning each had limited the opposing batting lists to single scratch hits. French himself started the blowoff with two out in the eighth, when "Rabbit" Warstler, filling in at second base for "Bama" Rowell, messed up his easy roller.

French scored from first a minute later on Stan Hack's booming triple to deep center. Hack crossed the plate with Chicago's second run when Billy Herman singled. Jim Gleeson followed with a single, but Hank Leiber ended the rally by striking out for the third time in a row.

Strincevich, who had limited the Cubs to six hits and struck out seven, gave way for a pinch hitter in the Bee half of the eighth. Dick Errickson finished up for him, but Bee batters could do nothing with French's delivery and ended by losing their fifth straight game.

Tech Nine Bats Out 16-8 Victory Over Episcopal

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, Va., May 14.—McKinley Tech batsmen shelled a trio of Episcopal High School hurlers for 15 hits today, to pound out a 16-8 victory over the Maroons at Hoxton Field. It was the Techmen's fourth victory of the season.

The Maroons themselves were credited with 13 safeties, including a pair of home runs, but their hits were not as opportunely spaced as were McKinley's. The victors capitalized on walks and errors, and produced their hits with men on bases to drive in their scores.

The Webb brothers, Sam and Buddy, shared the mound assignment for the winners, with Sam being credited with the victory before he was relieved by his elder brother in the sixth.

Dave White drove out a home run and two singles to lead the Maroon offensive, while Dick West also turned in a round-tripper.

Baltimore Women Golfers Beat D. C. Team on Hole-in-One

Mrs. Gordon's Ace Decides Close Match

Visitors Win First Match in District In Series History By 9½ to 8½ Margin

Baltimore's all-star women's golf team scored the first victory over Washington's lineup in the history of the matches over a local course yesterday when Mrs. Alexander Gordon's hole-in-one on the next-to-last hole gave the visitors a 9½ to 8½ victory at Manor. Washington's lineup was one of its best in the intercity series.

Playing in the last bracket with Mrs. William H. Evans as a partner against Mrs. H. J. Simons, of the host club, and Elizabeth Houghton, Chevy Chase, Mrs. Gordon knocked a five-iron shot in the cup on the eighth hole (they played the second nine first) and the ace was good for a 2 to 1 point victory, and decided the match.

A second bracket upset where Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, the many-time Middle Atlantic champion, and Mrs. Jerome Sloman, Maryland State titleholder, won 2½ points over Marion Brown and Mrs. Myron Davy figured prominently in the Baltimore victory. In the fifth match, Effie Bowes andn Mrs. Ralph Holman, of the visitors, swept three points from Mrs. K. S. Giles and Mrs. J. F. Dowdall to pave the way for Mrs. Gordon's decisive finish.

Mrs. Betty Meckley and Mrs. Walter Stokes started the locals off to a 2-1 advantage by taking three points from Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg and M. Louise Bell. Mrs. Meckley with an 81 and Mrs. Stokes with an 83.

Mrs. Bishop Hill, Chevy Chase, had the lowest score of the day, a 79, and her partner, Mrs. L. G. Pray, an 81, but they lost one of the three points to Jeanette Myers and Gladys Greiner.

The only shutout scored by the Washington team was three points by Mrs. Leo Walper and Louise Claytor over Mrs. Harry Trace and Mrs. S. H. Palmer, jr.

Baltimore, 9½; Washington, 8½

Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg and M. Louise Ball, Baltimore, scored 1 point to 2 for Mrs. Betty P. Meckley and Mrs. Walter Stokes, Washington.

Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow and Mrs. Jerome Sloman, Baltimore, scored 2½ points to ½ for Mrs. Myron Davy and Marion Brown, Washington.

Jeanette Myers and Gladys Greiner, Baltimore, scored 1 point to 2 for Mrs. Bishop Hill and Mrs. L. G. Pray, Washington.

Mrs. Harry C. Trace and Mrs. S. H. Palmer, jr., Baltimore, scored 0 points to 3 for Mrs. Leo Walper and Louise Claytor, Washington.

Effie I. Bowes and Mrs. Ralph Holman, Baltimore, scored 3 points to 0 for Mrs. K. S. Giles and Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, Washington.

Mrs. Alexander Gordon 3d and Mrs. William H. Evans, Baltimore, scored 2 points to 1 for Mrs. H. J. Simons and Elizabeth Houghton, Washington.

Eagles, Paced By Freshman, Beat Loyola

Baltimore, Md., May 15.—Lester Boykin, American University freshman pitcher, hurling his second college game, was able to stem the Loyola College team's bats enough to eke through with a 10-7 victory today.

He yielded 15 blows, one more than his mates were able to garner off two Greyhound twirlers, walked two and fanned one, but he was given admirable support, especially by Dutch Schulz, shortstop, who handled 14 chances with only one bobble.

American's big inning was the fifth, when the Washingtonians drove Ed Tewey, Loyola starter, to the showers with a barrage of five hits and scored five runs. Loyola came back in the seventh to knot the count on Joey Tewey's homer to left with two mates—Leo McCarthy and Bob Molloy—on deck.

Round-Robin Pro Tourney Starts Today

By the Associated Press

New York, May 14.—Fourteen of this country's top-flight golfers and an added entry from the Argentine, Martin Pose, tee off at Fresh Meadow Country Club tomorrow in that unique and slightly complicated test known as the Goodall round robin tournament.

Prizes totaling $5,000 await those who have compiled the best "plus scores" when the final round of match play is completed on Sunday and the tournament officials have finished with their adding and subtracting.

Jimmy Demaret, of Houston, Tex., who gave the boys a trimming all around the winter circuit and wound up with an impressive victory in the Masters' event at Augusta, is a natural favorite to do it once more. Harry Cooper, last year's Goodall winner, is not entered this time.

Some regard the Goodall as the truest test of competitive golf. They go out in sets of three, in seven 18-hole rounds. Demaret, for instance, will have two different opponents on each round, so that at the conclusion of the seventh match he will have encountered each player once.

The scoring is on a "plus" and "minus" basis. If a player is 2 up on each of his rivals at the end of a round, say, he has a score of 4-plus. Each of his opponents is 2-minus, which is bad. Cooper won with a remarkable final score of 31-plus last year. He was three strokes over par for the seven rounds.

In tomorrow's opening round Demaret is grouped with Craig Wood and Jimmy Thomson, a threesome calculated to pull a big gallery. Byron Nelson, the Open champion, battles Ben Hogan and Jimmy Hines. Henry Picard, the P. G. A. king, plays against Gene Sarazen and Martin Pose, of the Argentine. Paul Runyan, Lawson Little and Sammy Snead form the fourth group, and Horton Smith, Dick Metz and Clayton Heafner the fifth.

Landon Nine Beats St. Albans, 7 to 5

Behind the five-hit pitching of Paul Baker, Landon School handed St. Albans a 7-5 setback yesterday in a well-played game on the losers' diamond.

The winners held a steady lead throughout the game and clinched the affair in the eighth inning with two runs. The winners pecked away at the offerings of Trimble for 10 hits.

places in the championship flight. Volney Burnett was the first in with a birdie three while Ralph Quinter, 1936 champion, lipped the cup with a long approach shot for a par four that was tied by Charley Malone. Malone dropped a birdie chip on the eighteenth to make the play-off. Nathan Kaufman, jr., of Baltimore, was the only one to lose out on the first hole with a six. Pete Scarla surprised by winning the fourth berth with a par on the second hole, over Ray Fleming, Eddie Ault and Frank Dunham, jr.

Chief casualties among the expected first flight players was Hickman Greene, the 1935 champion from New Orleans, who had 82. Others who were several shots off their game included Jim Gipe, 85; Joe Balestri, 83; Eddie Bean, 81; Gene Pittman, 82; J. C. Rohrey, Georgetown, and Earle Skinker, who needed 84 strokes.

In today's first round feature, Dunkelberger faces a real test in Johnny Brawner, of the host club, while two other matches that can go either way include Quinter and Burnett, play-off survivors, and Nolan and D. C. Champion Ralph Bogart, who scored 78.

Bill Ackerman ✓ ✓ ✓ ✓ On Fishing

Bill Dier's Mrs. aptly describes his last day astream (Big Hunting Creek on Monday) with: "Yes, he's been up fishing again—wasting his time, and would you believe it, he brought back another one of those oversized minnows he calls a trout."

ACKERMAN

Well Mrs. Diers, we can't account for it either, for Big Hunting is just freshly stocked, the water is gin-clear and in perfect shape with hatches coming off almost continually, and, Bill is no mean fisherman. Other anglers too, had the same small creels.

Yet (and this will not make Bill feel any better) on the same day, Ed Thorgersen, ace sports commentator for Movietone News, fishing in Otter Valley Run a few miles above, with the big technicolor camera grinding on a trout-fishing short, went blithly in a pool up to his knees in order to present his feathered offering to anything in the pool above that might find it acceptable.

A once-in-awhile angler, and hardly knowing what to do with the big rainbow that almost immediately tried to take his outfit, but nevertheless he hung on. Perspiration flowed, his knees started to shake (probably in trepidition at the thought of what that hulking lunker might do to Paul Townsend's pet rod), and finally lucked out by having the fish run head-first into his net. A five-pounder by the scales.

Some 45,000,000 will see and enjoy Ed's efforts when this picture, under the direction of Tony Muto, is released next November, and if Bill Diers had taken it, the joy would have been his alone, but Mrs. Diers couldn't have called it by any stretch of the imagination—an oversized minnow.

We believe that most anglers are missing out these days in sticking to dry flies and streamers, while the fish are avidly feeding on the nymphs coming up from the bed of the stream. During the Solunar periods their feeding is particularly active.

We have found these Solunar Tables of John Alden Knight accurate, in forecasting the feeding periods of both fresh and saltwater fishes, to a degree that is little short of marvelous. No tackle box should be complete without a current edition.

Our first report from Capt. Joe Lore at Solomons—one we look for just as soon as the hardheads really start running; it noted the catch of three local anglers, James Tanner, Howard Massey and Edward Davis, of 130 hardheads on his Albatross.

He also draws our attention to the fact that the first trout of the year were lifted in the nets at the mouth of the Patuxent, and that everything points toward an exceptional season for rod and reelers.

The trout are in at Peconic, the key spot of all trout fishing along the North Atlantic, but so far, few in number, and acting as though they haven't thawed out. However, isn't that a perfectly natural state of affairs when water temperatures at Hatteras up until a few days ago had not warmed to more than 46 degrees?

Washington Show Attracts 150 Horses; Starts Tomorrow

3-Day Event Draws Many Champions

Illuminator Tops Entries; Many Out-of-Town Horses To Show Here

By Anne Hagner

Averaging 30 entries in hunter classes and 20 in jumper events, the Washington Horse Show commences a three-day stand at Meadowbrook Friday with 154 horses entered from nearly every major stable in the East.

Committee members figure that twice as many exhibitors as last year will be on hand at the show grounds in Chevy Chase, Md., which ranks Washington higher than either the Wilmington (Del) or Devon, (Pa). shows, hitherto considered much more popular with hunter and jumper stables than the Capital event.

The unprecedented number who are entered include enough champions to dishearten exhibitors with anything less than top - notch mounts. Among them are Illuminator, grand champion of the National Horse Show in New York, last fall; his stablemate, Hexameter, who took the same award in 1937; and two young horses, Pharabang and Crystal Eagle, from whom much is expected. The animals are being shown by Patricia Bolling, of Greenwich, Conn., because Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Untermeyer, for whom they formerly performed, are in mourning because of a death in the family.

Lew Dunbar Entered

Other prominent Northerners who are vanning horses to Meadowbrook are Dr. and Mrs. Walter Kees, who famed Lew Dunbar has won notable jumper events at Madison Square Garden and other important shows in the vicinity of New York. The popular chestnut was a member of the United States Olympic jumping team until the war erased the championships and Lew was returned to his New York owners.

From Virginia will come Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry's Scotchwood, Demopolis, Bo Bend, To Victory and Santa Claus; Dr. Lewis M. Allen's Will Prevail and Clifton's Lad; Dr. E. H. Marstellar's Reject and Royal Dan; Mr. and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh's Billy Do, Sallyport, Sly Portia, Moorwick and Romagino, representing their Springsbury Farm; George G. Lee's hunter-jumper, Lee's Birthday; Frederick M. Warburg's Battle Day, from Middleburg, and Harry Jonas' erratic jumper, Sonaj, from Richmond.

Mrs. and Mrs. George Watts Hill's Quail Roost Stables, in Durham, N. C., will send their Inky, grand champion of Warrenton's show last fall; along with two other youngsters, Balkonian and Lucky Buck.

Pennsylvania, which has heretofore attracted very few exhibitors to this area, will have Robert Waters' brilliant Royalty II; Nancy Marie Shaw's Huntley Glen, a veteran of many big Northern shows.

Local Horses to Show

Locally, horses will be shown by Mr. and Mrs. Theron P. Sager, who have entered Chateaurock and Lady Windsor; Eddie Talbert, riding his bay 4-year-old, He'll Try, and Adam R. Heinrich's Good Friday; Margaret Hill, with Clear Way and Pollyanna; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Bogley's Ringmaster, one of the stars of last week's high jumping contest at Arlington Hall; Mrs. George Walker's Metope, champion Sunday at the Columbus show; George Rexrode's good string of ponies; Florence Fitzgerald's Dan's Rocksand; Mrs. N. H. McDowell's Dunstar; Fred Hughes, jr.'s, Black Caddy, who jumped 6 feet 4½ inches at Arlington to make a new local record; Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Bradley's Best Time, 4-year-old daughter of Grand Time; Lisbeth Stieg's Hi-Ho, another high-jumping performer; Elizabeth Marsh's Cricket; Anne Hagner's Show Girl; Charles Carrico's Recall; and Mrs. Richard H. Hawkins' Isolde.

Fort Myer's horse show team will show its entire jumper string, including Smooth Seas, Mount Carmel, Gay Cockade, Smacko, Crocus, Clipped Wings, Adobe, Enterprise, Rowdy, Roffe, Inclusive, and Temptation. Other military exhibitors will be Capt. Kenneth Hoge's Broomfield, Lieut. and Mrs. O. K. Kane's Ard Patrick, and an entry from Lieut. Col. William C. Crane, of Fort Myer.

Peggy Carpenter, whose gray lightweight hunter, Little Flight, won at the Garden last November and has had a successful early season this year at the Squadron A (New York) show, will bring her popular mount down from Connecticut.

champion fall back as it landed under Scalzo's heart. Scalzo pushed Covelli away and then pumped a left into the face from long range. But Covelli kept coming in close for the infighting he prefers and whaled away on Scalzo's body. The referee pulled them apart just after Covelli landed with both hands to Petey's head, and Scalzo caught Covelli with a left hook to the chin that staggered Covelli. He caught Covelli again, and Frankie was in trouble. He came in to clinch, regained his composure and then flailed at Scalzo's body. Scalzo by a narrow margin.

ROUND FIVE—Covelli broke out of a clinch to shoot overhand lefts and rights that looked effective but did not do much damage to the champion. Covelli danced lightly around the champion, worrying him with looping punches swung from a low crouch. Petey caught Covelli with a hard left hook to the chin, knocking Covelli to the desk for a nine count. Covelli was out on his feet, but came up only to take another that sent him down again—this time for eight. A flurry of punching and Scalzo sent Covelli down for nine again with a terrific right. Scalzo was working desperately for a knockout, but the wild-swinging Chicagoan wouldn't stay down. At the bell Covelli fell flat on his face as Scalzo pumped a brace of rights and lefts into his midsection. Scalzo's round.

ROUND SIX—Taking his time, Scalzo danced around Covelli and then pumped in a right uppercut to the chin that sent the dazed and broken Covelli to the canvas for nine. Covelli came to his feet bobbing and weaving unsteadily and Scalzo, sensing the kill, rushed in and finished him with a flurry of punches to the midsection and one more dose of the deadly right uppercut. Covelli fell forward on his face. Referee Ray Bowen stopped the business. It was a technical knockout victory for the champion in 1 minute 5 seconds of the sixth.

Arch McDonald's Monkey, 'Godfrey,' Has Field Day

Apples, Bananas Fail But Broadcaster's Son Comes to Rescue

Montgomery County police at Silver Spring, Md., were notified yesterday that a ringtail monkey had taken up his abode in a tree at the fashionable Northwood Park subdivision.

Efforts of neighborhood children to capture the monkey by luring him from the tree with offerings of fruit were unsuccessful. He kept grabbing the apples and bananas from their hands and scampering back up the tree.

Investigation disclosed the animal belonged to Arch McDonald, WJSV sports commentator, who lives at Burnt Mills Hills, 2 miles away. The monkey was finally captured by McDonald's 12-year-old son, Sandy.

Mrs. McDonald said the monkey, brought back from Orlando, Fla., by her husband as a gift for the children, wandered off Tuesday night. The monkey's name is Godfrey, she said.

Jimmy Ripple Confers With Frank Frisch

Dodgers Give Player Permission to Make Deal for Himself

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, May 15.—The Dodgers disclosed today they had given Outfielder Jimmy Ripple permission to make a deal for himself with some other major league club. If unsuccessful he has agreed to join the Montreal club of the International League.

Ripple's departure brought Brooklyn within the 25-player limit effective at midnight tonight.

Ripple conferred with Manager Frank Frisch of the Pittsburgh Pirates, yesterday without making a connection.

Tom Earley Optioned

Boston, May 15 (AP).—The Boston Bee management announced tonight that Tom Earley, right-handed pitcher from Boston's Roxbury district, had been released on option to the St. Paul club, of the American Association. Earley had been credited with one victory and no defeats this season but was ineffective on several other appearances on the mound.

Wilkes-Barre Gets Dorsett

Milwaukee, May 15 (AP).—The Milwaukee Brewer Baseball Club announced today that Pitcher Cal Dorsett had been sent to the Wilkes-Barre club of the Eastern League on option and that Ralph Winegarner, who had been optioned to Wilkes-Barre, had been sold to Toledo.

Harshany Released

St. Louis, May 15 (AP).—Outright release of Catcher Sam Harshany to the San Antonio club of the Texas League was announced tonight by the St. Louis Browns. The relase cut the Brownie roster to 25, the limit.

Jungels Goes to Brewers

Cleveland, May 15 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians reduced their roster to the required 25-player limit today by sending Pitcher Kenneth Jungels to Milwaukee of the American Association, subject to 36-hour recall. Jungels, a 23-year-old right-hander whose home is at Aurora, Ill., won 10 and dropped 16 for the Brewers last year. The 25-player limit deadline is midnight tonight.

Second-Sacker Released

Chicago, May 15 (AP).—Don Kolloway, young second baseman, was released today on option by the Chicago White Sox to Oklahoma City of the Texas League. Release of Kolloway, a resident of Blue Island, Ill., brought the White Sox to one under the player limit.

Lee Grissom Sold

St. Louis, May 15 (INS).—Pitcher Lee Grissom today was sold by the New York Yankees to Montreal of the International League. Southpaw Vernon Gomez, suffering from a sore arm and back, left for a physical examination in New York.

Western High Netmen Defeat Tech, 4 to 2

Western High's tennis team registered its second interhigh victory of the season yesterday at the Potomac Courts, defeating Tech, 4 to 2. The winners took three of the five singles matches and won the only doubles.

SINGLES

Furniss (Tech) defeated Smith (Western), 2—6, 6—3, 6—4; Gillespie (Western) defeated Barton (Tech), 6—1, 6—2; Walsh (Tech) defeated Hackney (Western), 4—6, 6—4, 6—4; Tansey (Western) defeated Hiddings (Tech), 6—3, 6—0; Kerr (Western) defeated Davies (Tech), 6—2, 6—4.

DOUBLES

Smith and Gillespie defeated Furniss and Barton, 6—0, 6—0.

Hoya Baseball, Track, Golf Teams Busy

Georgetown Swings Into Final Stage Of Spring Program

Georgetown University athletes swing into the final stages of their spring schedule this week when the tennis, basebal and golf teams will be busy.

Today the netmen meet Navy at Annapolis. Tomorrow the baseball team plays host to West Virginia at the Hilltop Medical School field and the tennis team, is home with Maryland, both events listed for 2:30 o'clock.

On Saturday afternoon the track team visits West Virginia at Morgantown, W. Va., and the golf squad competes in a 3-hole match with Yale for the Eastern Championship at Stamford, Conn.

down the Philadelphian, but Scott was still catching them on the chin at the final bell. Del Paoli rushed across the ring in the eighth and slammed two terrific left hooks to Scott's jaw that obviously slowed him up.

Ray Landis, 132, of Washington, knocked out Indian Gonzales, 130, of Key West in 2 minutes 20 seconds of the final frame in the four-round opener. But for an occasional splurge of punching power Ray was unimpressive in his professional debut. A straight left to the chin flattened Gonzales who went down for six in the first round under a looping right.

Joe Zwick, 181, of New Haven, knocked out Rex Romus, of New York, in 2 minutes 30 seconds of the second in their scheduled four-rounder.

Carl Guggino, 133, of Washington, took an eight-round decision over Jackie Carter, 134, of Miami, in an anti-climax to the championship bout card. It was a listless battle that didn't see much action until the eighth round, when Guggino opened up a rgiht-handed attack to the Miami boy's head that had him groggy.

Hoya Tennis Team Blanked by Navy

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., May 15.—Tennis players of Georgetown University were completely outclassed by the Midshipmen here today, the Naval lads sweeping all six strings of singles and three doubles matches for a score of 9 to 0. All the matches were decided in straight sets and were by decisive margins, although the Hilltoppers showed better form in doubles, as compared to singles.

Singles

Joe Hunt (Navy) defeated Don Martin, 6—1, 6—4; Dave Marks (Navy) defeated Gene Owens, 6—1, 6—2; Russ Blair (Navy) defeated Myers Gelfand, 6—0, 6—2; John O'Malley (Navy) defeated Lee Ritger, 6—2, 6—2; Art Esch (Navy) defeated George Boyer, 6—1, 6—2; John Kirk (Navy) defeated Henry Walts, 6—0, 6—4.

Doubles

Marks and Esch (Navy) defeated Ritger and Martin, 7—5, 6—2; Jim McPherson and O'Malley (Navy) defeated Owens and Jack Greene, 1—11, 6—2; Jack Williams and Pete Batchellor (Navy) defeated Gelfand and Bill Riordan, 6—3, 6—1.

Three Little Hoyas Gain Net Finals

By virtue of Kuntz and Gannon's victories yesterday in the second quarter-finals of the prep school tennis tourney at Georgetown Prep courts, the Little Hoyas will be represented by three players in the finals which will be contested today or tomorrow at the Garrett Park school. Verification of the date will be made this morning. Erwin and Sheehan, of Gonzaga, bowed yesterday.

Alfred, of Landon, and Titus, of Georgetown Prep won their matches in Monday's quarter-finals to reach final play.

Yesterday's Results

Kuntz (G. P.) defeated Erwin (Gonzaga), 9—7, 6—1.

Gannon (G. P.) defeated Sheehan (Gonzaga), 6—2, 6—3.

Final Pairings

Alfred (Landon) vs. Gannon (G.P.).

Kuntz (G. P.) vs. Titus (G.P.).

Maki Runs in Grand Finale

Los Angeles, May 15.—Internationally known athletes and stars of the entertainment world join hands Friday night to stage a huge sports spectacle for the Finnish relief fund.

A crowd of more than 40,000 is expected to witness the program in Memorial Coliseum—a program that includes, among several brilliant events, a two-mile race that may go down as one of the best in the history of the track sport.

The two-mile battle features Taisto Maki, the flying Finn who has been barnstorming America for money to aid his stricken countrymen. It will be his last race in the United States.

It may well be a great finale to his campaign, too, because he runs against three men who have beaten him on indoor tracks this year, Gregory Rice, the sturdy American champion from Notre Dame; Don Lash, pride of Indiana, and Walter Mehle, of Wisconsin.

Maki, a novice on the indoor boards, has been training strenuously here for several weeks. He is determined to prove himself the world's greatest two-miler and possibly break his record time of 8 minutes, 53.2 seconds.

While the two-mile event tops the schedule, others promise action. Mozel Ellerbe, greatest Negro sprinter in the country and winner of the 100-yard dash in the national collegiate athletic association, arrived from Alabama. He was to have raced against Clyde Jeffrey, of Stanford University, best in the West, but an injury in the West Coast relays at Fresno last Saturday forced Jeffrey out of the race.

Three-Day Wait Holds Up Grimes' Wedding Plans

Rrand Rapids, Mich., May 15 (AP). Indiana's statutory three-day waiting period before the issuance of a marriage license was all that kept Burleigh Grimes from being a married man today.

Burleigh, former big lease baseball player, now managing the Grand Rapids team of the new Michigan State League, went to Michigan City, Ind., yesterday, intending to be married ot Miss Miz Martin, of Trento, Mo. Miss Martin's mother and other members of the wedding party were there for the event.

The hitch developed when Burleigh and his bride-to-be went to the courthouse for a license and were told they'd have to wait for three days after making their application.

BLENDED 33 TIMES TO MAKE ONE GREAT BEER

Pabst Blue Ribbon

IT TAKES 33 SEPARATE BREWS TO MAKE A SINGLE GLASS OF THIS DELICIOUS BEER!

As thousands of beer lovers set down a cool, clear glass of Pabst Blue Ribbon, they say: "Gosh, how do they do it?"

Well, one swift answer is . . . 33 Blends! . . . Not one, or two, or five, but 33 separate "brews" from 33 separate kettles!

Each brew is as fine as choicest ingredients and Pabst's 96 years of experience can make it!

But brewing is a natural process, and Nature never yields two brews that are exactly alike even with the same formula and strict scientific control. That's why Pabst goes to so much extra work and expense to bring together 33 separate brews in perfect blend — dictated by the Blue Ribbon formula.

As in the finest champagnes, coffee, tobacco, it's expertly balanced blending that gives Blue Ribbon its unvarying goodness.

The result is: America's Premium Beer . . . with a smoothness that is unique . . . and a taste that is always the same.

Sometime today, have the pleasure of meeting Blue Ribbon.

5 Reasons why it's America's Premium Beer

1—ONLY PABST insures quality through complete processing of all grains—uses none malted or milled by others.

2—96 YEARS of brewing fine beer . . . over 20 billion glasses!

3—FIRST to introduce brewing of true lager beer to Milwaukee (1851).

4—28 SCIENTISTS guard every step from grain to glass . . . grow the pure culture yeast used exclusively by Pabst.

5—BLENDED 33 TIMES . . . for flavor, for smoothness, for unvarying goodness.

Red Wrack Wins Charles Town Purse; Pays $80.20 Mutuel

Longshots Have Field Day at Track

Royal Marriage Runs Second in Retreat; Blablah, Third; Hacker Rides Victor

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 15.—In a feature race named the Retreat, probably in honor of the rout of the favorite players, Mrs. M. Knieriem's Red Wrack galloped to the finish line four lengths in advance of his closest rival. Making his first start of the 1940 season, and opposed by a fine field of seasoned sprinters, the 3-year-old son of By-Pass II downed R. E. McConnell's Royal Marriage, O. S. Jennings' Blablah and six others in a battle over the Charles Town court of 120 feet more than 6 furlongs.

It was to the tune of an $80.20 mutuel, the longest price of the meeting, that Red Wrack ran his surprising race. The track was fast and a high wind was blowing up the stretch. Red Wrack was clocked in 1:16 1-5.

Royal Marriage, making her first appearance here, was first to show in front. Likely Lad was racing right along with the pacemaker as the field banked the clubhouse turn. Blablah, unable to get to the front, was third, with Red Wrack fourth.

Holds Clear Lead

On the backstretch, Royal Marriage shook off Likly Lad, to hold a clear lead, but Red Wrack, put to a drive by Jockey Beverly Hacker, suddenly cut loose and bounded up on the leader. Jockey Root tried to keep Royal Marriage in front, but Red Wrack continued to come on. In the stretch it was no contest. Red Wrack opened a gap and was running well within himself.

Royal Marriage continued gamely to hold the place position safe. Blablah closed some ground, but only enough to take third money from Irish Moon. Randle's Queen, a well-bred filly by Espino, was scratched because proper identification papers did not arrive for the race.

"Longshot" Day

Longshots were popping up virtually throughout the program which started with a surprising $79.40 victory by Miss Warning. The 3-year-old filly, well handled by Jockey Tony Vesselli, led Capstick and Paper Girl to the wire.

Jockey Buddy Root rode Eddie Counora to an easy victory for Trainer E. W. Cook in the second race. The filly, paying $10.40, set the stage for a $38.40 mutuel in the daily double. The Shenandoah Stable's Osofree made good for the favorite players at a $4.60 price in the third race.

Keswick Hill, put to a charge through the stretch by Jockey Freddie Faust, won the fourth race, to pay $59.40 and Prince Jock brought his backers a $16 price in the sixth event.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS WARNING, $79.40, $26.20, $18.80; CAPSTICK, $6.20, $4.60; PAPER GIRL, $6.20.

MISS WARNING forged to the front going to turn, opened a good lead and was kept to drive to end. CAPSTICK, close up while saving ground, could not menace winner while under pressure. PAPER GIRL raced forwardly and wide, but was weakening at close. COUNTER MARCH went evenly. FREDERICK could not keep up while hard ridden. The others were not prominent.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:07½. Off 3:06. Winner, E. Samaha's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COUNORA, $10.40, $6.60, $3.40; COL. HATFIELD, $15.40, $7.60; LAST SCAMP, $5.80.

COUNORA, sent to front going to turn, and hard ridden to draw out gradually, was not menaced thereafter and won easily. COL. HATFIELD, last away, made up ground readily and closed gamely. LAST SCAMP rallied when placed to drive and closed willingly. GOLDEN KEY was well placed early and had no excuses. CAUTIOUS BO had good early speed and faltered. DOHOEV was held safe. ART COOPER had early foot and stopped.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:36. Off 3:36½. Winner, Shenandoah Stable's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OSOFREE, $4.60, $3.40, $2.60; HAGERSTOWN BOY, $10.80, $4.40; CHIEF EVERGREEN, $2.80.

OSOFREE, first away, opened a good lead and held HAGERSTOWN BOY safe in closing drive. HAGERSTOWN BOY, off alertly, was hard ridden while closest to pace and was tiring at end. CHIEF EVERGREEN lacked early speed, came out for racing room while bettering position and closed with good courage. LACEY MISS was forwardly placed from start and weakened in closing stages. BLUE BOO saved ground, but could not reach serious contention. BUBBLEWORTH did not appear to fancy track. LAKE SHORE and OVERPLAY were outrun.

Daily Double, COUNORA and OSOFREE, Paid $38.40

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:02. Off 4:02½. Winner, J. R. Palmer's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KESWICK HILL, $59.40, $19.80, $8.40; GROUCHNEUR, $6.20, $4.60; TIMETTA, $2.80.

KESWICK HILL, allowed to settle into best stride, came around horses swinging for stretch while bettering position and wore down GROUCHNEUR to win going away. GROUCHNEUR swerved into PRAIRIE MAN leaving gate, went to TIMETTA on backstretch, and led in stretch, but Garrett did not appear to see KESWICK HILL. TIMETTA took command going to first turn, but could not shake off GROUCHNEUR and weakened in final drive. KISSIN BUG raced on inside throughout.

FIFTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:32. Off 4:32½. Winner, Mrs. M. Knieriem's b. g. (3), by By-Pass II—Auburn. Trained by C. Wade. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:16⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED WRACK, $80.20, $20.20, $9.20; ROYAL MARRIAGE, $9.60, $6.40; BLABLAH, $4.00.

RED WRACK, within striking distance from start, rallied in bold fashion when placed to drive on backstretch, came around ROYAL MARRIAGE to take command and opened a gap while racing easily. ROYAL MARRIAGE was sent to front under hustling tactics, disposed of LIKLY LAD and held on gamely, but could not stay with winner. BLABLAH was outrun going to first turn, was hard ridden and closed gamely. IRISH MOON made up some ground. EVENING LIGHT could not reach contention. GIGGLE LEE was held safe. LIKLY LAD stopped.

SIXTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:58½. Off 5:00. Winner, Mrs. A. M. Cail's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCE JOCK, $16.00, $6.20; $4.80; CREAM CHEESE, $4.60, $3.60; SEA BOY, $6.60.

PRINCE JOCK, outrun in early stages while saving ground, came through on inside entering stretch and withstood long drive to win going away. CREAM CHEESE was well placed from start under hard riding and closed gamely. SEA BOY raced PRINCE TURLEY into submission to open good lead, but ran out at final turn. PANDORAMINT closed full of run. HUPPY lacked early speed while racing wide and closed willingly. MAETAKS had speed in spots. ACCIDENTAL had early speed and stopped. PRINCE TURLEY pulled up lame.

SEVENTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:28. Off 5:31. Winner, H. M. Luttrell and Sons' br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BEAMING LADY, $14.20, $6.40, $4.00; VANISHING HOPE, $6.00, $5.60; RAVENHURST, $6.40.

BEAMING LADY assumed command in opening furlong, withstood repeated challenges from VANISHING HOPE and drew out in stretch run. VANISHING HOPE, first away, was on outside of winner to midstretch and finished in center of track. RAVENHURST could not keep up early, saved much ground and closed willingly. TIME HER was close up to stretch and faltered. MARIN was off slowly and had no chance. STAR STREWN had early speed and stopped.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:57½. Off 5:58½. Winner, J. L. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BEST POLICY, $5.60, $3.80, $3.40; CORA KAY, $4.80, $3.60; HASTINGS VIEW, $5.00.

BEST POLICY shook off BACKINTIME and withstood challenges of HASTINGS VIEW and was kept to drive to end while holding CORA KAY safe. The latter, taken up at break, saved much ground while bettering her position gradually, but hung after being in close quarters between winner and rail in early stretch. LUCKY ROLL went evenly and was held safe. COUNT ME was not a serious factor. BACKINTIME had early speed and stopped. DURWRACK could not keep up. STEPEE was outrun.

Selections at Charlestown

Dear Al:

Perhaps I can't pick a winner, but I certainly clocked Jockey Willie Obert right. The grand old man of the saddle, who was thrown Tuesday, reported he was so stiff and sore that he could not ride yesterday, just as we predicted. Willie continues to be secretative about his age. He says "he's over 21." I don't know what to do with the Bennings Stable exercise boy who came to the barn with a pipe dream about Clymene being scratched. I should fire him, but I believe we will have to give him a raise. What's the story on this Pork Chops. He hasn't shown up as yet and there's a report he has gone high-hat on us and is making Belmont Park his headquarters. If you have wondered who the outrider is here, he is M. J. Daly, jr., and don't think for a minute he isn't worthy of that job. He is a son of the trainer who saddled Derby winners and is one of four hard-riding brothers. Their father, now 84, is a grand old fellow. Mike once took off 28 pounds to ride a jumper and the horse fell at the twelfth fence. They are calling Galt Davis, the Washington bowler and horse-owner "The Photo-Finish King." Davis' horses have figured in six camera endings and each time they have taken down the money. He beat "Huppy" Davis out of two purses that way last year. After watching Galt's Yankee Lad win here the other day, one horseman said "That guy's horses ought to be in the movies." Jockey Henri Mora, who rode Honey Cloud to victory in the Dixie Handicap at Pimlico last week, reported here yesterday for action. Mora has been riding in fine form. Speaking of good riding, this Jack Mayer has been doing a good job here. Two winners and a second in three tries up to yesterday.

BILL.

Confucius lost his deuce yesterday. For today, he say: Bet me two on Marbran.

First race—Miss Soot has shown some speed and is as good as anything in this field of maiden juveniles. Clay Mill has worked well and could be close. Mayfern is by Mowlee and has some foot.

Second race—Trixie Lass always could best this kind and promises to do a lot of running. I'm going to string along. Red Wings, heretofore a bad post actor, may improve out the electric gate. Travelo could be close despite high weight.

Third race—Wale Signal has worked well, breaks off the rail and seems ideally placed. Seplin is down on the reserve list but will be a threat if sent postward. Doctor's Nurse for the minor award. Conge Prince is a full brother of Royal Business, if you're interested.

Fourth race—Lernana has enough speed to take care of these, I do believe. I'm going to string along. Marbran has worked in good fashion. Hi-Ada could be the third one.

Fifth race—Bud's Light has the foot to win over a field of this kind. Needs only the right ride. Miss Maker will be back on the home grounds and is dangerous. Red Idol won here opening day.

Sixth race—Princess Lady is a fair sort. There isn't much in this field and she may get home at liberal odds. Good Wine likes the course and is a threat. Walli for the minor award.

Seventh race—Aufoin probably needed that last. Goes back today in about the same company and looks like the best bet of the day. Goldun was a trifle short in that recent effort. Pencader could awake and a change of track conditions would help.

Eighth race—Never Idol is the class of this field. If in shape he should take down the chief money. Early Broom showed plenty of speed earlier in the week and is dangerous. Petee Lad and Chilly Ebbie will move up if track conditions change.

Sub race—If this event is used, Remolee, Stand By and America First.

Best bet—Aufoin.

Kayak May Not Run

Kayak is running a slight temperature, according to veterinarians treating him.

Satilla Takes Steeplechase 'Cap at Belmont

Wins by Two Lengths As Favorite; Mayer's Ossabaw Runs Second

By the Associated Press

Belmont Park, N. Y., May 15.—Making his first start since finishing second in the Grand National Steeplechase here last October, Thomas Hitchcock's Satilla, well handled by the Negro jockey, A. Scott, drove to a two-length triumph in the International Steeplechase Handicap of about 2 miles here this summer afternoon. It was the first jumping stake of the New York season and Satilla's triumph was a popular one, the 6-year-old gelding closing favorite at $4.40 for $2. He earned a purse of $2,625 and reported in 3:44 3-5.

Louis B. Mayer's Ossabaw, formerly a star jumper for Thomas Hitchcock before being purchased by the movie magnate for flat racing, at which he failed, was second after leading to the last obstacle. Emile Pfizer's Farndale, coupled with Ossabaw, trailed the latter by four lengths while finishing third.

Walter M. Jeffords' Warspite, which finished last in the field of six, pulled up lame.

Satilla last year started twice, winning a stake before finishing second in the Grand National. He also won one of his two 1938 starts. Ossabaw made the running under restraint. Good chance forced most of the pace before stopping. Satilla, nicely rated, closed ground steadily in the final half mile and, catching the leader at the last jump, gradually drew away. Farndale raced forwardly throughout.

That Albert C. Bostwick has a strong candidate for the Metropolitan and Suburban handicaps was evidenced when his 4-year-old stretch runner, Belay, won the sixth race, a mile and a sixteenth, class "C" handicap, in remarkably fast time, without being extended. Although the Display colt finished a poor fifth in the recent Dixie Handicap at Pimlico, he breezed to a four lengths victory today and finished in 1:42 4-5 under 122 pounds, only three-fifths of a second slower than the track record.

Shadows Pass trailed the victor while beating Journey On by two lengths for the place.

Allies Increase Steel Buying From America

Belgian, Swedish Sources Destroyed By Nazi Invasion

By the Associated Press

New York, May 15.—The Allies have stepped up steel buying in the United States since the German invasion of Scandinavia and the Law Countries, informed steel sources said today.

The Belgian and Luxembourg steel industries, utilizing the rich Lorraine iron ores, have been large sellers in the world markets. The United Kingdom alone obtained more than 500,000 tons from these producers last year.

The fighting in Norway cut the Allies off from the Swedish iron ores received by way of Narvik.

A steel man said the Allied orders lately had been "substantial," and predicted American producers would get a still larger share of the export market, as Latin America and other countries attempt to replace metal previously bought in Europe.

The United States, it was pointed out, has the largest available capacity for foreign steel orders, incluing ing Allied needs. The showdown on the Western Front was expected to increase Alllied consumption of metal for fighting machinery.

Allied acquisition of ships from the Danish, Norwgelan and Dutch merchant fleets, steel men said, probably will help solve the problem of transporting metal.

Iron Age predicted an increase today in its weekly review of the industry.

"Great Britain," the review said, "probably cut off from supplies of steel from Belgium, upon which she depends to a considerable extent, will look to the United States to make up the deficiency. Inquiries for about 100,000 tons are being quoted on and others are expected to follow shortly. France is inquiring for shell steel, of which a large quantity may be bought as soon as complications arising from very rigid specifications are straightened out."

U. S. Steel Offers $75,000,000 Bonds Despite Decline

New York, May 15 (AP).—An issue of $75,000,000 in debentures of the United States Steel Corporation, one of the largest corporate flotations in recent years, was offered today for public subscription in the face of the widest slump in security markets in two-and-one-half years.

With plans for the offering all made before the stock and bond markets gave way on news of the German sweep across the Low Countries, the banking syndicate headed by Morgan Stanley & Co. decided to go through with the operation on schedule.

The offering consisted of debentures maturing serially up to 1955 at prices yielding 0.375 to 2.65 per cent. Proceeds were to be used for repaying outstanding 3¼ per cent debentures.

Exchange Market

New York, May 15 (AP).—The Swiss franc broke nearly ½ cent today in terms of the dollar, while the British pound ran up 3 cents. A loss of .45 of a cent in the Swiss money followed yesterday's decline of ¼ cent. The drops shattered the currency's long record as one of the most stable of European monies. Sterling advanced despite the war news that kept security and commodity markets churning. At one time a bid price representing a rise of more than 3 cents was rejected as too low, but sales were later made at the 3-cent gain. The Canadian dollar improved ⅜ cent to 81⅛ U. S. cents and the French franc added .02⅜ of a cent.

Late rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Official Canadian Control Board rates for U. S. dollars—Buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.06 per cent. Canadian dollar in New York open market, 18⅛ per cent discount, or 81.87½ U. S. cents.

Stock Prices Tend Toward Recovery On Active Trading, With War Issues Regaining Part of Tuesday's Losses

New York, May 15.—Financial markets became more orderly today with the single exception of the wheat market, which again broke the limit of 10 cents a bushel.

Elsewhere there was a tendency to recover after the heavy drubbing sustained in the first two days of the week when each new success of the German army brought new lows to securities and commodities.

Trading continued at a fast pace on the New York Stock Exchange, the turnover of 3,771,700 shares being the largest since last September 12. The first hour's turnover was 1,500,000 shares. Tickers at one time were 8 minutes late in recording transactions. There were times when leading issues were up 1 to 3 points. At the close the list still averaged lower, but only by 0.20 point, which meant that temporarily at least the selling wave of the week has been stemmed. There were 1,020 individual issues traded in, slightly below the all-time record of 1,049 of the previous day.

Bullish Forces Hopeful

It was a day of readjustments in financial markets. Swings in speculative favorites continued wide, but they about offset each other. Du Pont advanced 6 points and Johns Manville was off 6 points. There were a few cases of wider fluctuations among less active issues, and many of from 1 to 4 points. Of the day's issues, 269 carried plus signs.

Bullish forces took new hope and pointed to the fact that the business trend has been on the uptrend. This was ignored in the face of the devastating news from abroad, but advices yesterday indicating that the German war machine is meeting a stiffer form of opposition, heartened investors.

Trading again centered on the aviation and other war issues. The most active stock of the day was Curtiss Wright, which recovered a fraction. Steels were led by Republic, up ¾, while United States Steel came back 1⅝ and Bethlehem 4⅛.

There is no reason to believe the Federal Government will do more than watch the situation. When the World War broke out in 1914 the Stock Exchange was closed for three months.

Bonds Are Weak

Listed bonds continued to reflect the worries of the more conservative investors and speculators who prefer senior securities rather than equities. Declines again were the rule in all departments. Foreign dollar bonds especially were weak, the losses ranging from 1 to 15 points. United States Treasury issues stabilized after an early drop. Domestic corporate bonds showed losses of 1 to 5 points, with only a sprinkling of gains. Turnover at $12,370,000 was only a little under the previous day.

Belgian bonds continued to weaken. City of Antwerp 5s dropped 32 points on the first trade since the invasion began. Danish and Norwegian bonds were soft.

French stamped 7½s of 1941 fell 5 points to 90½, and the topsy-turvy state of the market was indicated by a sale of French stamped 7s of 1949 at 115. German bonds were uneven but mostly lower.

United States Treasury loans dipped at the start, with some of the medium maturities of ½ point from the previous official close. Shortest and longest datings rallied toward the end.

Speculative railroads bonds were down as a group, and only a few exceptions were noted to the trend.

Odd-Lot Dealings

The Securities Commission reported yesterday these transactions by customers with odd-lot dealers or specialists on the New York Stock Exchange for May 14: 16,434 purchases involving 450,512 shares; 191,134 sales involving 572,887 shares, including 172 short sales involving 4,632.

Chemical Construction

New York, May 15.—Contracts awarded on current construction projects in the chemical process industries total 34,420,000 as compared with $8,039,000 a year ago, Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering reports in its May issue. Current proposed work and bids asked total $13,595,000

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil futures were dumped into new low ground for the reason under a new selling wave today. The close was 8 to 11 lower. May went off the board at 6.40, down 20. Sales totaled 252 contracts: July, 6.47; September, 6.53 bid; October, 6.54; November, 6.54; December, 6.59 bid. No quotations were available in the crude oil market as the trade waited.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, May 15 (AP).—Hogs and cattle took the downward price trail of other farm commodities today, both classes of livestock generally selling at a sharply lower prices. Fat lambs, however, were fully steady.

Hogs were 25 to 40 cents lower, extending yesterday's closing loss, while a moderate supply of steers sold early at 25 to 40 cents lower. Most steer bids were lower. Hogs topped at 5.75, or 5 cents under yesterday's best level. Receipts in the open market totaled 13,000 and were 4,000 more than expected. Receipts in the principal corn belt markets totaled 69,200, compared with 59,000 a week ago and 87,600 yesterday. Best light loins in the wholesale dressed market dropped ½ to 1¼ cents a pound.

Steer trade was slow and most bids sharply lower. Other cattle were steady to lower.

Fat lambs sold fully steady, handyweight clippers bringing up to 9.85 with better grades held higher.

Woolworth Expects Gain To Continue

A. T. & T. Declares Quarterly Dividend Of $2.25 a Share

By the Associated Press

Watertown, N. Y., May 15.—The management of the F. W. Woolworth Co. expects a continued gain in sales, E. C. Mauchly, vice president, told stockholders at the annual meeting today.

Commenting on results for the first four months this year, he asserted that sales which were $4,585,827 ahead of last year were satisfactory despite unseasonable weather.

A. T. & T. Dividend

Directors of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. today maintained a record of nearly 20 years with the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share on capital stock. Nearly 650,000 stockholders on record June 17 will receive dividend checks July 15. About $42,000,000 will be distributed.

P. & L. E. Railroad

Directors of Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad declared a dividend of $2 a common share, payable June 15 to holders of record May 24. The company paid 50 cents in June and $3 last December. The New York Central controls the road.

International Nickel

International Nickel Co. of Canada reported today for the March quarter net profit of $9,820,114, equal to 64 cents a common share. This compared with $10,262,660, or 67 cents a share, in the preceding quarter.

Royal Dutch Oil Moves Offices To West Indies

New York, May 15 (AP).—The Royal Dutch Co., one of the world's greatest oil marketing and producing organizations, has shifted its headquarters from The Hague, Holland, to Curacao in the Dutch West Indies.

Royal Dutch operates a big refinery at Curaco. Nearby, on the island of Aruba, the Standard Oil Co., of New Jersey operates what is rated in the industry as the world's largest refinery. Both these refineries are reported to be important bases of supply for the Allied naval and air fleets.

The Allies landed a protecting force of marines in the Dutch West Indies.

Fidelity Storage Declares Dividend

The directors of the Fidelity Storage Co. at their regular meeting May 13, declared a $2 dividend payable on June 15. This is the second dividend of this amount paid by Fidelity Storage this year.

Lincoln Service Declares Dividend

Directors of the Lincoln Service Corporation, industrial banking, yesterday voted the regular quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent on the 6 per cent cumulative participating preferred stock and 1¾ per cent on the 7 per cent cumulative prior preferred stock.

The directors also declared an extra dividend of 25 cents per share together with the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock. All dividends are payable June 12 to stockholders of record as of May 31.

Listen! with Slocum

Ray Eberle, handsome romantic singing star heard with Glenn Miller's "band of the year," each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday over WJSV, has been voted the No. 1 choice of male vocalists by editors of 108 colleges and universities participating in "The Billboard's" third annual collegiate survey.

It was this survey that last week named Glenn Miller's band this year's favorite of the undergraduates. In being named "tops," Glenn and Ray have established a record, for Miller leaped from one point to 251—out of a possible 648 total—in the short space of a year. This was an advance of 77 points over the No. 1 band last year.

Ray has been with Miller's band for two years. His landing the job was purely coincidental. Miller mistook Ray for his brother Bob while visiting a New York hotel grill. Later, when Glenn was looking for a vocalist for his own newly formed orchestra, he asked Bob if Ray could sing.

"He used to sing with my brother and me in a trio," Bob replied, "I'll phone him to come down to New York for an audition if you like." Ray was auditioned and got the job.

Ray, who was working for his father, a hotel proprietor, in Hoosick Falls, N. Y., resigned his clerk's job and began the singing career which this week attained a peak of success. He hasn't been home since joining Miller and only occasionally do Ray and Bob have a chance to get together for a brotherly chat. But the family keep in touch with each other by listening to broadcasts and recordings.

Born in Mechanicsville, N. Y., on January 19, 1919, Ray attended St. Mary's Academy in Hoosick Falls, N. Y. He was a star half-back on the football team, liked bowling and was greatly in demand for church entertainments.

Orphans in Love

by Marion White

SYNOPSIS.

ELLEN CARLAN has loved Peter Storm since both were children at St. Joseph's Orphanage. Peter refuses to declare his love for Ellen, fearing they would be impoverished on his small salary should they marry while he is studying law. While picnicking near the orphanage, a storm causes them to take refuge in the old Tucker house, a deserted mansion forbidden to them when they were children. In a picture on the wall they see a man with a face so similar to Peter's that Ellen mistakes it for Peter's picture. In a book titled "Notable New Yorkers" they learn the man is Peter Tucker, a Revolutionary War hero. When the couple leaves the mansion, Peter states the house is a challenge and he will never be content with less. Deep in his thoughts, Peter wanders through a tenement district when a building bursts into flames. Three little boys are trapped in the fire. Peter, stricken with fear, remembers Jonathan Tucker's courage and rushes to their rescue. The reporters swarm Peter's hospital and Carver, of the Press, is admitted to Peter's room for an interview. Peter explains that he acted as Jonathan Tucker would have done in the same situation and asks Carver to inform Ellen. Carver interviews Ellen who talks freely of Peter and the old Tucker house. In another section of town, prominent John Abbott sits in his luxurious apartment and reads of Peter Storm's linking with the Tucker family, and fears his deception 25 years ago will be revealed. Cora Abbott, his wife, suggests he make friends with Peter to ease the handling of any future difficulties, and so he sends for Peter.

Chapter 10.

WITH AN elaborate nonchalance, because the trim little receptionist was casting artful glances his way, he drew the letter from his pocket to read it once again. He knew the words by heart:

"Dear Mr. Storm . . . I was deeply impressed by your splendid deed. In these days of super-sophistication it is reassuring to discover that the old-fashioned virtues of courage and sacrifice are still a source of inspiration.

"I notice, too, that you are a student of the law, which gives us an association in common. I should like very much to meet you personally. When you are quite recovered, would you care to drop in at my office some day for a more intimate visit?"

So here he was. He had no idea what in the world he would talk to Mr. Abbott about. He prayed fervently that he wouldn't act too stupid in the presence of such superior wisdom.

And with a tremendous effort he put aside the impossible, unbelievable wish that had consumed him ever since the letter was received.

He forbid himself the exquisite joy of hoping, because, he argued sternly, there was no foundation for hope. Absolutely none.

Thought Persists

Nevertheless the thought persisted, bobbing up through the layers of his common sense like fish bob up to the surface of a pond to snatch at crumbs of bread. Suppose John Abbott offered him a job!

What a marvelous, miraculous break that would be for an ambitious young law clerk! What an overwhelming piece of sheer, undeserved luck!

He frowned, banishing the thought once more. He had no reason for any such expectation, no reason at all! . . .

"All right, Mr. Storm. Mr. Abbott will see you now."

The pretty receptionist turned limpid eyes upon him. "This way, please." As they passed through the inner office together, she added prettily: "I read every word about you, Mr. Storm. In every paper. I think you were wonderful!"

Face Flushes

His face flushed. It became embarrassing after a while, having girls throw bouquets like this.

He mumbled some phrase of thanks, and tried to regain his dignity. He couldn't walk into John Abbott's private sanctum looking like some gawky, overdone Romeo.

Then the young lady had disappeared and he found himself facing Mr. Abbott, walking across the enormous, sunlit office to grasp his outstretched hand.

"Mr. Storm! This is a pleasure!" The attorney's voice was warm and sincere.

Peter smiled boyishly. "It isn't just a polite phrase, Mr. Abbott, for me to insist that the greater pleasure is mine. To a fledgling law student, you know, you're about tops."

Sits down

He sat down in the chair the older man indicated and tried to appear unconcerned and unconscious of the sharp analysis to which he was being subjected. For an instant he avoided the embarrassment of meeting the attorney's direct gaze and that was a welcome relief, for John Abbott's intent scrutiny was not altogether analytical.

It was an amazement, the bewildering spectacle of this boy before him, so much the same . . .

"I'm sure we have a great many common interests," he remarked quickly, to cover his own confusion. What a resemblance! What an identical spit of the old man!

He cleared his throat. Then: "An interest in the Tucker family, for example." He tackled the subject with a desperate courage, preventing it from smoldering in the background and assuming too tremendous a significance.

Peter's eyes brightened. "You know them, sir?"

"Indeed I do. I was old Mr. Tucker's attorney for many years. As a matter of fact, I'm still handling the estate."

"Then I'm doubly glad to know you, Mr. Abbott. It wasn't all newspaper gossip to say that I was—well, sort of inspired by the old man. I've read every published detail of Tucker history."

Abbott paled slightly, but Peter did not notice.

"Why, may I ask, are you so very much interested in them?"

Peter Stares

Peter stared down at his hands. "I'm not quite sure," he replied, smiling diffidently.

"Unless it's a latent development of hero worship. You see, I have no folks of my own. I was raised at St. Peter's—that's right next door to the Tucker estate, you know."

Abbott nodded understandingly. His shrewd eyes watched Peter covertly.

"As kids," Peter went on, "we all looked to the house as a symbol of the homes we didn't have. Naturally, because it remained unoccupied, we built up all sorts of fanciful ideas about the place. Then, just a few weeks ago, I discovered old Jonathan Tucker.

Trespass Charge

"Exactly. I suppose, now that I'm in the presence of the family's attorney, I must plead guilty to a charge of trespass."

Abbott smiled generously. "I daresay the boys from St. Peter's have been trespassing for some years."

"In the grounds only." Peter corrected stanchly. "Not one of us ever went near the house. I'm sure I was the first offender. However, if you remember that Sunday—three weeks ago—we had a regular cloudburst in the afternoon. A friend and myself were stranded on the hillside. We ran for the shelter of the house, and an unlatched shutter just automatically invited us inside."

"I'd have done the same myself." Abbott's voice was reassuring. He held a pencil in his right hand, with it he tapped the surface of his desk. It was the only outward indication of nerves. "Then," he questioned cautiously, "you saw the portrait?"

Yes. Over the fireplace."

"And you noticed that it bore a striking resemblance to yourself?"

Look Alike

Peter squirmed uneasily. "Of course not. Paintings all look alike to me. That fairy-tale angle the newspaper played up is making a monkey of me. The young lady with me did say something of the sort. And I guess she suggested the idea to the reporters. But there's nothing to it, of course.' He smiled deprecatingly.

"Of course," the lawyer nodded.

"However," Peter went on eagerly, "I do admit an intense admiration for old Jonathan Tucker. And it's no fantastic newspaper theory to say that his inspiration sent me into the burning house. I knew I'd never have had the nerve otherwise."

"I don't know about that," Abbott protested kindly. "Other people can inspire us, that is true. But one's courage is his own. However, you were properly influenced, I will say that.

Great Character

"Jonathan Tucker was one of the greatest characters our city has ever known. There's no reason, no reason at all, why a young man like yourself should feel any embarrassment in modeling your life after his. As a matter of fact, when I read the newspaper story, that fact alone impressed me.

"Too many of our younger men try to pattern their lives after movie heroes. They overlook the substantial virtues of our American heritage."

He tossed the pencil on the desk. The interview, thus far, had progressed much better than he had ever dared hope.

To Be Continued.
